

early seventies, and was accountant there for some yrs. Transferred to the head office, Quebec, he was chosen to succeed P. McEwen as cashier of the bank, on the latter's retirement, 1885. Mr. W. is a mem. of the Anglican Ch. He m. 188-, Belle, dau. of the late W. G. Perley, M.P., Ottawa.—16 St. Denis Ave., Quebec; Quebec Garrison Club.

WEBSTER, David, M.D., is the s. of Asael Webster, by his wife, Hephzibah Pearson, and was b. in Cambridge, Cornwallis, N.S., July 16, 1842. Ed. at the Rev. W. Somerville's sch. and at the Provl. Norman Sch., he graduated M.D. at Bellevue Hosp. Coll., N. Y., 1868. He has since practised in N. Y., where he has taken a leading position in his profession. He has written largely for the med. periodicals during a quarter of a century, and has been Presdt. of the N. Y. Co. Med. Soc., and of the N. Y. Ophthal. Soc. In religious belief, he is a Bapt. He favours sound money.—327 Madison Ave., New York; Union League Club; Manhattan Athletic Club.

WEBSTER, John Clarence, M.D., is the s. of Jas. Webster, manufacturer, and was b. at Shediac, N.B., 1863. Ed. at Mount Allison Univ., N.B. (B.A., 1882), he pursued his med. studies in the Univ. of Edinburgh, graduating with honours as Bach. of Med. and Master of Surgery, 1888. He obtained the degree of M.D., 1891, and, in 1892, became a mem., and, in 1893, was elected a Fellow of the Royal Coll. of Phys. of Edinburgh. He had previously studied in the Pathol. Inst. at Leipzig, at the same time working with Dr. Sanger in his hospital for diseases of women, and in the Maternity Hospital. In 1886 he was apptd. a Demonstrator in Anat., under Dr. Symington, and also in Practical Path., under Prof. Greenfield. In the winter of 1886-87 he held the same position in the class of General Path. After graduation he spent the following winter in Berlin, studying Midwifery and Gynæcol., under Profs. Gusserow and Martin. Besides doing regular clinical work in their hospitals, he took out special practical and operative courses, and by special favour was allowed to work with their assistants in their large out-patient depts. He also attended the operations of Prof. Olshausen. During several vacations he visited leading obstet. schs. in various other continental cities, in Gt. Brit. and Irel., and in Am. In Apl., 1889, Dr. W. became Asst. to Dr. Freeland Barbour, Lecturer on Midwifery and Diseases of Women, in the Edinburgh Sch. of Med., remaining in this position for a year and a half. During this period he had charge of a very large obstet. and gynæcol. practice in connection with the Canongate and Cowgate Dispensaries, assisted Dr. Barbour in his private and hospital operative work, and conducted a tutorial class and an out-patient clinic for the students attending his lectures. In 1890 he was apptd. 1st Asst. in the Midwifery Dept. of the Univ. of Edinburgh, as well as private Asst. to Prof. A. R. Simpson. In these capacities he assisted the Prof. in his private practice and in his hospital work. He also had charge of his private out-patient clinic for diseases of women. In the univ. he carried on a regular tutorial class, and organized special naked-eye and microscopic demonstrations, illustrative of the anatomy and path. of midwifery and gynæcol. He also delivered lectures to the Prof.'s students and to his class of nurses in his absence. Subsequently, he performed the duties of House Physician in the gynæcol. wards of the Royal Infirmary. During 5 yrs. he assisted Dr. Berry Hart in his operative work in Midwifery and Gynæcol. From Apl., 1889 till his departure from Edinburgh, 1897, he carried on continuous original investigations in obstet. and gynæcol. in the Research Laboratory of the Royal Coll. of Phys., the results of