The Township of Biddulph
— IN THE — County of Middlesex

---

THE Township of Biddulph is situated in the Northerly part of the County of Middlesex, having the Townships of Usborne and Blanshard on the North, the Township of McGillivray on the West, and the Townships of West Nissouri and London on the South and East.

---

The Township contains about 39,300 acres exclusive of the Village of Lucan and formed part of what was known as the "Huron Tract," which became the property of the "Canada Company" for purposes of colonization.

One of the directors of that Company was named John Biddulph, after which the Township was named.

In the year 1861, Biddulph was detached from the County of Huron and annexed to the County of Middlesex, and carried away a debt of nearly $20,000, which was fully paid and satisfied in the year 1875.

It is the proud boast of the Township of Biddulph that they have never since contracted a debt of any kind and owe no man or corporaton one dollar.
