A garrison order recently issued in Malta has provoked much talk throughout England. The objectionable mandate runs as follows: "All guards to turn out to the Archbishop of Malta, and all sentries to carry arms and pre-sent arms when the Host passes." Captain Sheffield of the 21st R.N.B.F., having refused to obey the above, has been ordered under arrest, and will in all probability be tried by court martial. It is a case of conscience with Captain Sheffield, who, it is reported, is ready to submit to any punishment rather than do homage to the Host. This

It cerefully, comprehensively, and yet briefly marks out the qualificatious essential to a good debate, and points out the best mode of acquiring them.

It indicates the conditions on which skill to the extemporaneous use of language is to be gained, and proved it to be mainly the result of judicious study and practice.

It furnishes a full course of instruction in the rules of Parliamentary practice, grounded on the best authorities, and suited admirably to the use of unpractised debaters. It shows the advantage of well-conducted Debating Societies, and the mode of managing debateable questions in them; thereby discovering to the young debater the true end of logical disputation, and the true mode of ecuring it.

It illustrates the practical working of an orderly debate, by giving debates in full on interesting questions, and so making the ransaction to assume a sort of dramatic form It furnishes Debates in Outline, to be filled out, according to the taste and ability of the sarties that use them, and so gives healthful exercise, by giving proper aid, in the prepartion of matter for a discussion. It presents a series of questions with reference under each to authorities or sources of information, and so indicates the duty of in-dependent preparation.

dependent preparation.

It supplies, moreover, a copious (nearly 600) and sugularly various and interesting list of questions for discussion, gives forms of a Constitution and By-Laws for Debating Societies, and, in many ways, unfolds the principles. c ples and practice necessary to the form of an able and accomplished debater.

The unprecedented success which has crowned the efforts of this Company from the commencement, and the unlimited confidence accorded in by the public in the vicinity of its head quarters, induce the Directors to extend its operations to all parts of Canada, confident of like results in proportion as the equitable plans of this institution may become known.

Support a home Office—Build up your own Institutions: Canada is old, rich, and extensive enough to support its own Insurance Companies, and thus keep within the Province a large amount of Capital which otherwise aids in building up Foreign Offices usually conducted under a system of expensive management, and yet paying their stockholders large dividends.

The following Rules may be taken as the basis of the Company's operations:—

By Act of Parliament—18 Vic., cap. 120—no member of the Company is table for any sum beyond the amount of his premium.

Any difference arising between the assured and the Company shall be settled by arbitration in the County where the loss shall have occurred. 116 Nassau St., New York City. County where the loss shall have occurred.

On insurance on any contiguous property liable to be burned by one and the same fire will be taken to a larger amount than two thousand five hundred dollars, unless at the discretion of the Directors.

City, Town, Village, and Personal Property will be insured for a term not longer than one year, nor less than one month, and the whole premium in such cases must be paid in cash.

Insurers for three consecutive years, who shall not themselves have mide a claim, shall be entitled to a share of the profits which may have accrued, after first providing a saitable reserve fund. Their shares of profits to be deducted from the next subsequent premiums.

Farm preperty and isolated dwellings will be insured for a term not longer than three years. The premium will be paid by note, one third only of which will be required in cash as part Payment thereof; the balance, or any part thereof, to be paid only when required to meet losses.
