THE DISMISAL OF MARGARET.
Continued.

These Mrs. Small assumed an almost proprietary interest in Margaret's house, which she often visited, not for any love for Margaret, but for the opportunity for criticism which the house afforded. She would pretend to admire its taste, and after which she would remark with an air of patient meekness, "Well, I don't see how you can afford all these nice things any way, I know we can't have them. My husband won't have anything that isn't quite simple." The implication, of course, was that Margaret was extravagant, whereas she was simply one of those wise modern women who have discovered that ugliness is no cheaper than beauty, and the Small's were people who didn't know the one from the other, but chose the ugly things from a natural love of ugliness.

Margaret made the most praiseworthy efforts to live at peace with persons of this description, but the trouble was that they were so arrogant in their inferiority that they would not let her. They could not help wishing to humiliate her, because in their hearts they were jealous of her. When Gaunt began to think of leaving himself in the ways that we have seen, Mrs. Small and her tribe became really venomous in their indignation. They lost no opportunity of vilified or open insult, all of which Margaret endured in silence so far as her husband was concerned. That baffled maternal instinct, whose shrine was the room with the closed door, never let her defend her husband. It became the first duty of her life to shield him from petty irritations, while he made his way toward new heights of thought; and but for her untiring combative maternity perhaps he would never have reached those heights at all. But he never knew the cost to her. No trace of agitation marred the cheerful calm of her face; for her lips had only smiles and sweet encouragement, which was another triumph of dissimulation.

What grieved her most in those weeks of crisis, however, was the smallest failure of friendship among those whom she had treated, as she was, as though she leaned on one who was not a broken reed that pierced the hand which least upon it. There were the Taskers, for example, people whom she had genuinely liked, and to whom she had shown much kindness, especially to the wife, who thought herself delicate, and was always in need of service. They themselves were children, and he had been drawn toward them, had invited them often to the house, especially on Sunday evenings, and special occasions like Thanksgiving Day and Christmas. But from the hour when the trouble had begun in the church, they stood aloof. They never again found some excuse to avoid visiting the house. On the one or two occasions when they came, they were painfully embarrassed and restrained. If Margaret had not had a wholesome sense of the ridiculous, she would have been much more hurt than she was; for it was a truly absurd sight to see the little man trying to avoid the burning question, yet always coming back to it like a moth to a flame, beginning explanations

Returned to Work in a Week

Mr. P. M. Shannon Cured of Catarrh by one Single Treatment of "Father Morrissey's No. 24."

Dalhousie, N. B., Nov. 23, 1908.
FATHER MORRISSEY MEDICINE CO., LTD.

For three years I had suffered from Catarrh of the head until March, 1908, when I had to leave my work, then in single days after trying different medical cures, and two doctors who claimed there was no cure. One single treatment of Father Morrissey's No. 24 cured me, and I returned to work in a week after starting to take the treatment, and have never had so much as a cold in the head since.

P. M. SHANNON.

We have plenty of letters like this proving positively that "Father Morrissey's No. 24" Combined Treatment has cured hundreds of cases of Catarrh, generally after other treatments failed. Why shouldn't it cure you? It is just to yourself give it a trial. Combined Treatment (Tablets and Syrup) At your Dealer's, or from Father Morrissey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N. B.

Using Purgatives Injures the Health.

In the Spring a Tonic is Needed—But Not Harsh, Drastring Medicines.

A spring medicine is an actual necessity to most people. Nature demands it as an aid in carrying off the impurities that have accumulated in the blood during the indoor life of winter months. But unfortunately thousands of people who recognize the necessity for a spring medicine do not know what is best to take and dose themselves with harsh, gripping purgatives. This is a serious mistake. Ask any doctor and he will tell you that the use of purgative medicine weakens the system but does not cure disease. In the spring the system needs building up—purgatives cannot do this; they weaken you still more. The blood should be made rich, red and pure—no purgative can do this. What is needed in the spring is a tonic, and the best tonic medical science has yet discovered is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine actually makes new, rich blood. This new blood strengthens every organ, every nerve, and every part of the body. This is why they cure headaches and backaches, rheumatism and neuralgia, and a host of other troubles that come from poor watery blood. That is why men and women who take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills eat well and sleep well, and feel bright, active and strong. If you need a medicine this spring try this great restorative tonic, and see the new life, new health and new strength it will put into you. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hospital for Cats.

In one of the local papers the other day appeared an appeal for unfortunate "tabbies," in which a suggestion was seriously made that an hospital be established to take care of unfortunate felines. The spirit of mercy which takes in even a one-eyed, bob-tailed cat is not to be despised, but so long as there are so many unfortunate unneared for children awaiting the good offices of those who have sympathy to spare this sort of sentiment must seem maudlin. One of the things so difficult to understand in human nature is that men and women without families will expend upon dogs and cats affection and pains that would not only go a long way towards making the world brighter for some child, but would bring themselves a return that they can hardly estimate. Even maimed cats have a way of caring for themselves, but children die of love happens them through want of love.—Canadian Home Journal.

Nothing in the way of a Cough is quite so annoying as a tickling, teasing, wheezing, hoarse-sounding Cough. The quickest relief comes perhaps from a prescription known to Druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And besides, it is so thoroughly harmless that mothers give it with perfect safety even to the youngest babes. The tender leaves of a simple mountain shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its remarkable curative effect. A few days' rest will tell. Sold by A. V. Rand.

Two Kinds of Girls.

There are two kinds of girls. One is the kind that appears best abroad—the girls that are good for parties, rides, visits, etc., whose chief delight is in such things. The other is the kind that appears best at home—the girls that are useful and cheerful in the dining room, the sick room, and all the duties of home. They differ widely in character. One is often a torment at home, the other a blessing. One is a moth, consuming everything about her—the other is a sunbeam, inspiring light and gladness all around her pathway. The right kind of education will modify both and unite their good qualities.

To Remain Well Eat Heartily.

Statistics have shown the great value of abundant food. Dr. J. Robertson, an eminent surgeon of Manchester, England, has remarked that the families of working people, when well fed, maintain their health surprisingly, even while living in cellars. And he observed that during four years of prosperity the number of fewer cases admitted to the Manchester House of Recovery were 421 per annum, while in two pinching years 1,206 cases per annum were admitted.

The ultimate effect of curtailing the food supply is to weaken the stomach so that it cannot digest what it once could easily. Thus the source from which our energy is derived is weakened to our great detriment. Now, as a man is really no stronger than his stomach, and as 'good digestion waits on appetite and health on both,' should we not rather seek to strengthen the stomach by giving it exercise than to enfeeble it by dieting? I think we should and I think that persons with common sense will find it important to cultivate charms that are not merely exterior appearances. Hands that are ugly to the sight can be taught to move gracefully. Eyes that are small and colorless can shine with sweetness and humor. Lips that are not cupid bows can speak gentle words. When the brain is bright and the heart is big, beauty cannot be very far away. These facts are the chief consolation of the woman whose mirror does not reflect a vision of loveliness.

Fortify now against the Grip—for it comes every season sore! Prevention—the little Canby Cold Cure Tablets—offer in this respect a most certain and dependable safeguard. Prevents, at the "meese stage" will, as well, also surely head off all common colds. But promptness is all-important. Keep Prevention in the pocket or purse, for instant use. Box of 48 for 25c. Sold by A. V. Rand.

Two men met on the street. They hadn't seen each other for months. One of them had a wife who occasionally figured in the society columns. After they had exchanged views on things in general, the other man asked him: "Is your wife entertaining this winter?" "Not very," said he.

Mental and Physical Beauty.

If one considers merely features and figures, there are few beautiful women. For that reason alone it is vitally important to cultivate charms that are not merely exterior appearances. Hands that are ugly to the sight can be taught to move gracefully. Eyes that are small and colorless can shine with sweetness and humor. Lips that are not cupid bows can speak gentle words. When the brain is bright and the heart is big, beauty cannot be very far away. These facts are the chief consolation of the woman whose mirror does not reflect a vision of loveliness.
