The bill to provide increased salaries for teachers was recommended in the evening after considerable discussion, chiefly by members who sought even better terms for the teaching profes-cion better terms for the teaching profes-sion. The bill to enable Wm. Gerrard of Fredericton, to practice dentistry which had been rejected by the law commit-tee after hearing a large delegation of dentists in opposition to it, reached the committee of the whole this evening, as a result of Dr. Crocket's motion to that effect. After a spirited debate, the committee by a standing vote of sixteen to thirteen recommended the bill. It still has to run the gauntlet of the house on the third reading, but so far Dr. Gerrärd wins. The New Brunswick Power Bill passed the committee of the whole as recommended and without discussion. The corporations committee, as said in The Telegraph yesterday, fixed the rate base at $3,100,000. Government bills were introduced dur-ing the evening to increase the fees for sheriffs and to grant further aid for vocational education. When the bill to provide a salary for the minister of health came before the committee of the whole, Dr. Baxter said that, although the opposition approved of action which would require a minister that, although the opposition approved of action which would require a minister in charge of a department to stand for re-election, they did not approve of a salary for a minister of public health. He found that the total expenditure of the health department last year was $31,-000 and he did not think they needed to pay a full salary to a minister to ad-minister that sum. The salary was not important, as the ministers were sadly underpaid, but the opposition felt that fewer ministers at higher salaries would be a better policy. The duties of the department could be administered by the provincial secretary or minister of agriculture and the health portfolio could be abolished. A practical farmer in charge might at least abolish some of the fads which now mark the conduct of the department. of the department. Dr. McGrath suggested that if economy were the only consideration the minister of agriculture might assume the duties of attorney-general. The bill was • adopted by a vote of
