The Pride of Llewellyn

"It won't do for us to leave the house open, for if it should be robbed to-night they would be sure to think it was me as robbed it, seeing I have run away."

Gladys agreed with her. They walked briskly on to the corner of the street where the cab was waiting.

Three driver jumped down and opened the door.

Ennis respectfully helped her young mistress to enter, and then followed her in and took the front seat before her.

The driver received his orders, and then the cab started at a brisk rate for the Washington railway station.

It was three o'clock when they arrived there. They got out and Ennis paid and dismissed the cab, and conducted her mistress into the waiting-room.

The ticket office was not open, and they had two good hours to wait in the deserted room before it would be open.

These hours were passed by Ennis in nodding over the rusty stove, and by her mistress in watching the sleepy porters and in waiting for the office to open.

It was open at five o'clock. Ennis at once took tickets, got the baggage checked and then "conveyed" her young mistress on board the ferryboat.

At six o'clock they seated in the cars, flying southward. The rising sun found them far on their way toward Philadelphia.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The fugitive's Shelter. Gladys arrived in Washington at an early hour of the afternoon. She took a hack at once and accompanied by Ennis, drove out to Ceres Cottage.

The sun was setting as the carriage drew up at the rustic gate.

How welcome, how peaceful, how pleasant the old house looked! Yes, even pleasant, although it stood among its bare trees, whose fallen leaves strewn all the garden paths.

Gladys alighted at the gate and paid and dismissed the carriage and followed by Ennis walked up the straight, leaf-strewn path that led to the door. A ruddy leaping and glittering light, like that emitted by the blazing of a wood fire, shone through the windows of the sitting room on the right hand side of the front door, and added cheerfulness to the aspect of the scene.

Gladys knocked with her fist, for you remember that there was neither knocker nor bell at this rustic entrance, and while she paused for a response, she distinctly heard Miss Polly Crane exclaim in a scared whisper:

"Let's who is that? Go to the door, Harriet, get me sure to ask who is there before you unlock it."

And the next moment Gladys heard the woman cautiously approach and demand:

"Who dar?"

"It is I, Harriet."

"Who?"

"Why, Harriet don't you know my voice? I am Mrs. Pows, who used to lodge here about a year ago."

"Mrs. Pows, ma'am? And down went the bar and back went the bolt and the key was turned in a trice, and there in the open door stood Harriet glowing with welcome!"

"Lor, child! Come in out'n de cold, honey! When did you arrive? Who dar did you? Your waiting maid? Come in, in!—Lor, Miss Polly, if here ain't Mrs. Pows! Come in, child!"

exclaimed Harriet, bustling her questions one upon the back of another, as she closed the door and bustled Gladys and her maid into the bright old sitting room.

The three old ladies who were sitting around the fire arose in a body, exclaiming simultaneously:

"Lor! Mrs. Colonel Pollard, my dear, to think of seeing you here!"

"I hope you are glad to see me as I am to come," said Gladys, faintly smiling.

"Oh, yes, indeed," replied the three old ladies together, as Miss Polly placed a chair and made the visitor sit down, and Miss Milly untied and removed her bonnet, and Miss Jenny stirred the fire into a blaze.

But Gladys saw that they were all three "dying" of curiosity to know what brought her, how far she had come and how long she meant to stay.

"Harriet, bring a candle in here directly—two candles Harriet! and then put on the kettle and fry that chicken, and make some nice rice waffles."

"Mrs. Colonel Pollard always relished rice waffles—and then come and set the table for tea. You'll stay for tea, my dear, I hope," said Miss Polly.

"Yes, dear Miss Polly, I will stay to tea, and I will stay to sleep too, if you will let me," replied Gladys.

"To sleep! Here Harriet! stop a minute. Now listen—the very first thing you do before you put the kettle on, you go and make a good fire in Mrs. Colonel Pollard's room, to aer it well. And then go and do the rest I told you," said Miss Polly, anxiously.

SUNDAY ANNIVERSARIES.
1709—George Washington, first President of the United States, died at Mount Vernon, Va. Born in Westmoreland County, Va., Feb. 22, 1732.

1878—Princess Alice, second daughter of Queen Victoria, died. Born April 25, 1843.

1894—A big strike of street-railway employees began in Washington, D.C.

In comparison to the fabulous earnings of one of the popular "movie" actresses of today the amounts received by the famous actresses of the past appear as mere pittance. For instance Rachel, the greatest French tragedienne of her time, was paid but $7,200 a year when at the height of her popularity.

Mrs. Betsy Kjelberg, who is to be the Norwegian delegate to the League of Nations assembly, has served her country on many important commissions in the past. Many years ago she was appointed a factory inspector, the first woman in Norway to hold such a position.

SCIATICA

TORONTO MAN BLESSES THE DAY HE TRIED T. R. C.'s.

The following testimonial is vouchsafed by a Justice of the Peace for the Province of Ontario: "114 Temple Ave., Toronto, 13/3/19. Dear Mr. Templeton: My husband's experience was a trying one, but he blesses the day he first tried T.R.C.'s. Mr. Kiezer was greatly troubled with Sciatica and suffered such awful pain that in the end, to obtain relief, he had a very severe operation to have the Sciatic Nerve stretched. This gave him relief, but was, of course, very expensive. Two years later his old trouble returned and grew steadily worse. Finally he took to his bed utterly helpless and a doctor was called in. While still an invalid a friend told us of your Capsules. We gave up the doctor and tried them. Before the second box was half through he was better, and has not been troubled since. We can't say too much or do enough to help spread the news of your wonderful medicine."

T.R.C.'s succeed in 85% of all cases and are 99% efficient as an almost instantaneous relief for pain. Try them! Ask your druggist for a box. Templetons, Limited, 142 King Street West, Toronto. We mail T.R.C.'s anywhere on receipt of $1.04.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of WATER.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and back-ache.
