

"Something Regional is happening. There are new relationships between European Canadians and Aboriginal Peoples in land claims, and self government. This is an exciting time of looking for options, based on a new value system, a new idea of development. Humanity has an opportunity to do it right."

Sally Ross
President of Yukon College - White Horse

"...this is demonstrative of genuine efforts to democratize the foreign policy decision making process."

St. Mary's University Foreign Policy Students

"...in 1936...the culture the Inuit had evolved so carefully and so well, their economy was based on hunting and sharing, with social conditions governed by strict avoidance of any manifestation of anger or selfishness."

Graham Rowley
Northern Science Award - April 23, 1998

"The conditions under which he travelled and worked were primitive by today's standards, yet he had a wonderful vision for the future of the Arctic."

Doreen Larsen Riedel about her father,
