Bishop Taylor Smith, Chaplain-General to the Forces, has sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to be able to leave the Queen Alexandra Military Hospital and go into the country for a short time.

The funeral of Canon Emery took place at Ely Cathedral, when there was a very large number of clergy and friends present. Both the Bishop and Dean of Ely took part in the service.

The soul that is in habitual communion with God finds its natural expression in constant ejaculatory prayer, or more often still in the unuttered aspirations of the heart. It is in this way that I believe many more prayers are heard in heaven than are audible on earth.—The late Bishop King.

Here is a quaint token from a sailor's tomb: "On the tombstone of Mr. William Hart, St. Andrew's Churchyard, Hertford: Blow, Boreas, blow; let Neptune's bellows roar; here lies a sailor safe landed on the shore. Though Neptune's waves have tossed him to and fro, by God's decree he harbours here below. He now at anchor lies amidst the fleet, waiting his orders Admiral Christ to meet."

The Archbishop of Canterbury recently placed in position the top stone of the last of the four pinnacles of the north-west tower of Canterbury Cathedral, thus accomplishing one of the final steps in the reparation of the tower, which was begun in 1908.

The death of the Rev. P. W. Loosmore, sometime Senior Canon of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, and late Minor Canon of Canterbury Cathedral, has taken place at East Peckham Vicarage, Tonbridge, Kent, at the age of seventy-nine. Mr. Loosmore was ordained in 1855, and was Rector of Prince William and Dumfries, New Brunswick, from 1855 to 1861, and assistant minister at St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, from 1862 till 1864. Subsequently he was Senior Canon of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, and examining and domestic chaplain and secretary to Bishop Fulford, and afterwards to Bishop Oxenden. Mr. Loosmore was Vicar of Aldborough with Colden Parva, Yorkshire, England, from 1870 till 1882. He was Minor Canon of Canterbury and Rector of St. Peter and Holy Cross, Canterbury, from 1882 till 1900, and since 1900 had been Vicar of East Peckham.
