WHERE IS THE VOICE RAISED FOR THOSE OTHER GIRLS?

A wall goes up from the New York World for the young women of the well and smart sets who are wrecking their health in the strenuous whirl at Newport, comments the Detroit Tribune. Before the dew is off the grass they are at the tennis courts in becoming gowns and flowing hair. They swipe the ball until lunch time and change their dresses. Then they don their golf suits and chase the gutta-percha pellet over the links. Another dressing episode prepares them for dinner and then follow reception, balls, drives, a few hands at poker or bridge whist for high stakes, and finally a feverish night which lobster salad and bad dreams deprives of restful repose.

"Tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true," but these young women, charming and all as they may be, are but a small minority in the great whirl of society. There are other young women, thousands of them, who lead more strenuous and more useful lives. Some of them are up long before the sun and do not get a chance to change their dresses or do up their hair until late at night. Some of them bend over the wash-tub and the ironing table all day. Some of them cook and prepare the materials for three meals for large families every day and do all the other work of a big house. When they go to rest it is often in a stuffy attic which the sun has kept at broiling heat and in which the little comforts, ornaments and luxuries that are dear to every woman's heart are entirely lacking. Part of this army of young women work at Newport hotels and wait on the other young women. Some of them are mired in hot factories surrounded by the roar of machinery. Many live just such lives as the grandmothers and great-grandmothers of the well girls at Newport once led, but where is the voice that calls for their relief or deprecates their physical destruction?

The whirligig of time plays queer pranks with humanity. The descendants of some of the factory and laundry girls of to-day will be the belles of Newport and other resorts some day. Some of the descendants of the girls at Newport will take their turn at the wash-tub and in the factory, yet the great gulf which separated Lazarus and Dives is no broader nor deeper than the social chasm which yawns between the two sets in human society.

It is said the taking of the census in 1901 cost $1,150,000.

These indigestible securities seem to have created financial dyspepsia. — Toronto News.

Mr. Carnegie threatens that if we get Imperial preference the United States will throw our export trade out of Portland. In view of the frantic efforts we are making to do that ourselves, the suggestion has humor. — Toronto News.

A Kentucky woman has discovered a new use for the telephone. Wishing to visit a neighbor, she pulled the baby's crib up in front of the telephone, opened the receiver and told central if the baby began to cry to call her up at the neighbor's. — New York Tribune.

Commenting on the failure of his son-in-law, James R. Keene remarked on Saturday: "I can say that my fortune and that of my family has not been impaired. . . . I was the biggest creditor and I guess that I lose $1,500,000." Talk about mere trifles! — Buffalo Express.

The report that Pierpont Morgan took back from a newsboy a $5 gold piece which he had given to him as a tip and substituted a quarter for it is improbable on its face. A real financier wouldn't make such a mistake in the first place; he wouldn't carry $5 gold pieces around, either; it's only in fairy tales they do that. The real one has a check book. — Buffalo Express.

Deacon McNea, of the Windsor Record, who knows Tom Greenway better than any other Grit editor in Ontario, having been a resident of Manitoba for many years, is not disappointed at the result of the Manitoba elections. The Record says: "The Hon. Mr. Greenway, it is evident, was too heavy a load for the Liberal party to carry." And again the Record says that Greenway's conduct four years ago, in respect of the railway question was not "forgotten or condoned," and that it "disgusted the honest, straightforward electors in the Liberal party." That is the sort of man Greenway is, on the evidence of a Grit editor who knows him well. — Hamilton Spectator.

"Gerrymander" isn't a big enough word for it. It is Jeremiahmander. — Hamilton Spectator.

Kingston is going to have an old boys' reunion and if all the old boys who ever lived in the big stone pen attend, what a gathering that will be. — Toronto Telegram.

In view of the uncertain condition attending stock gambling the safest plan is to play a game of poker with your wife, and if you lose, the money still remains in the family. — Hamilton Spectator.

The confidential clerk in Buffalo who used hundreds of thousands of dollars of the money that passed through his hands to speculate in real estate gave $1,000 to a church last year, and now the good deacons are trying to figure out if it would be honest of them to keep the money. Over here in Canada no one occupying a high seat in the synagogue appears to have suggested returning the subscriptions of men whose wealth came principally from stock gambling. It is to be feared that if the source of the contents of collection plates were scrutinized too closely, some preachers might come short in the matter of salaries. — Hamilton Herald.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

A Watertown, Mass., woman woke up and saw a thief going through her husband's pockets. She screamed and the thief ran. No wife will see her privileges usurped without making a disturbance.

TAKES A STEP UP

W. Miller, the popular hardware clerk in Westman Bros., leaves next week for London, where he has accepted a position as travelling salesman for Hobbs & Co., wholesale hardware merchants of that place. Mr. Miller is a very popular young Chathamite and has been with Westman Bros. for some time. He came here from Thamesville, where he first started in the hardware business. He has risen rapidly through industrious conduct and he deserves the position he has received. His many friends, while sorry to see him go, will wish him every success in his new position.

BUSY FACTORY

A citizen pointed out in The Planet a few days ago that the weeds in the binder twine factory's lot should be cut.

"The matter has not been overlooked," said manager M. J. Wilson this morning, "but we have been too busy to have them cut. A couple of men out of employment came along the other morning and they were set to work cutting weeds."

This company is doing a splendid business. They have just shipped 90,000 pounds of twine to the Richelieu Cordage Company, of Quebec, and are at present making a shipment of two carloads to Manitoba. They have just received two carloads of raw material from London, England, and they have now enough sales and material on hand to keep the factory running until the end of September.
