

THE COMIC SECTION

PERHAPS it's due to civilization (or "one well-known source usually puts it), that melancholy fact remains, sees more and more compelled, because of ill in cold rooms—out of doors if not, in rooms made every window open to the street.

Usually, at first, when was resorted to, it was a tendency to consumption, some lung or throat trouble, lately, the great value of matter how bitter cold medicine for almost all has come to be a recommendation of the medical world. As children who are run down, who have grown slender strength, or who breaking down from stress often made to sleep in cold rooms.

When they do sleep under these conditions, it is of the utmost importance that the beds be made up so that there is no danger of draught coming through, and the covers be fastened securely—the covers being fastened in the morning cold when a restlessness to get the covers off is too great to be resisted.
