A Baby Lark

A baby lark had got out of its nest side ways, a fall of a foot only, but a dreadful drop for a baby.

"You can get back this way," its mother said, and showed it the way.

But when the baby tried to leap it fell on its back. Then the mother marked out lines on the ground, on which it was to practice hopping, and it got along beautifully as long as the mother watched every movement and encouraged the baby by saying, "How wonderfully you hop, dear!"

"Now teach me to hop up," said the little lark, meaning that it wanted to fly and the mother tried to do it in vain. She could soar up, up, very bravely, but she could not explain how she did it.

"Wait till the sun comes out after rain," she said, half remembering.

"What is sun? What is rain?" the baby bird asked. "If you cannot teach me to fly, teach me to sing."

"When the sun comes out after the rain then you can sing."

The rain came and glued the little bird's wings together.

"I shall never be able to fly or to sing," it wailed.

Then of a sudden it had to blink its eyes, for a glorious golden light had spread over the world, catching every leaf and twig and blade of grass in tears, and putting a smile into every tear.

The baby bird's breast swelled, it did not know why; it fluttered from the ground it did not know why.

"The sun has come out after the rain!" It thrilled. "Thank you, sun! Thank you, thank you! Oh, mother! Did you hear me? I can sing!"

Then it floated up, up, calling, "Thank you! thank you! thank you!" to the sun. "Oh, mother do you see me? I am flying!"

THE GRACEFUL "SCARF DRESS" OF CHIFFON

This pretty frock gives the impression of being made entirely of chiffon scarfs, draped one above the other, over a satin under-slip. The chiffon is pale yellow and frayed. The hat is a combination of black and yellow also, and the gloves are of girde-sleeve edge and hem at the bottom being of black satin. This black satin, together with the black flower rosettes which catch up the chiffon folds, give a very elegant touch to the canary shade of the frock. The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"I AM over thirty. All my girl chums are married. I do not think that I shall ever marry. I might as well make up my mind to that. But even if I am not going to marry, I am not going to be an 'old maid,' not the sour kind. I have decided that, and I have also decided that the way to do it is to keep in touch with young life. Since I am to have no children of my own I am going to try to be as interested in and as much with my girl friends' children as is possible."

That is the decision that a young woman whom I know made a year ago.

And in that year she has actually so changed and sweetened her from the rather embittered and self-sufficient young person which she was then, that her acquaintances are continually saying to each other:

"What has come over Louise? She has improved so."

And that decision is the secret.

Think of the people that have been affected by it.

There are Louise's father and mother, who are delighted beyond words at having their daughter so much happier and more contented.

There are Louise's friends, who have learned to call her "Aunt Louise," and to rush to the door to greet her whenever she comes to see them.

And best of all, there is Louise herself, who is replacing discontent and dreariness and unrest by contentment and peace and serenity.

I remember years ago hearing a very fine unmarried woman of forty-five or fifty say, as she looked at another woman's baby:

"That is the hardest thing in my life to me. I don't mind so much being called an old maid. I don't mind so much not being a wife, but the terrible thing is to think I shall never be a mother—not a little boy or girl will ever say that dear word 'mother' to me."

It seems to me as if deep down in her heart every unmarried woman must have the same feeling, and I cannot think of anything finer than my friend's determination to be a mother by proxy, since she cannot be one.

I wonder if there are not some unmarried women among my readers who might make their own and their friends' lives sweeter by adopting that resolution.

Daily Hints for the Cook

ROAST BREAST OF VEAL WITH CREOLE STUFFING

Get two pounds of the breast, even if there is to be no company, for it can be eaten cold the next day. Roll out the long narrow piece and fill it with a stuffing of dry, stale, white bread and chopped pickles seasoned with cayenne and salt. Mix the mass together with olive oil, put in a raw beaten egg and lay the dressing on the veal, shaping this into a roll. Skewer or tie with cords and dredge with flour, pouring over a little olive oil to start the roasting if there is little fat.

MEXICAN POLENTA

Into three pints of boiling water put a teaspoonful of salt and a half pound of butter. When boiling, stir in slowly, stirring constantly, about a pint of Indian meal and boil one-half hour. Have ready hot, a cupful of good gravy and one of tomato sauce, mixed with chile. Put a layer of the cooked Indian meal in the bottom of a buttered dish, then the sauce, and a cupful of good gravy, and one of tomato sauce, mixed with chile. Put a layer of the cooked Indian meal in the bottom of a buttered dish, then the sauce, and a cupful of good gravy, and one of tomato sauce, mixed with chile.

RICE BALLS

Steam one cup of rice in a blender, wring 10-inch square pudding cloths out of hot water and spread the rice one third of an inch thick over the cloth. Drain a can of peaches of their juice. Place one peach in the center of each cloth; draw up till the rice envelopes the fruit, tie and steam briskly for 20 minutes; remove cloth, turn to a dish and serve with fruit sauce as follows:

APPLE CHUTNEY

Pare and core five pounds of tart cooking apples. Put them in a preserving kettle with two pounds of brown sugar and two quarts of vinegar. Cook them slowly until thick and smooth. Take them up into a pan and add two pounds of chopped sultana raisins, a minced head of garlic, two ounces of ground mustard seed and ginger root, three tablespoonsful of salt and three pounds of chopped red peppers. Mix well together and let stand for eight hours; stir until perfectly blended, put in small jars or wide-necked bottles, cork securely and keep in a cool, dry place.

CATHOLICS AROUSED BY NATHAN'S ATTACK

Proposed That Powers Should Undertake to Enforce Respect for the Pope

ITALY WOULD NOT CONSENT

Suggestion Has Been Made That Curia Be Removed to America Before Radicals Gain Full Power

(Cable to New York Times.)

Rome, Oct. 4.—The strong anti-clerical, indeed anti-Catholic, speech of Signor Nathan, the Freemason Mayor of Rome, the energetic protest of the Pope, and the subsequent reply of the mayor once more make plain the situation, unbearable to Catholics, of the head of the church in the city which is no longer his own. They declare that the Pope lacks the liberty necessary for the fulfillment of his high ministry, adding that the law of guarantees, voted by the Italian parliament in 1871 with the intention of securing the sovereign position of the Pontiff in Rome, is in reality no guarantee at all, as the same parliament can annul or modify the law, while its violation, as in the case of Mayor Nathan, is not punished.

It is understood that the minimum to which the Holy See would agree is an international undertaking by which all the powers would pledge themselves to see the the Papacy should be respected in Rome and should enjoy certain privileges and liberties. To this, of course, Italy would never consent, as to do so would be like inviting foreign intervention in her own internal affairs, so that the problem of how to settle the conflict between church and state in Italy is insoluble on this basis.

For forty years things have gone as well as could have been expected, with a succession of attacks and protests and with periods of tolerance and intolerance, but everyone asks what will happen on the day, should it ever come, when the government of the country is in the hands of the Radical-Socialist element with a pronounced anti-clerical programme. Their intentions are known: The abolition of the law of guarantees, a compulsory civil marriage before the religious ceremony, divorce, the prohibition of any ecclesiastic as a teacher, entirely lay instruction, state control of the Vatican finances, the Holy See being regarded as a company, and the confiscation of all ecclesiastical property. Many believe it would be more dignified and more prudent on the part of the Pope not to wait for such an extreme moment, but to leave Rome with curia and court before the Church and the Year of Christ are reduced to such humiliating extremities.

Would it not, they argue, be better to find hospitality in some new, enlightened and progressive country where Catholicism could develop freely and expand again throughout the world without let or hindrance? Every one understands that America is a country hinted at by those who argue thus.

The suggestion has been made that Mayor Nathan should be removed from office by the government for having violated the law of guarantees and the first article of the Italian Constitution, which says that the Catholic religion is the religion of the state.

In connection with this it is recalled that the Duke of Orleans about seventeen years ago was removed from his position as Mayor of Rome by Premier Crispi, but for quite the opposite reason. At that time Crispi was dreaming of bringing about conciliation between the Quirinal and the Vatican and had chosen as a good opportunity the Jubilee of Leo XIII. Mr. Crispi, the librarian at the Vatican, son of the Quirinal general, had an apartment in the same house in which Crispi lived, and acted as the intermediary. Something of the matter became known and the Duke of Orleans as mayor, thinking to play a master-stroke which would help to conclude the negotiations, on the day of the Jubilee he invited the Pope to the Quirinal and the Duke of Orleans as mayor, thinking to play a master-stroke which would help to conclude the negotiations, on the day of the Jubilee he invited the Pope to the Quirinal.

Unfortunately for the Duke the negotiations were going on well, the Vatican failed and Crispi removed the mayor.

Would it be prudent to do the same thing with Signor Nathan? It is doubtful. It must be remembered that he was elected by a very large majority, and any measure against him on the part of the government would augment his popularity, and might open to him the road even to the premiership.

B., a former pastor of the church, will preach both morning and evening and on Monday evening will deliver a lecture on the church, taking as his subject the relation of Protestantism to the British Empire. Sunday evening in addition to the sermon by Mr. Batty, there will be a light song service. The church is making an effort to raise during the anniversary services the sum of $3,500.00 on account of church debt.

The following Sunday, Oct. 16th, the First Baptist church will begin the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the church. Mayor and Mrs. Curry, who have just returned from their wedding trip were today to a surprise last evening when members of the whole fire department in uniform accompanied by the band met upon the lawn in front of their home and gave them a hearty serenade. Chief Bell on behalf of the firemen, presented Mr. Curry with a handsome clock. Mayor Curry expressed his appreciation after which all returned to the Woodcock Cafe where Mr. Curry had lunch served.

While at work in the sewer extension, a workman by the name of Whalen received a terrible blow on the back of the head from a heavy maul which flew from the handle, in the hands of a fellow workman. A deep cut inflicted required several stitches.

The second race between Fred Cameron and Abbie Wood takes place on the Ramblers grounds next Saturday afternoon. Even greater interest is manifested in this than in Cameron's first professional race, when Wood defeated him, and it is generally predicted that the result on Saturday will be very different, that either Cameron will win out or that all previous records of these celebrated sprinters will be smashed. Cameron has been training hard since the last race and intends if possible returning to his role of winner.

Before going to Montreal it is understood that Wood placed several large bets on the result.

It is understood on good authority that sufficient orders have been placed with the Amherst branch of the Canadian Car Co. and Foundry Co. to keep all departments busy until next summer. The malleable department is about completing the enlargement of their plant which will be finished by the end of the year. Building operations in the town are at present quite brisk. The Victor Wood Works have just completed a fine residence in Rupert street for J. J. Soy and are also building one alongside for themselves. They also have the contract for the residence of M. B. Val, Rupert street, which when completed will be one of the finest and most modern in Amherst. Contractor Fuge is making great headway with the large brick extension to the Amherst Boot and Shoe Co.

FOUNDRY CO. is in Amherst this week.

C. J. Sillick, of the Sillick Car Works, Halifax, also spent a few days here. The insurance adjusters are busy adjusting the loss in Sunday's fire.

BARN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

David A. Farris' Barn at White's Cove Totally Destroyed With All Its Contents

White's Cove, Queens Co., Oct. 3.—The worst electrical storm of the season passed over this place on Saturday night. The lightning struck a barn at Mill Cove, belonging to David A. Farris, and burned it with all its contents. Besides losing his hay and grain, Mr. Farris lost thirty barrels of potatoes, his farming implements, one horse and two cows. Much sympathy is felt for him as he had no insurance on building or contents.

W. A. Farris of this place has the contract to paint the school house at Mill Cove.
