DEATH DEALING CONTRIVANCES

Used in D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" Similar To "Tanks" of Modern Warfare

Those fearsome, great, wheeled contrivances with their death-dealing blasts of flame which are made use of in "Intolerance," the Griffith spectacle which comes to St. Andrew's Rink for a three day's engagement, starting on Thursday evening, October 18th, may be regarded as forerunners of the so-called "tanks" now being used by the Allies. Mr. Griffith derived into history and consulted many authorities so that the implements of warfare used in both the French and Babylonian scenes would be archaeologically correct. The armor worn by the warriors of Belshazzar and Cyrus is of metal, gold-plated and the tremendous swords wielded by those who are father to her home in Yarmouth. Three children, two boys and a girl, were placed in the Protestant Orphans' Home and two little boys were admitted to the epidemic hospital. One little girl went from the shelter to an excellent foster home in Kings county but another older girl had to be committed to the Maritime Home for Girls, Truro (N. S.). At the present time there are nine children in the shelter all enjoying excellent health.

Since the last monthly meeting of the board I made two trips out of the city and visited three of the wards of the society. It is encouraging to be able to report these are in excellent homes, are proving satisfactory in every way, and are contented and healthy.

A fire which is believed to have been set out by the fire apparatus in the rain last night to 128 Mill street. Michael Marcus coming home about nine o'clock smelt smoke. He noticed the kerosene lamp hanging in front of a storeroom was lighted. He went for water and on his return the lamp had been extinguished and the oil poured over the door as if to set it on fire. The flames were quickly put down and the fire was out when the fire department arrived.

foremost in the fight require Herculean strength. The manipulators of bow and arrow were trained archers and each bow and arrow is a duplicate of a weapon of the same sort used in the original contest between Cyrus and Belshazzar. The great towers that are pushed against the walls of Babylon are exact reproductions of the fighting towers of the ancients. In the Middle Ages story are utilized weapons that are appropriate to that time. These were copied from originals and from models in the British Museum and in the museums of France. The allegory near the close of the spectacle shows armament and munitions of today, soldiers in the clash of battle are represented and overhead may be seen gigantic warplanes guided by skilled aviators. Seat sale will open Monday morning at The Kodak Store, J. M. Roche & Co., Limited, 84-86 King street.

NEED HOSPITAL WING FOR CHILDREN'S AID

The monthly meeting of the board of management of the Children's Aid Society was held last night in the Shelter, Elliot row, the president, A. M. Belding, in the chair. It was announced that the new matron, Mrs. A. L. Peatman, would assume management November 5. In the course of a general discussion reference was made to the fact that nothing better can be done to mothers who neglect their children than send them to jail. Several members contended that legislation should be sought making it possible to commit such women to an institution where they would be compelled to do hard work.

Regarding the general work of the society last night's discussion showed that it will be seriously handicapped until it has a home large enough to provide a hospital wing.

Following is a summary of the agent's report:

"The work of the children's shelter during the past month has been carried on under some little difficulty but nevertheless a good deal has been accomplished. Five children were admitted of whom two were taken over from their parents who were breaking up house-keeping preparatory to leaving the city. These had to be placed in the General Public Hospital, one of them suffering from a form of skin disease; the other from anemia brought on by neglect. The other three children were put in the shelter Wednesday. The mother is in jail on remand. She has five children two of whom are being cared for by relatives. The three lads put in the shelter were insufficiently clad, filthy and verminous.

"One baby was taken from the shelter by its mother who accompanied her
