THE LIFE OF TRADE.

Editor of The Standard. Sir—When I was a young and not overwise Liberal, I listened with due reverence when the prophets of my party with unctuous eloquence expounded the good old Liberal doctrine that competition was the life of trade. Now I learn by reading the Liberal organs in St. John, that not competition, but the co-operation, the getting together and pulling together, of business men is the great thing necessary to make business boom. Are there no Liberals in this province to stand up for the Liberal philosophy, to defend that good Liberal doctrine that competition is the life of trade?

SISTERS OF CHARITY TO ERECT INFIRMARY

Holly Property Not Large Enough to Accommodate Patients—New Building Will Cost $50,000

It has been found that the old Holly property recently purchased by the Sisters of Charity is not large enough and consequently it has been decided to erect a new building for this purpose which will add to the one now standing. Architect F. Neil Brodie is now working on the plans and it is expected to have the work on the new structure started in early spring. The infirmary will be modern in every respect. When the intention to establish an infirmary was first made known, the sisters had an idea that the building now standing would satisfy their purpose. Since that time Mr. Brodie has visited different infirmaries throughout the States, and it has been learned that in order to have better accommodations, and everything as commodious as possible, an entirely new building will have to be erected. The estimated cost of the new structure is $50,000.

WILL NOT NEGLECT THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

Continued from page 1. Further, these fishing centres must have railway facilities; these and similar facilities on the intercolonial should cause a great extension of the Canadian market. At present fish caught on the Pacific coast are sent to Boston via Canada and then back to the Canadian market. It is proposed that a railway line be built from the fish of the Maritime Provinces and Quebec. Mr. Borden touched briefly on the development of the port of St. John. That development he said was important to the whole of Canada. The port should be so equipped that it could take its place with any other port on the continent. He also dwelt on the importance of improving the road bed of the Intercolonial. Earlier in the debate Mr. McKenney complained of delay in building the Baddeck line and Mr. Emerson urged the building of the Shediac branch. Mr. Sinclair urged the extension of the Guysboro line to Canso. Mr. Borden questioned him closely as to the fishing trade of which Canso is the centre. Stanfield urged the claims of Colchester county to branch lines, especially mentioning the Stewiacke line. Mr. Rhodes noted that the Liberals who had not built lines when they were in power, were now clamouring for their construction. He recognized the wisdom of the present administration, and moved an amendment expressing appreciation of the work done by the government in extending the Intercolonial into the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Sinclair urged the extension of the Intercolonial to the coast, and also of the harbor development work at Halifax. Mr. MacDonald moved the adjournment of the debate. Earlier in the afternoon Mr. Lemieux moved for papers relating to the strike of labor on that railway sought the establishment of a board of conciliation and an investigation with reference to a long list of grievances extending over the whole system. The department declined at first on account of the cumbersome nature of such an investigation, and because it was not certain that the men applying had the majority of members of the union behind them. It offered a board restricted to one division so as to make an investigation manageable and the men ultimately agreed. Mr. Carvell, Mr. MacDonald and other Liberals assailed Hon. Mr. Crothers, and the minister made it clear that his action had been in line with the previous practice of the department, and justified by the subsequent course of events. On the order of the day Mr. Oliver, on a question of privilege drew attention to some complaints paid to him by Sir Rodmond Roblin. He denied that he had shown hostility to Manitoba in the administration of the swamp lands, or that he and Mr. MacNutt had taken money and whisky into MacDonald, Sir Rodmond Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, recently knighted by His Majesty, stated what was untrue, knowing it to be untrue," he said. This will be a very important case, as cases arising out of the same nature were brought on by John people will be defendants will also be brought when this is decided. W. A. Ewing, K. C. appeared for the defendant. Samuel W. Shipway acted as agent for the plaintiff and H. A. Porter for the defendant.
