IN THE YEAR 1932

how much will you have accumulated at your present rate of saving? Most men will have little or nothing saved if conditions are at all similar to those of to-day.

Every provident young man appreciates the wisdom of accumulating for his own benefit at least, and looks forward to an old age of comfort and enjoyment relieved from want and worry. And every thoughtful man endowed with manhood feels that a duty rests upon him to make some provision for others dependent upon him.

The safest, simplest and most profitable way to accomplish all this, and to be sure of a snug competency by the year 1932, is by investing in a Canada Life Endowment Policy for $5,000 or $10,000, according to your means and requirements. The policy can be bought on easy instalments and facilities are provided to assist in carrying and enjoying the insurance.

Send in your name and age and let us submit to you a good proposition.

CHAPTER I.

Before the Bridal.

It was late, and the animals and farm people were all asleep. Ordinarily Lil would have been much too frightened to venture alone into the darkness of the barns and cattle houses, but she pushed on now with a strange resolution till she reached the paddock, round one side of which there was a wall with some sheds attached to it. Panting a little, the bride of the morrow crept under one of these sheds, and felt and found a disused trough turned bottom upward.

Kneeling beside this, Lil slipped her hand underneath it and brought out a packet of letters.

She gave a sharp sigh as she did so.

"It was a good place," she said to herself, "for no corner in the house has been safe these last few days, with Beth poking and prying into everything. Now I must be quick. I can't breathe easily till these wretched things are out of the way."

She piled the letters in a heap, and, taking a box of matches from the same hiding place, she struck a light and held it to the mass of papers. She felt assured that she was unobserved, let her breath come quickly and uncertainly, and she peered here and there with a frightened air.

"If someone should come," she said to herself, "I—I must pretend something. If I had not kept these stupid letters. How long they take to burn. They will be coming to find me if I don't make haste!"

She stirred the embers and fanned the flame.

"I must have made a mistake," she said, a moment or two later, as the small bonfire blazed away. "It could not have been Basil whom I saw driving past when we were at dinner. How could it be Basil? He is too far away; and then—he must have had that letter by now." Then Lillian Forsyth trembled. "Suppose he should come! Suppose he—he will not be dismissed. Oh! a little cry escaped her lips. "If to-morrow were only here! I shall not breathe easily till we are married and Henry has taken me away."

Unable to Work for 14 Months

Mr. Henry Black.

What a helpless mass of flesh and bone the human body is, once the nerves become exhausted. Extreme weakness comes over you, and you lose control of the limbs. The next step is paralysis.

You will be fortunate if, like Mr. Black, you get the building-up process in action before it is forever too late. By forming new, rich blood Dr. Chase's Nerve Food carries new vigor and energy to every organ and every member of the human body.

Mr. Henry Black, 81 St. Catherine Street, Montreal, Que., writes:—"The wonderful results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food constrain me to write this letter in order that others who suffer from nervous exhaustion and weakness may use this medicine with equal satisfactory results. As the result of overwork I became completely exhausted, and was unable to work for fourteen months. As I am the father of a family, these were sad days for me but after I had used six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I had improved so greatly that I continued the treatment until I was completely restored to health and strength. I now work twelve to fifteen hours a day, and keep in excellent health."

MRS. WILKES' BLESSING

Her Dearest Hopes Realized—Health, Happiness and Baby.

Plattsburg, Miss.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved very beneficial to me, for now I am well and have a sweet, healthy baby, and our home is happy."

"I was an invalid from nervous prostration, indigestion and female troubles."

"I think I suffered every pain a woman could before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I think it saved this baby's life, as I lost my first one."

"My health has been very good ever since, and I praise your medicine to all my friends."—Mrs. VERNIA WILKES, R. F. D. No. 1, Plattsburg, Miss.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and lonely old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ed on through the dew-drenched grass, chattering on many subjects, but Mrs. Griffin noticed how much it cost Elizabeth to comport herself so calmly.

She was making a brave effort, but her voice had none of its usual music.

The woman beside her suddenly stopped in their saunter and put her hand on Elizabeth's arm.

"Dear child," she said, "don't! I can see that you are, to use a stock phrase, about to break your heart, and it is so foolish of you!"

"Oh, Ellen! I must be sad to-night," Elizabeth said, and her voice broke, "and you know what Lil is to me! She has never been a sister in the ordinary sense of the word; she has been my child—my—my very own. You, who have known what it means to lose something precious out of your life, be—be gentle with me to-night."

They walked on through the long dew-drenched grass, and Ellen Griffin set her lips firmly, and shut away words which her just and impetuous spirit had longed to speak many a time, but never more eagerly than now.

"Well," she said, "your love ought to be content in one sense, for the man who has chosen her is one of the best of God's creatures."

"I know that," Beth said, eagerly, "still the mere fact of Lil's marriage means so much to me. She is such a child, so sweet, so pure, so innocent."

Mrs. Griffin shut her lips still more firmly, and they walked in silence a while. When they reached the hedge that marked the limit of the orchard, she peered over.

"Is this the disputed bit of land?" she asked.

Elizabeth nodded her head.

"Yes, as you see, it is untouched. The case remained where it was when old Barostan died, and all his affairs were thrown into chancery; and just think how many years ago it first started, Ellen. I never could understand why my father took the hard attitude he did in that matter. He was the gentlest man in the world, except where the Barostans were concerned, and then he seemed to be another creature."

"Oh," said Mrs. Griffin, "there is an old story attached to that. You have never been enlightened on that point, but one of these days I will tell you what the story was. It is a pity you cannot use this land; it ought to be cultivated. Have you ever tried coming to terms with young Barostan?"

Elizabeth turned and drew Mrs. Griffin's arm through hers.

"Indeed, no," she said, almost haughtily, "I should be very sorry to have anything to do with him. David Barostan is the most detestably rude creature you can imagine. And yet he is not uninteresting in his way," she added; "there is something picturesque about him."

"He gets them from his mother," said Mrs. Griffin, as they paced back between the apple trees. "By the way Beth, I was reading something about a Barostan in a paper the other day. Are there two brothers?"

"Yes," said Elizabeth, "the younger brother, Basil, is a musician, and is studying in Germany, I believe. The Warminster people took him up and declared him to be a genius. But we must go back now, Ellen, dear; it is getting late. I don't know why it is," Beth added, restlessly, as they retraced their steps, "but I always dislike speaking about the Barostans. It is ridiculous, of course—don't laugh at me, please—but the very name seems to signify bad luck to me."

"I shall not laugh," said Mrs. Griffin calmly. "I am a great believer in luck—good and bad."

Lillian was standing by the window to greet them when they reached the house.

"Where have you been, Beth?" she asked, plaintively. "It is ever so late, and Henry is just going. I tried to find you, but could not see you anywhere. And, Beth, something horrid has happened; Lord Ottershaw cannot come to-morrow. I am so disappointed."

Police Saves Seven From Fire

Crowds cheer when a family swing across gap to adjoining fire escape.

New York, Oct. 20.—Through clouds of dense smoke two policemen yesterday brought a man, his wife, his mother and four children down the fire escape of 148 Madison Street to the third floor, where they were barred by flames. Then, while a crowd cheered, they swung all seven across a gap to the fire escape of the adjoining building, six feet lower, and passed all seven from a cornice over a butcher shop to the street.

A few minutes before this the policemen, Glennon and Miller, had calmed a panic among two hundred worshippers in a synagogue on the third floor and got everybody out in safety.

The fire started in the basement of the four-story brick building, Isidori Jablins occupies the basement and first floor as a Turkish bath establishment. The second floor is vacant, the third is the synagogue of the neighborhood, and the fourth was the home of Morris Weingarten, thirty-nine years old, and his wife, Miriam, 30; his mother, Rebecca, 60, and his children, from two to 8 years old.

Hurrying to the spot on hearing a chorus of shrieks and cries, Miller and Glennon found the flames making good headway, while the stairways, narrow and dark, were choked with terrorized worshippers. Several persons were trampled on before the policeman gained the upper hand, but no one was badly hurt.

When all were out the cry went up that a family was still on the top floor. Unhesitatingly plunging up the smoky stairways, the two policemen found all seven of the Weingartens either asleep or semiconscious from smoke in their beds.

They dragged them to a front window and began to carry them down the fire escapes. They brought all to the third floor, but the flames prevented their descending further. The fire escape of No. 150 was six feet below.

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $2.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup—enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take—children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pinex is one of the oldest and best-known remedial agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrate of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in gualic acid and other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of people who explain why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully. Money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

low where they were standing. Glennon jumped and landed safely, while the crowd held its garters across, tossing them into the arms of his comrade. The grandmother and one of the children were invalids. Then the party was carried to a cornice on the second floor. Glennon dropped to the street and received again the still only half-conscious family from Miller.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 28.

The Minister of War, Nazim Pasha, who has reached the scene of operations at last, telegraphs that he is well satisfied with the position of the Turkish forces and expects a decisive battle soon. He says that the Bulgarian Army sustained such severe losses in the battle last Wednesday that they were unable to reform and resume offensive operations. On the other hand, he adds, the Turkish forces have gained strength and numbers and await with confidence the Bulgarian attack. Helmi Bey, who commanded a division at Kirk Killisseh, and is credited with inflicting heavy losses on the Bulgarians, has been promoted to Brigadier General. Nazim Pasha studied in the Military School of St. Cyr, France. For a long time he was exiled by the late Sultan, Abdul Hamid, and is now one of the most popular and trusted of the supporters of the Young Turk regime.

On Second Thought.

BY JAY E. HOUSE.

Some women have children and others only theories as to how children should be reared.

They tell this story on Jasper Ellington, a well known and prominent drunkard. They say Mr. Ellington, who gave $2,000 to his wife's church five years ago, have never since been sober enough to realize his benevolence.

There is a quarrel in nearly every family and, as a general thing, it is about money.

A boy often gets the worst of it. In a good many instances he affords his father the only opportunity the latter ever has to show his authority.

When a man feels he is through with women he should stay away from them. If he exposes himself he is pretty sure to be infected a second time.

Locating the woman is the basis of all successful detective work.

Nearly every girl is left handed for a while after her engagement is announced.

Those who insist on sitting in the reserved seats always have to pay a little more than the accommodation is worth.

When people desire to praise a step-mother they say, "She treats his children as well as if they were her own."

The man who invented crenas lemonade is dead. But most of those who drank it were saved by the doctors.
