The Tax on Shipbuilding.
It appears that one or two gentlemen who own a great many ships are perfectly willing that others who want to build or buy ships should be subjected to a heavy tax. These gentlemen argue that the tax imposed by the new tariff is all right, and can easily be borne. For the purpose of enforcing their views they are sending estimates to Ottawa to show that the tax will not amount to much anyway. Mr. Dunn, at the Board of Trade meeting yesterday, would not disclose the figures he had sent to Ottawa.
They were, probably, so low that he did not like to acknowledge them. At some late day in the discussion of the tariff, when it is too late to refute them, some Ministerial orator will quote Mr. Dunn's figures as a final answer to all the objections of Maritime members. It is said that Mr. Dunn's estimate is only sixty-seven cents a ton. The statement made by Mr. Marshall shows that the tax is about double that amount, and proves that the chief burden will fall on New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Here are his figures: Number of tons of shipping built annually by Nova Scotia, $6,000; by New Brunswick, $1,000—total 100,000.
Duty per ton on iron, 34 cents; on sheathing, copper bolts, etc., 27 cents; other ship materials, 37 cents—total 98 cents. Add to this the percentage over-cost charged the builder by the importer and the tax paid per ton is fully $1.20.
Now 100,000 tons at $1.20 per ton amounts to $120,000, fully two thirds of the entire amount raised by the impost.
Some people pretend that the shipbuilding interest pay nothing into the public treasury, and should not expect to escape taxation. This is nonsense.
The taxation begins with the first stroke of the axe in the woods. The men who cut the timber, the carpenters, blacksmiths, glaziers, caulkers, and riggers are consuming taxed provisions, smoking taxed tobacco, drinking taxed grog, and wearing taxed clothes. Every ship that is launched has paid a heavy tax to the Government, and nobody objects because it is the same tax that every individual has to pay. The objection that new tariff is the proposed tax is a special impost, essentially a direct tax of local application.

A Resolution Resolved.
We are sorry that the Board of Trade was entrapped into the question of resolution yesterday. This Board has yielded considerable influence, and should wield much more. At a critical time like this, when all its influence is wanted for the purpose of endeavoring to prevent the introduction of greater duties on shipbuilding materials and sugar, it should act guardedly and wisely, and not make itself ridiculous by the passage of resolutions, asking for immediate concessions. We refer to the action taken on the motion of greater duties on the sugar and molasses question. Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Austin very clearly and forcibly showed the effects of the very high imposts on sugar and molasses—imposts about equal to that on breadstuffs—and demonstrated that the new burden it was proposed by the Government to lay on sugars would not increase the revenue and would affect our lumbering interests in two ways—namely, by increasing the cost of living and by preventing return cargoes being brought from the West Indies.
Mr. Lindsay moved, therefore, that our representatives in Parliament be requested to use all their influence against any increase in the duties on these necessaries of life. This was a practical, common sense motion—a motion which if it had been passed, might have been used effectively at Ottawa, as it asked nothing unreasonable, nothing unwarranted. In amendment to this Mr. Wm.
Elder moved:

That the duties on sugars and molasses are excessive, and that the resolution passed in Parliament be asked to seek a reduction of the same, and to have duties on molasses made specific.

supporting the motion in a speech delivered chiefly with the molasses suggestion—showing that the ad valorem duty shuts out the better qualities. Unfortunately a great many gentlemen were not paying attention and did not difference between the amendment and the original motion, and others got their ideas so firmly stuck to the molasses matter that they saw nothing else, the result being that twelve voted for the amendment and only eleven against it.
There was no time for discussion, as it was one o'clock, or the matter would have been ventilated and the resolution reconsidered. It is so silly in the Board to ask for a reduction, when all that the most sanguine can expect is to prevent increase, that the Board's protest against the shipbuilding tax is nullified. The Ministers may well instance this modest request as an argument against giving any consideration to the Board's resolutions. They may say that "a body that will, in the face of facts, ask a reduction of duties that have been born with apparent ease, is so unreasonable that its utterances are deserving of no consideration." The last clause of the resolution is a very proper suggestion, and might have been advantageously added to Mr. Lindsay's motion. Specific duties, when practicable, should be the rule, as they make frauds fewer and encourage the importation of the better qualities of goods.

MacKenzie's Speeches.
During the course of the Pacific Scandal discussion in the House of Commons plain Sandy MacKenzie, the leader of the opposition, got up and denounced the Ministry in unmeasured terms, the corruption of the House of Commons, the Ministry's report of which speech having been found very difficult to give freely to the public, and our reporter having omitted to provide himself with a Dictionary of the language spoken by this speaker, we have been very reluctantly obliged to postpone the publication of this speech until this date.
Knowing well however as we do the high example for setting for himself, we give below the speech in the Scottish vernacular and hope our readers will overlook the delay.
