

that House and out of it, so long as their acts were promotive of the public good.

Mr. MARCH "came out strong" against the present Ministry and its measures, for "his heart," he said, "groaned within him as he stood upon the floor of that House, under the conviction that a more corrupt, more despotic, or more tyrannical Government than this could not be found under the canopy of Heaven.

Mr. HOSKIN replied in similar style and tone, exonerating the Government from all blame, and dwelling emphatically on the beneficial measures which he maintained they had effected.

Mr. LITTLE in an able speech entered into a defence of the whole course of the proceedings of the Government, adducing statistics to shew the large increase of the revenue in the past year over that of any former year, as also of the exports imports and shipping; arguing from these and other similar statements which he quoted that the Country was in a far more prosperous, and still improving condition under the operation of Free Trade and the other measures of the present Government than it had ever been while under the former system; and concluding with a challenge for the fullest investigation and the closest scrutiny into their accounts of the several departments, and the public expenditure and the general course the Government had pursued.

Mr. HOYLES replied in a lengthened and able speech, marked by the most biting sarcasm, cutting irony, and close argument, maintaining that the very statements which the Attorney General had put forth to prove the good management of the Government and the improved condition of the Revenue, the Trade and the Country generally themselves constituted the clearest and the strongest evidence in support of a directly opposite position.

Mr. KENT followed next, but as we were compelled to leave just as he began, we had to forego the pleasure which his speech might have afforded us, and have it not within our power to gratify the public with its perusal.

Thus it will be seen that the good advice we offered has not been accepted or acted upon, and that instead of entering unanimously on the discharge of their legislative duties with a single eye to the promotion of the public good, the parties in the House of Assembly have commenced the present Session in hostile array to each other presenting the prospect of a winter-campaign as fierce as lengthy and it is to be feared as disgraceful as any which have yet preceded it. What a pity it is there are not loaves and fishes enough for—all.

The notice which we this day publish of a meeting of the Harbour Grace Branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society is one which calls emphatically upon the Christian not only to countenance, but to yield to this noble Society his hearty cooperation and support.

Whilst so much is being done in the parent Country, Newfoundland should not be behind hand in works of christian duty and philanthropy; we trust therefore that the example and exertions of the good, elsewhere and amongst us for such purposes, will be attended with abundant success.

This Company added about £20,000 to its permanent capital, for the increased protection of its Insurers. This step distinctly shows that the Company has always acted upon the principle enunciated by one of the directors at the last Annual Meeting of the proprietors—that the interests of the assured have a paramount claim on the directors—a claim superior even to that of the shareholders themselves.

From that moment, as might be expected, the Company attained the highest elevation throughout the country, and has retained it ever since. The result is shown in the unexampled fact that its Fire Revenue alone rose in about five years from little more than £20,000 to about £130,000!

A further cause of this rapid growth lies somewhat more below the surface, but is yet of importance. From inquiry we learn that no fire office possessing half the above revenue annually deposits its accounts with the Registrar-general.

The resources and balance-sheet of this great Company are, on the contrary, annually registered, and unmistakable evidence is thus given periodically of its capacity to meet its engagements.—Morning Herald, December 26, 1855.

Indeed, the bonus of the Royal may be pronounced to be larger than any yet declared by the mass of the English Offices. Here is an office which yields a fairly earned and wholesome reversionary bonus of 60 per centum in its Life Branch, and in regard to fire operations, can make this very enviable boast, that it has exceeded the Fire business of all but two of the London Fire offices—viz.: the receipt of nearly £130,000 per year in Fire premiums alone—some of which ancient offices have been in existence for a century! Equally successful and singular in both departments. Indeed, the Life Department may be said to present results equally worthy of mention.—Morning Chronicle, November 28, 1855.
