VOL. XLVII, No. 42

Synopsis of Canadian North West Land Regulations

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and who has since continued to be a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency in certain districts. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duration—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and or at a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm labourers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers, who have served overseas and have been honourably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agency Office (not at Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

Your Soldier Boy Wants

HICKEY'S TWIST

No matter where he is, or what other tobacco he can get, the Island soldier who chews tobacco is never satisfied with anything but HICKEY'S TWIST.

In hundreds of letters from the boys in Flanders, France England and the training camps, they ask for HICKEY'S TWIST—and the 10th took along 20,000 figs with them.

Send your soldier boy a pound of HICKEY'S with the next parcel.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD

A Sixteenth Birthday.

There is a long letter on Uncle Jack's desk, written by a girl who is proud of having reached her sixteenth birthday. Helen has many plans for the future, and Uncle Jack congratulates her on the good sense she shows in mopping up her work.

"There is just a little bit of discontent in Helen's letter because she did not get something she wanted very much for a birthday gift, but, as she says sensibly: "How can I expect to get things when living is so high, and money so needed on every side?"

Possibly Helen may be interested in the account of her sixteenth birthday that another girl gave, long ago. Her name was Margaret More, and she was the eldest daughter of Sir Thomas Moore. Margaret wrote on July 10, 1522:

"Sixteenth birthday. Father away, which made it sad. Mother gave me a pair of blue hosen with silk clocks; Mr. Gunnel, an ivory-handled stylus; Bess, a bookkin for my hair; Daisy, a bookmark; Mary, a saffron cake; Jack, a basket and Cecil, a nose-gay.

"William's present was fairest of all, but I am hurt with him and myself; for he offered it so queerly I refused it, and there's an end. 'Twas unmanly and unkind of me, and I've cried about it since.

"Father always gives us a birthday treat, so contrived that mother should take us to see my Lord Cardinal of York go to Westminster in state. We had a merry water-party; got good places and saw the show; cross-bearers, pillar-bearers, ushers and all, himself in crimson engrained satin and tippet of sable.

"Between dinner and supper we had a fine skirmish in the straits of Thermopylae. Mr. Gunnel headed the Persians and Will was Leonidas, with a swashing buckler and a helmet a yard high; but Mr. Gunnel gave him such a rap on the crest it went over the wall.

"After supper mother proposed a concert, and we were all singing around when, looking up, I saw father standing in the doorway with such a happy smile on his face. He was close behind Rupert and Daisy, who were singing from the same book, and advertised them of his coming by gently knocking their heads together; but I had the first kiss even before mother, because of my birthday.

Sacred Heart Review.
The Music School.

"Oh, dear," fretted Isabel, "it seems as if something were wrong with this hour-glass. I'm sure that I've practised more than an hour now."

Aunt Alice looked at her with a little smile. Aunt Alice was a graduate of a large musical conservatory and since her graduation she had been giving a number of hours each week, to the Music School Settlement. Though she did not say a word, Isabel was sure there was a suggestion of criticism behind her smile.

"If I could play the way you do Aunt Alice," she exclaimed, "I shouldn't mind practising. But these old finger exercises are the worst bore."

"I were only thinking," said Aunt Alice thoughtfully, "how differently you look at it from some of our pupils. What would you think of practising on a kitchen table?"

"On a table repeated Isabel, in a tone indicating perplexity. "You don't mean music?"

"Yes I do. One of our boys works in a bakery all day, and has no piano, but he was very ambitious to learn music. He was sent off the edge of the kitchen table to represent keys, and every night he set up his music in front of him, and practised. Of course, he did not make as rapid progress as if he had a piano, and when at last some one found out what he was doing, arrangements were made so that he could practise on a

Venerable Relics of World

The feast of the Dedication of the Basilicas of St. Peter and Paul was observed in St. Peter's with special ceremonies last year. Prior to 1870, the Pope assisted at the Mass, after which, as well as after Vespers, the great relics were shown to the people from the elevated balcony overhanging the colossal statue of Saint Veronica, at the left of high altar.

These relics are, in all probability, the most venerable in Christendom. Two of them are mentioned in the New Testament, in the relation of Our Lord's Passion and Death. These are the lance with which His side was pierced when He had died; a considerable portion of the Cross on which He suffered, and the "Voeto Santo" or Holy Face—His image, which was impressed on the cloth presented to Him by Saint Veronica, with which to wipe His face, covered with sweat and blood, while He was carrying the Cross on the way to Calvary.

This is regarded as the first of the pictures made of our Saviour. There is another, however, which shows Him at an earlier period of life, though it comes into traditional history at a somewhat later period. This is the mirulously executed picture of Christ of the earlier period.

When he was told about it, he was the happiest boy ever saw. But I don't know that his practising on the kitchen table was any more remarkable than the scheme another of our pupils has tried successfully. He is an errand boy and he does his practising when going on errands."

"Do you mean he stops at houses and gets people to let him use their pianos?" demanded Isabel.

"Hardly that," laughed Aunt Alice. "His employer would be likely to object to that, you see. No, Jacob is a violinist and he walks along the street, or rides in the street cars, he practises finger movements for the violin. His fingers are remarkably strong and supple on that account, and he is making fine progress. But after all, I am no prouder of him than some of my boys who will never make very proficient musicians, like Julius for instance."

"Who is Julius?" questioned Isabel who was finding the story of Aunt Alice's settlement pupils extremely interesting.

"Well, Julius is a boy who has lost one of the fingers of his left hand. Of course, he can never make a really expert player. I hesitated to take him, but he seemed so in earnest and it was so evident that he loved music that I consented. And I'm more glad than I can say. For though Julius has only seven fingers and his two thumbs, he plays better than many who have the full number. And he takes such satisfaction in it that it is a real pleasure to help him."

"Haven't you any girls who do things?" demanded Isabel, in a tone suggesting that she felt her sex was being slighted.

"One of my pupils is a girl who works in a five and ten cent store. I complimented her the other day upon her reading music, and she told me that she always has some music with her when she comes to work in the morning, and goes home at night. She has a rather long street-car ride and she keeps the music before her reading it as one would read a newspaper. All my pupils at the settlement have a great deal against them but their courage and industry make up for their handicaps. I am very proud of them."

Aunt Alice glanced towards the hour-glass and shook her head. "Dear me! I didn't mean to talk so long. It's a pity to have interrupted your practise."

Isabel reversed the hour-glass. "Aunt Alice," she said, "I'm going to practise another hour and practise differently. You'll find that you didn't do any harm when you interrupted my practise."

The native Catholic population of Alaska numbers 11,500, all descended from converts or converts themselves. Russians, going in as traders, first carried the faith there. These were of the Orthodox Greek or Schismatical Church. However, the Catholic missionaries going in, conversions soon multiplied. The work was done chiefly by the Jesuits, who now have twenty-two priests and their lay Brothers there.

"Pa, what's phonetic spelling?" "It's a way of spelling that I often got whipt for when I was your age."

HALF THE ILLS OF LIFE ARE CAUSED BY CONSTIPATION.

When the bowels become constipated, the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, sourness of the stomach, belching of wind, heartburn, water brash, biliousness, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They will clear away all the effete and poisonous matter which has collected in the system; give you a free, easy and natural motion of the bowels every day, start the sluggish liver working, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract.

Mrs. Jos. Labrec, Louise Apts., Calgary, Alta., writes: "I have been troubled with constipation for the last two years. I have tried numerous treatments, but have never been relieved by anything until I used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, which are helping me wonderfully."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are for sale by all druggists and grocers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

An interesting account of the administration of the Sacrament of Confirmation to eighteen American soldiers in France is given by Rev. Henry A. Norman of the 59th Art. C. A. C. All the men are members of the regiment of which Father Norman is chaplain. Bishop Quillet of Limoges officiated at the ceremony in the parish church at Aix, which was crowded for the occasion with officers, soldiers and the resident population. The people of the place assisted at the function in order to show their recognition of the efforts of our faithful allies, who have been the object of our sincere admiration for months, because of their military discipline, correct deportment and religious and patriotic spirit.
