

A Hot Dish for a Cold Day

It is not easy to warm a poorly nourished body. Heat and strength do not come from overcoats or flannels. Bodily warmth and vigor come from foods that are rich in blood-making, tissue-building material.

SHREDDED WHEAT

is all fuel-food—no waste, no indigestible material to clog the system and tax the vitality. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits, heated in the oven and served with hot milk and a little cream, for breakfast, will supply all the heat and strength needed for a half day's work. Not "pre-digested," but "ready-to-digest," not compounded, flavored or "treated" with anything—just plain, whole wheat, steam-cooked, shredded and baked a golden brown. It makes delicious combinations with baked apples, stewed prunes or other fruits, fresh or preserved.

DIALECTS OF FRANCE ON RECORDS

Learned Professor Gets 150 in One Session For Phonograph

NOVEL VOICE MUSEUM

Plan to Take Ten Years and Spend $200,000 in Preserving the Language Variations—Other Records of Value as Well

(Times Special Correspondence.)
Paris, Dec. 2.—Ferdinand Brunot, professor of languages at the University of Paris, recently returned after a novel lecture tour "thru" the Ardennes and is now busy putting into shape the strange "treasures" which he brought back. Equipped with a big roomy car and an instrument for recording the voice, he has been collecting records of the almost innumerable dialects known to the northeast corner of France and the results will form a valuable addition to the first voice museum in the world, established here more than a year ago, and now housed in a separate department of the Sorbonne.

Professor Brunot was able to find 100 separate dialects or variations worth recording for future generations and experts are now busy putting them on flat disks for filing away on the shelves of the museum. Six duplicate records are being made of each, so that, as they can be played 1,000 times each without losing their distinctiveness, ample precautions are being taken against future wear and tear.

This trip of the learned professor is the forerunner of a series which he is planning and which will cover every corner of provincial France. The dialects and patois of some of the districts—Breton, Basque and Provençal for instance—are really distinct languages and they are rapidly dying and must be recorded without delay if they are to be saved for future generations. It is estimated by Professor Brunot that it will take at least ten years and no less than $200,000 to record all the dialects and languages of the country, and despite the fact that that amount of money is not in sight at the moment he has made an energetic start.

Pathe Backs It
The voice museum is practically supported by Emile Pathe, who, with his brother, runs the great business of Pathe Freres. Pathe not only donated $40,000 but he furnished the services of his chief engineer. Not content with that he presented a large collection of records of songs in about forty languages.

In addition to the records just brought to Paris by Professor Brunot and those originally presented to the museum by Pathe, Paul Verrier, who is in immediate charge of the institution, has made a couple of hundred records in a dozen languages. He has tried to get impressions of men speaking with the purest of accents. For instance, some of his French records are of speeches delivered by Professor Brunot, one of his French records is of a lecture on literature by a professor at Edinburgh University, and yet another English record is of the famous soliloquy in "Hamlet," beginning "To be or not to be," delivered by a well known English actor. Curiously enough, the first record made by Verrier for the voice museum was a song by a Sioux Indian from North Dakota. Eventually the museum is to be more than a museum of records for the present, it is to be a school of instruction and delight of future generations. A large school room has already been set apart for its use, on the second floor of the Sorbonne and it is the intention to hold classes in the science of the human voice and kindred subjects including the making and proper preservation of records.

While the germs of cholera continue to flourish in their ancient Asiatic haunts, the world can never be quite safe from their activities. China, Burma, and Northern India have long been known to possess localities in which cholera continually breeds; particularly the low-lying country about the mouth of the sacred Ganges, which has always favored its development.

When European countries have had to fight hard against renewed threats of cholera invasion it has nearly always been found that the local pest spots of the East have previously shown increased activity. It has been from these pestilential districts that the disease has spread westward. Cholera is a man-borne disease, conveyed from one individual to another in an endless chain of contamination.

London's Livered Woman Chauffeur
Paris has its women taxi-drivers, and in Copenhagen you may often see a girl chauffeur wearing the buff and scarlet livery of the taxi-driver, but so far London has only had one liveried woman chauffeur, Miss Vera Holme, who for the last three years has driven the car belonging to the Woman Suffrage Party Union and has just resigned with an idea of visiting South Africa and trekking along the Zambesi.

Her's has been one of the most interesting and onerous of the tasks allotted by that organization; not only has she driven about the London streets with leaders and speakers, but she has taken the car to work at the nearer by-elections, and has been on tour with it all over the country, far down to the west, and beyond Inverness in the north. She has kept hundreds of appointments to time, and has traveled many thousands of miles, and she can boast that she has never been fined for exceeding the speed limit, nor, in spite of some very narrow escapes, has she ever had an accident.

She has driven all sorts of distinguished and unexpected people, princesses, famous writers, actresses, members of parliament, church dignitaries, musicians, magistrates, and, curiously enough, even an inspector of police, who was most amused at his position and eager to be recognized by the men along the route. Her greatest ambition, to drive her purple and green car right into the yard at the House of Commons was realized on the afternoon when she took Philip Snowden down there after a meeting.

Her appearance at the gates created as much alarm and consternation as she could have wished, till suddenly the men on duty espied Mr. Snowden, and then they smiled broadly as the car, its flag flying, drove triumphantly through. On another occasion Kate Handle was a passenger, and insisted on helping with some slight repair, remarking that it was "the first time he had ever been appreciated as a chauffeur." Miss Holme speaks warmly of the general kindness shown to her, especially by people of her own craft. She has always met with the greatest consideration from the men in the garage all over the country, and though she can do all necessary repairs to her 15-28 h. p. car—for she took the mechanical course at a London school as well as the driver's—she has always found chauffeurs quick to offer her assistance. When Miss Holme returns from South Africa she intends to become a chauffeur again, and she is keen that other women should follow her example.

Last week, wrote Mr. F. in Glasgow I was waiting at a stopping place for a car. Near me were two ladies, unmistakably American. They came alongside was a Langside car. The younger lady inspected it and exclaimed: "Langside! Say, that'll be the 'Auld Lang Side' we've heard so much about." She must have been a relative of the American girl spending the winter in Glasgow who once in a cart filled with snow which had been shovelled off the streets remarked: "Waa! I've often read about the driven snow, but I never knew the meaning of it till now."

Could Not Digest His Food

Suffered For Years From Indigestion Until Cured By Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett.

If you suffer from chronic indigestion, forget about the stomach and pay attention to the condition of the liver and bowels. Ten to one that is where the real trouble lies.

The liver gets sluggish and fails to filter the bile from the blood, the bowels become constipated and the whole digestive system is upset. As to cure you cannot do better than to read of Mr. Barrett's experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment so prompt and thoroughly effective. Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B. C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until in 1908 I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured. Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edman Bates & Co., Limited.
