U. S. TROOPS IN ENGLAND TO COME HOME AT ONCE

London, Nov. 25.—It has been decided to clear England of American troops as soon as possible. Flying corps units, which came over in squadrons of hundreds, are being sent home as fast as shipping is available.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The first units of the American expeditionary forces to return from overseas are expected to reach New York the last of this week. General March, chief of staff, announced today that 382 officers, four nurses and 6,614 enlisted men left Liverpool last week on the liners Minnekahda, Lapland and Orea. The units, largely air squadrons, have been training in England.

This announcement means that the movement of the American troops now in England, the majority of whom are in air service detachments, will continue steadily until all of them, some 20,000, have returned to this country. There are no regular units of other units of line troops in Great Britain. The first movement of the larger units, such as brigades and divisions, will come from French ports. It is assumed, as the British cross channel service undoubtedly is completely occupied with the transportation of returning British forces.

MONCTON PREPARES TO WELCOME THE DUKE

Moncton, Nov. 26.—Moncton is preparing to tender a fitting reception to His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, the governor-general of Canada, who will visit the city on Dec. 5. His excellency will be here only an hour and three-quarters, arriving at 9.45 o'clock in the morning from St. John and leaving at 11.30 for Halifax. Details of the programme have not yet been worked out, but it is probable his excellency will be conveyed to the Aberdeen school grounds, where an address will be presented. If the weather should be inclement the proceedings will take place in the spacious assembly hall of the Aberdeen school building. The board of trade, Canadian Club and others are co-operating with the city council in plans for the reception.

WON COMMISSION AND MILITARY CROSS.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Jordan of North Esk Boom have received word that their son, Morrison Jordan, has won his commission and has been awarded the Military Cross. He went overseas with the 182nd Battalion and was transferred to the 25th Battalion. On Aug. 16, 1917, Lieutenant Jordan, then a sergeant-major, won the D. C. M. and later a bar to it. He has an excellent military record.

CROWDS FLOCK TO THE IMPERIAL

Scenic Comedy Drama, War Pictures, Drew Comedy, Animated Cartoon and Industrial Picture Please the Patrons

It was like old times in King square last evening to see a large number of people awaiting admission to the Imperial for the second show. Which all goes to prove that the lure of the movies and the decline to the vanishing point of the late unpopular malady is a combination that makes folks happy. "Happy" was truly the word yesterday at the Imperial for throughout the bill there were no tragic notes, no war-killing, no sex plays or shots.

The Vitagraph Company's brilliant little ingenue, Gladys Leslie, was the star of the bill in a refreshing story entitled "A Nymph of the Foothills" with the sweet-scented and daisy-decked fields of Virginia as the locale and simple farm-folk with a dash of civilized life as the human element. It was really a scenic picture, the announcement stated. Miss Leslie is a charming wee actress, very much of the type and manner of Mary Pickford and Mary Miles Minter, bidding fair to be equally famous very soon.

There were pictures of allied soldiers battling in the final stages of the late war on various fronts and a sojourn with a French whippet tank was most interesting. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew presented one of their inimitable smart comedies—real genuine fun without vulgarity—and Mutt & Jeff performed on the Kaiser's teeth as cannibals dentists. One of the best things in the whole bill was an industrial picture dealing with the manufacturing of rayons in the plant of Henry Birks & Sons, Montreal.

This same programme will be repeated today but tomorrow the great jungle film "Tarzan of the Apes" in eight reels will be commenced. This is a story that has caught America in its enthralling grasp and will doubtless be appreciated here too. Tarzan will be held over for the kiddies Saturday along with the re-commencement of their serial, "A Fight For Millions."

Forget all about the war. Revel in the jungle adventures of your youthful dreams. See a regular wild animal show with romance thrown in. Tarzan of the Apes at Imperial tomorrow and next day.

SEARCH DUTCH SHIPS AT HALIFAX FOR HUNS

New York, Nov. 25.—The 400 passengers on the Danish steamship Oscar II, which docked here on Saturday, were searched both at Halifax and at the entrance of this port. There was a suspicion that German refugees might be trying to get into America, and that some of the minor royal refugees from Germany might be on board in disguise.

REPORT OF MONCTON EMERGENCY HOSPITAL.

Moncton, Nov. 26.—The patients having been all removed from the First Baptist Emergency Hospital to the isolation hospital, the committee in charge has submitted its report to the church, showing that during the influenza epidemic twenty-seven patients were treated, most of them dangerously ill. Two of the patients died. The school rooms and class rooms were utilized for hospital purposes. The work was non-denominational. The following communications were represented: Anglicans, one; Presbyterians, two; Catholics, six; Methodists, seven; Baptists, eight. When this hospital was opened the city council offered financial assistance. Citizens, however, have contributed so generously, individually, the committee has not been obliged to take advantage of the civic offer of financial aid.

LIQUOR SOLD TO MEN IN UNIFORM

Effort to Be Made in New York City to Prevent Rowdiness on Coming New Year's Eve

New York, Nov. 26.—There is a growing sentiment in New York city that the scenes of disorder which were permitted to pass without official protest in hotels, restaurants and on the streets on the night the signing of the armistice was celebrated should not be allowed to be repeated on New Year's Eve. The celebration of New Year's Eve in this city has always, except during the war, been regarded as an excuse for what is called a "wide-open town." The armistice celebration surpassed even pre-war New Year's Eve celebrations in its excesses. The spectacle of an American soldier or sailor under the influence of liquor, a rare sight before Nov. 11, was a common one that night. Men in uniform in some cases swept through restaurants, gathering up whatever was left of drinkables on the tables, and shouting and singing. The law against serving intoxicants to men in uniform was a mere scrap of paper that night, torn up by the enthusiasm over the signing of the armistice.

Some of the hotel bars were lined two and three deep with American Army and Navy officers. Neither can the criticism be confined to American uniforms. Both officers and privates of the Allies were seen under the influence of liquor. The question has been raised as to where the police were in all this. There are two replies. One, that the police, because of the hugeness of the crowds, were unable to cope with the situation. The other, that they deliberately winked at it.

But those who call such celebration a disgrace to the city, as well as a disgrace to the uniform of soldiers and sailors, insist that the police can stop them, if they try; if those "higher up" among city officials want them to try. And the hope is expressed that public opinion will insist upon an official attempt at least to curb any repetition, on New Year's Eve, of the unnecessary disorders, the seemingly malicious wrongdoing, which marred the armistice celebration.
