THE ROOT OF MUCH OF THE DIS-CONTENT.

People discussing the unusual conditions, political and economic, which prevail to-day, bring up as main factors the increased cost of living and the demand for an increase in wages question of equal or perhaps greater and the prospect of city competition. importance, and that is the part that watered stock and stock gambling play in the economic disturbances of call the official declaration that the to-day. If the watered stock were advent of Niagara electricity meant no squeezed out of all the great propositions that have been incorporated into companies, a lot of the money now set apart for dividends on said watered shares could be devoted to an increase in wages, and a reduction in the price of commodities, and especially the necessities of life. What Wall Street is fighting for as against remedial legislation is the right to continue this watering of stock, to cut melons in the interest of shareholders, to use the savings of the people of the United States for stock gambling and things of that kind. Take that one thing of stock gambling and things of that kind. Take that one thing of stock gambling in Wall Street; for a moment consider what it costs the people of the United States with the stock stable of the states what it costs the people of the United States with the states of the states ple of the United States for stock ported in yesterday's papers. They wanted to know what were the chances of selling out to the city. These chances grow decidedly less as the municipal system is nearing the delivery stage. The directors also broke the news, gently, of course, that a reduction in charges to customers would have to be made. Why? The company would always be ahead of the holders were assured that their company would always be ahead of the city, and the hydro-electric power service. Perhaps! It has long been apday and for figures and the men who controlled the company had, by their association with other concerns, an interest altogether different from that of the ordinary shareholder. For instance, those of them who were also in the Electrical Development would like to keep the Toronto Electric Light.
