The country will probably pay for its attitude toward Oriental labor by a slower development, but a large admixture of the yellow races is a heavy price for greater material progress.

WOMEN SWIM

Thousands Line River's Banks to View the Exciting Contest.

Paris, Aug. 15.—Thousands of people lined the banks of the Seine to see the great seven-mile swimming race in which the little English art sturent, Miss Herxheimer; the Australian, Miss Kellerman, and the Austrian, Miss Frauendorfer, were competitors. Thirteen men also took part, but they were mere incidentals in the eyes of the spectators.

The immense crowd cheered itself hoarse as the three ladies lined up on the pontoon at Brecy and threw off their white robes. Miss Kellerman was in black, her long hair streaming loose over her shoulders. She was eating the wing of a chicken. She ate three birds, by the way, during the course of the swim. Miss Frauendorfer who was in black also, had hidden her fair hair under a red rubber cap. Little Miss Herzheimer's plump pink face beamed at the crowd over a costume of dark blue. She is only18, and she looked a mere child beside the other two magnificently proportioned

Her curly black hair was tied up with a ribbon, but that disappeared with the first dive, and was carried off as a trophy by an enthusiast.

The three took the plunge together, and after Miss Kellerman had received another piece of chicken from her father, who rowed in a boat alongside, she took the lead. She and Miss Frauendorfer soon left Miss Herxheimer far behind. Indeed, it was apparent from the start that the child had no chance against the two expert women. But she pluckily swam the seven miles, and received a great ovation when she finished at Auteuil. Miss Kellerman and Miss Frauendorfer swam neck and neck all the way, Miss Kellerman finally beating her rival by six inches. They did the seven miles in a minute under the four hours, and were cheered to the echo when they came out of the water. Miss Kellerman got an extra round of applause for insisting on removing Miss Frauendorfer's red cap, arranging her hair "I suppose I'll have to put a good and kissing her before they climbed
