" Ere earth's bright scenes shall fade, And joys like flowers depart To give to God your heart' Peace by Faith.

Dr. Spencer, in his " Pastor's Sketches," gives a touching account of a young woman who suddenly obtained peace in Christ, after a long period of gloom. She had clear and pungent convictions of sin, felt the necessity of immediate repentance, and the absolute need of an atoning Saviour to save her from condemnation. She seemed to understand her dependence on the Holy Spirit, and the danger of grieving him, and was earnest in her private devotions, and in constant attendance on the means of grace. But for many weeks she made no progress. Her friends and companions, one by one, rejoiced in hope of pardon, but she remained in deep gloom. Her pastor had many long conversations with her, but could not understand what obstacle hindered her conversion.

One evening on his way to church he called at her house. He found her just where she had been for many weeks. On leaving her he said, " I would aid you most willingly if I could, but I can do you no good."

"I do not think you can," said she, calmly, " but I hope you will still come to see me." "Yes, I will," said I, "but all I can say is I know there is salvation for you ; but you must repent, and you must flee to Christ." On reaching the church, he gave out the hymn closing with the stanza,- she had made a new discovery, and on his asking what it was, she said, " Why, sir, the way of salvation all seems to me perfectly plain. My darkness is all gone. I see now what I never saw before.
