

Donk's Corner.

THE WAY TO FIND MEANS.

Little Lucy was very much pleased with all that she heard, in sermons and at missionary meetings, about sending the Bible into all parts of the world...

She came home from Church, one Sunday, a little later than her mother, and found in the room a neighbour who had not been able to go...

The little girl was already in a better mood because she had heard that there were two ways of getting money to put into the plates...

Lucy was so well contented for the present that she did not give a great deal of thought to the inquiry how she might obtain some money by EARNING.

This set little Lucy upon a new way of thinking, and she asked Mrs. Turton, did she know how a little girl like her could earn money...

A PICTURE OF WAR.

From a letter written by Pastor Haack, of Buxtehude in Schleswig, dated 25th April, 1818.

and gallop out, to reconnoitre, from which they had ever returned without seeing their enemy.

It was indeed high time; for the Prussians were already deploying in the meadow, so as to surround the village, and press forward to Schleswig...

The Danish sharpshooters, lying behind bushes, earthen dykes, and walls, and sending many a death-bringing bullet into the Prussian ranks...

The danger of the village rose to the utmost when a thatched roof took fire. It was quite near our dwelling, and we looked for nothing else but seeing ourselves speedily enveloped in flames.

And now the inhabitants hurried from their houses, to give aid to the wounded.

that he had not "paled with coward fear" was shown by the wounds which marred his breast!

The evening of that memorable Easter-day continued still disturbed. The conflict lasted here and there till seven o'clock.

[The above article is taken from the June number of "Evangelical Christendom," besides its graphic description of war seen near, it possesses some interest by showing the writer's dislike of the Danish occupation...

THE RAGGED-SCHOOL, ESTABLISHED its Annual Meeting on the 16th of May, the Right Hon. Lord Ashleby, President, in the chair.

The use of the term recalled to his recollection the manner in which it had been derived; but the eagerness of the children to enter their schools was a sure proof that the term "ragged" contained nothing repulsive to their ideas.

BE PATIENT TOWARDS ALL MEN.—If thou rebukest others, and wouldst have them to be like thee, thou oughtest to examine thyself first...

THE DANGER OF RICHES.—Mr. Spencer tells us a real, but sad story of a rich oppressor, who had scraped up a great estate for his only son...

WE subjoin an extract from the Rev. Dr. Cumming's address: Looking at this Institution, he saw the illustration of a great principle, that there is no class of man—no mass of mankind from which Christianity shrinks...

barbarous that it could not transform, and none were so civilized on whom it would not seek to exert its sanctifying influence.

The great motive which sustained this Society was not political economy, it was not expediency, it was not a sentimental sympathy with a new species of humanity.

WORKS OF FICTION.—Many works of Fiction may be read with safety, some even with profit; but the constant familiarity even with such as are not exceptional in themselves...

THE FEAR OF MAN.—Is it for the honour of religion, think you, that Christians should be as timorous as hares, to start at every sound?

BE PATIENT TOWARDS ALL MEN.—If thou rebukest others, and wouldst have them to be like thee, thou oughtest to examine thyself first...

MANY TONGUES IN THE SWISS DIET.—In conclusion, I may mention Dr. Emil Frei, the deputy from Basle country, to whom I was from time to time indebted for the play of wit and irony...

on his side: why does not Mr. Frei try that mode of requiring influence, rather than the equivocal one here attributed to him?

LESSON TO STUDENTS.—What you do know, know thoroughly. There are few instances in modern times of a rise equal to that of Sir Edward Suggden.

GOOD AND BAD LUCK.—I may here, as well as any where, impart the secret of what is called good and bad luck. There are men who, supposing providence to have an implacable spite against them...

THE RICH MAN AND THE POOR LABOURER.—A merchant who is as avaricious as a spider, recently excited some public attention at London.

COLONIAL INDUSTRY.—Amongst other proofs that the present dullness of our commerce has not entirely destroyed all the energy of our citizens, we notice with great pleasure the new mill-machinery of Mr. Thomas Peck almost adjoining the mills of Mr. Gould.
