Earl Kitchener's
Statesmanlike Speech.

Earl Kitchener in the House of Lords yesterday delivered his first speech as Secretary for War. In opening he re-affirmed what the Prime Minister had already announced in the House of Commons, that he had no party affiliation and that he was serving for the war, just as the humblest volunteer in the army, or so long as time and circumstances showed it might be advisable to put some one else in his place. He was able to pay a soldier-like tribute to the British soldiers in the field who had already withstood for thirty-six hours the fierce attacks of superior numbers of Germans. British soldiers had held their own in a position of stress and difficulties, behaved with splendid gallantry, upheld the best traditions of the service, and the commanders had shown skill which he commended. The words of praise from a man so experienced in war and so exacting of service as Kitchener will not only stir the blood of our men fighting at the front, but will only stiffen their bull dog determination to hold their own, but they will thrill the Empire and stimulate the Dominions to greater eagerness to do their part. Kitchener tells us that hundreds of thousands have responded to the call to join the colours. Seventy battalions of Territorials have already volunteered for service abroad. These seventy thousand men had only been serving for home defence, but they have determined to live up to more than their bond and to offer greater services than they were bound to do. All this is inspiring. But Kitchener is prudent. He does not intend to send battalions to the front untrained to do their part in brigade and divisional movements. He intends to hasten the training to execute the greater movements with the skill and steadfastness which the British Expeditionary forces are showing in their splendid way in and around Mons before he will trust them on the field. The objective at which Kitchener is aiming is to have and keep at full strength, in spite of losses and reverses, some twenty divisions in the field, or some 500,000 men, within six months.

Kitchener talks plainly and to the point. Heavy casualties must ensue. The Empire at large will be called upon to strain every nerve and every resource to meet the necessities of the war. He points out that Germany has practically every man under arms. She is utilizing her full resources now and she has no untapped resources to call upon. What she can do, she must do now, whereas the British Empire is untapped and to win out every man must do his duty. All this is more assuring than appeared at the first blush of the bad news of yesterday. If only the allies can hold their own for a time, and the British stand must have a stiffening effect on our allies, and time be gained to allow the Russians and the British to do their share, the future will be safe. Our spirit must be that of the British bulldog; "Hold on and Hold Fast." Britons hold your own as the British bulldogs are doing at the front.

One of the greatest war scenes ever filmed is to be shown at Rossley's to-day: "The Drummer of the 8th," a stirring sight that gives one a greater insight into the horrors of war than all reading could ever do; it is in two full reels of two thousand feet and every foot of film is action. RUSSIANS ADVANCING ON GERMAN AND AUSTRIA.

Special to Evening Telegram.

A St. Petersburg despatch to the Morning Post, says it is expected another important battle will be fought on the Russo-German frontier on Thursday. It is known, says the despatch, that the Russian army is advancing on the whole front with the Germans retreating before it. The Russians are penetrating Galloia, in considerable force. Apparently Russia is prepared to wage quite a separate war in this region, the operations centering in the Kiev Military District. The full significance of the Polish autonomy proclamation is thus becoming clear. The task of this new Russian army is evidently to invade and occupy the country up to the Carpathians, an admirable natural frontier.

His Grace the Archbishop at Placentia

On Saturday, 22nd inst., His Grace, accompanied by Mgr. St. John and Father Sheehan, went on an episcopal visitation to Placentia. The object of the archiepiscopal visitation was twofold, viz., to celebrate the Golden Jubilee or fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Convent schools in the Ancient Capital, and preside at the reception of a postulant into the Novitiate of the Convent. Early Masses were said on Sunday morning in the parish church and in the Convent chapel. At 10.30 a.m. a solemn "Missa Cantata coram Pontifice" was sung by the Rev. Father Sheehan. His Grace occupied the Throne and was assisted by the two Monsignori, Reardon and St. John, vested in their purple robes as Prelates of the Roman Court, giving a very impressive effect to the function. The music was of a very high order. Sister Gerard presided at the organ.

After the Gospel His Grace addressed the people. He spoke in terms of deep sorrow of the death of our dear and saintly Holy Father, the late Pope, whom he, the Archbishop, had seen so recently during his visit to Rome and whose Blessing he would impart to them at the close of this function. He spoke also of the dreadful war now raging in Europe, and exhorted the congregation to prayer and confidence in God, to whom the Church appeals in the Mass to be said in time of war: "O God who crushest wars and fightest for thy soldiers who put their trust in thee, by the power of thy defence; help, we beseech thee, thy servants who implore thy mercy; that the fierceness of the enemy being brought low, we may praise thee with increasing thanks. O God, the ruler of all kingdoms and kings, who by striking healest and by pardoning preservest, extend to us thy mercy that enjoying the tranquillity of peace through thy power we may use it as a means of amendment."

At 3 p.m. a large congregation again assembled in the church to witness the beautiful and imposing ceremony of the reception of a postulant into the Novitiate of the Presentation Order of Nuns. The Very Rev. Parish Priest of Argentia, Father Ashley, was present, accompanied by several members of his flock. The novice who received the veil and habit on this occasion was Miss Power of Harbor Grace, who took in religion the name of Sister Teresa of the little Flower of Jesus.

During the progress of the function His Grace addressed the postulant in a few fervent and touching words. It was by a happy coincidence that the Convent was celebrating this day the Jubilee of its foundation on August 23rd, 1864, by the venerable Bishop Mullock of sacred memory. The festival was shorn of much of its joy and gladness by the fact of the death of our Holy Father, Pope Pius X, which prevented the outburst of demonstration which would otherwise have marked the joyous occasion. He then went on to speak of the sanctity and exalted state of the Religious Life to which the newly received postulant was called.

His Grace imparted the Papal Blessing and the sacred function concluded with Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament.—Com.
