BRITAIN NOT BEG OR BUY HER SECURITY

Scale of Expenditures Must Depend on Foreign Countries, Says War Lord McKenna.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Expenditure on the navy, and the circumstances that govern its rise or fall, was the subject of an important statement made by Mr. McKenna, first lord of the admiralty, when addressing his constituents at Aberystwyth, North Monmouth.

The first lord said he felt justified in repeating what he told the house of commons last March, that if there was no fresh increase in foreign naval programs the tide of naval expenditure would not only cease to rise at the end of this year, but there would be an actual reduction in naval expenditure next year.

But now and always, the scale of our naval expenditures must depend on the scale adopted by foreign countries. Many people in this country denied the necessity of maintaining our fleets at their present standard, but they were profoundly mistaken, Mr. McKenna estimated of national requirements.

Peace, he went on to say, is not only the highest good, but it is the greatest material interest of the British Empire. "Situated as we are," he continued, "with our vast and varied overseas possessions, our significant foreign trade, and our unapproachable mercantile marine, we, at any rate, can gain nothing by war. But the cost of our war effort, which is not only a matter of money, but of time and time in contact—I will not say into conflict—with the aims, the hopes, the ambitions of other peoples. Nothing but the existence of a commanding fleet can safeguard us at all times, and under all circumstances, the freedom of the great high road of the sea, upon which our very existence depends.

"We cannot beg peace as a suppliant. We cannot buy peace. We can guarantee it only by our own exertions. There can be no enduring peace for the British Empire unless it be peace with honor."

CATTLE RAISING COSTLY

If Prices Are Not Reduced We May Lose English Market.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 21.—Unless the cattle raisers of Western Canada manage to reduce the necessary cost of raising cattle considerably, they may as well say good-bye to their English market. That is the opinion of W. S. Williamson, a leading cattle raiser in the cattle business for nearly half a century and who for many years looked after the English trade for the Canadian cattle raisers.

Mr. Williamson is permanent located at Liverpool. "There is not the slightest doubt," he said, "that the English market is the largest part of our export cattle trade to the other colonies and the South American republic. Argentina can send meat to England much cheaper than we are doing. As a result, our trade is falling off. We used to have from seven to nine thousand head of cattle a week on the Birkenhead Dock. During the last two years we have not had more than one or two thousand a week at Birkenhead."

GREAT FORTUNES OF THE OLD NEW YORK

New Tax Books Show Enormous Growth of Millionaire Class—Some Big Assessments.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—With the opening of the new tax books in New York City with assessments for 1912 city officials and thousands of wealthy citizens have engaged in what is considered one of the most difficult of all municipal problems—that of adjusting equitably the taxes on personal property. Typical of the growth of New York is the growth of the individual personal tax bill. Time was when every one knew the number of personal property taxes in the city when the pictures of those few enviable citizens were published in the newspapers as members of an exclusive club.

There were three estates assessed of more than $1,000,000 in 1911, and two individuals on the list for that sum. The William H. Vanderbilt estate was assessed for $3,000,000, the John B. Trevor estate for $2,000,000 and the Sidney Dillon estate for $1,500,000. William H. Vanderbilt's estate was assessed for $3,000,000, the John B. Trevor estate for $2,000,000 and the Sidney Dillon estate for $1,500,000.

In that year Russell Sage was assessed for $2,000,000 worth of personal property. On the new books Mrs. Russell Sage the widow of the famous financier, is assessed for $1,000,000, which is the high record of personal assessments.

Big Fortunes of the Past.

At the time of the consolidation of the city the tax rolls showed great fortunes as compared with the number now indicated. William Waldorf Astor was assessed in 1887 for $2,000,000; John Jacob Astor, $1,000,000; J. P. Morgan, $1,000,000; and Robert G. Goelet, $500,000.

John D. Rockefeller was down then for $300,000, and this year he is asked to pay $5,000,000 personal assessment. William Rockefeller was then assessed for $100,000, and now for $600,000. Russell Sage's name was charged with a $5,000,000 assessment.

Rockefeller's assessment has grown to $1,000,000 in 1912 and Mr. Carnegie's to $1,000,000.

Big Wall Street Power.

But the surprising feature of the new list is not this staggering wealth of the few, but the great number who are assessed for $100,000 or over $500,000. Each of these assessments must represent great fortunes. In fact, most of the assessments of millionaires are undoubtedly placed the taxpayers in the millionaire class, and of such there are a few names. Mr. J. P. Morgan's assessment for 1912 is $500,000, and Mr. Levi F. Morton's is $300,000.

There is still a tradition in the department concerning one of the world's chief financiers, personal assessment. This Wall-street power was assessed for $5,000,000. When he appeared to pay the tax he said he would give the bank $75,000,000 capital, about $20,000,000 or so worth of real estate, a like amount of bonds in steamship lines and many other securities. Under the terms of the agreement, the bank was to have each of these possessions was counted to offset his personal taxable wealth. His $5,000,000 or $5,000,000 worth of securities, art objects and other treasures, and his residences worth a few more millions, were almost nothing set against his great "debit" to the department. The result was that he was not compelled to pay any assessment.

Death of Boston Teacher Still Surrounded With Mystery.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 22.—In their efforts to clear up the circumstances of the death of Avis Linnell, the Hyannis Sunday School teacher and music student, who was murdered by the Rev. Clarence T. Richeson, who is charged with the murder, police have been unable thus far, it is said, to locate the poison receptacle.

When the girl took the dose of cyanide of potassium which caused her death, she was in the bathroom of the Young Women's Christian Association Home on Warren-st., and the the house was searched immediately after her death by order of the medical examiner and later by the police, the receptacle which had contained the poison was found, but it was found in a cup to drink, cannot be found.

Also there appeared to be a bit more of prayerful solemnity than usual in the morning worship at the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Cambridge, today was without reference of any kind to the plight of the congregation's pastor, Rev. V. T. Richeson, who is under arrest charged with the murder of Miss Avis Linnell. It has been reported that Mr. Richeson would resign his pastorate in a letter to some member of the church, to be read at the morning service, but no letter was forthcoming.

Runaway Victim Dead.

GODFREY, Oct. 22.—Mrs. W. Potts of Sefton, who was seriously injured in a runaway coach yesterday, succumbed to her injuries without regaining consciousness last evening. Besides suffering concussion of the brain she was otherwise seriously hurt. Mr. Potts, who was with her in the buggy when the accident occurred, will recover.

GERMANY'S GREAT FINANCIAL PROBLEM

Enormous Emigration of Capital From the Fatherland Engages Attention of Kaiser's Councils.

The recent big decline in C. P. R. which carried the stock of the premier Canadian security down from its high record of 247 to 218, if it did nothing else, brought the German investor well before the public eye.

It is somewhat of a far cry from the great Canadian transcontinental to the Berlin bourse or stock exchange, and yet it was largely
