THE FOOTBALL OUTLOOK
IN BRITAIN DISCUSSED

Our Edinburgh correspondent writes that the question of parliamentary interference with the class of football proposed to be played in Scotland during the coming season is set at rest. Mr. Hogge, M. P., for East Edinburgh, who is fully conversant with the circumstances of the game in Scotland and with the resolutions of the Scottish league that they should proceed with league football on Saturdays and public holidays, restricting the payments to professionals to one pound per match, and insisting that every professional should follow some other occupation in response to a suggestion from Edinburgh, laid the circumstances before Mr. Tennant, under secretary of state for war, and that gentleman has replied to Mr. Hogge to the effect that after careful consideration he has come to the conclusion that nothing more can be done with regard to Scottish league football, and that it is better to let the matter rest where it is.

The management committee of the football league held a meeting in Liverpool to appoint referees, etc. Afterwards the committee was entertained to dinner by the Everton football club. W. R. Clayton, in proposing the toast of the League Committee, said: "Today, according to some critics, we ought to be interested. I believe that football is a great institution and is a benefit to mankind. Football has and will provide mental and physical rest for the worker. If football was ever necessary it was necessary now when workers required recreation at the week-end." Mr. Clayton paid a tribute to the work and the organization of the league management committee.

Mr. McKenna, in replying, mentioned the trade of abuse that football had gone through and said: "We still declare that it is in the interests of the country that football should go on—without compulsion of clubs and without paid players." There had been a suggestion, Mr. McKenna went on, that illegal payments would be made by clubs to players. He honestly did not believe that any such thing would happen, and if by any means it should be he hoped the perpetrators would be immediately put out of football for all time.—London Sportsman.

There is such a difference of opinion among the fans relative to the decision in the Ted Lewis-Jack Britton bout at the Atlas A. A. Tuesday night, that the club will probably match the pair for another meeting the latter part of this month.

Tex O'Rourke, who helped to train

Welter and Savage, who boxed in New York Tuesday night, got more money for their work than they ever did before out of one bout. Welter drew down $2,780 and Savage $2,316. Johnny Dundee and Johnny Griffiths will meet in New York Thanksgiving Day.

Joe Choyanski, veteran heavyweight, is tipping his friends that Packey McFarland will knock out Mike Gibbons. Choyanski can get a lot of good bets if he wagers that way.
