The Battle of Life.

I must be strong of soul and staunch of heart. No matter what the odds. The long day's steady struggle is my part—The far result is God's.

Not mine to see the page of yesterday With unassuming heart. Nor strive to clear the mystery of a way Far-leading through the years.

Miss just to meet and conquer hour by hour. The thing that men call Fate. Gaining from strength to strength from power.

With which a soul is rife, So that my soul may borrow from the stars Courage and light and life.

Caring the shadows with unweaving faith, So I may move right. Down in the valley of the shade of death Walking a path of light.

Till at the last, weary, I touch the goal. And know the journey blest. Ready, though staunch of heart and strong of soul. Aye, ready—for my rest!

A Community Centre.

In different places the schoolhouse has been made a rural community centre. Farmers' clubs and institutes have been formed with regular meetings taking place at the schoolhouses in the respective districts. It is a good move, and worthy of imitation in rural sections which have not yet taken such action.

The schoolhouse does excellent work for the country when it provides education for the growing boys and girls. But that is no reason why it should not be made to serve other useful purposes. It may very well be a place for community meetings. As a matter of fact, of course, the schoolhouse is used for meetings of various kinds in different country districts—political meetings, social gatherings, sometimes religious services. There can be no objection to that use if clubs and institutes are formed and regular programmes provided for meetings from time to time.

It does everybody good to meet his or her neighbors at gatherings where problems of the community are discussed. Problems of the community? Yes, every community has its problems. Every household has its problems, too, and though, naturally, many of the household questions which affect the home, which may be talked over with advantage not only to those who first speak of them but to others who may meet the same difficulties in later experience. The more the people in country, town, and city all realize that no man can live an absolutely isolated life and that it is good business as well as good morals to help one another the more there will be discussion of common problems, and the better it will be for everyone.

Clubs and institutes with meetings at the schoolhouse, are good things in every country community. True, there may sometimes be difficulty in surmounting obstacles and in preparing interesting programmes or in creating initial interest but the ultimate return for work devoted to these ends will be found worth while. There is no reason why the schoolhouse should lie idle and unoccupied every evening when it can be made a centre from which influence beneficial to the whole community may be made to radiate.

Action of Single Spoonful Surprises Many.

Wolfville people who bought the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler's Laxative, are surprised at the INSTANT effect of a SINGLE SPOONFUL. This remedy is so complete a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis. Adler's Laxative acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and OVER SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of sour or gassy stomach. One minute after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. Sold by A. V. RAND.

Put to Another Use.

The inexperienced district school teacher had exhausted all other expedients for the maintenance of discipline. Going out into the school yard she broke off a good sized switch that was growing there and administered primitive punishment to Jimmy Kelley.

There were strange expressions of horrified amazement on the faces of the children, and when school was dismissed at noon they gathered in groups and talked in whispers. Finally the teacher's curiosity could stand it no longer. Calling Henry Thomas to her she demanded the cause of the discussions.

"Why—why—why, teacher," he stammered, "that switch which you licked Jimmy with—that was the tree as all set out last Arbor day."

When a Western man was tried for his part in a shooting affray his wife swore that he had never carried a revolver, and when asked how she knew she testified that she habitually searched his pockets.

"Then was nice folks you wanted on, Mamie, ain't they?" "No, no, dear! Appearances are deceitful. They didn't have no charge account. Paid cash for everything."

Habits.

We are all creatures of habit. We permit most of our daily acts in a habitual manner. If it were not for habits we should take all our conscious life in making ourselves, or walking, or eating, or drinking, or anything else, as difficult for us to tread as the child's path.

But habits may be broken. The habit of indigestion is a valuable one, but the habit of indigestion is a costly one. The habit of indigestion is a costly one. The habit of indigestion is a costly one.

1. Make an decided start as possible. Take a public pledge; tell your friends; most of all, make a determined resolution. A man who was trying to break himself of drinking advertised that he would give $50 to anyone who thereafter saw him drink.

2. Never allow a relapse. Never indulge again in the old habit. It is possible to undo in an hour of indulgence all the good you have done in a month of abstinence.

3. Seize the first opportunity to act on your resolve. Habits are formed or broken, not by resolving but by action. If the resolve is to be neighborly, take advantage of the first opportunity to speak kindly to your neighbor. Never try just to stop a bad habit. Try to form a good one in its place. Don't try to break the habit of being cross. Try to acquire the habit of being pleasant.

To Check A Cold

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, ally the inflammation and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shorewood, B. C. writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

What Britain is Doing in the War.

Holdings the seas for the ships of the British fleet. The British fleet is the most powerful in the world. It is the backbone of the British Empire. It is the backbone of the British Empire.

Struggling in co-operation with the French, to smash the Turks and with the Balkans for the allied cause. Rendering great aid to French and Belgium troops in resisting the terrible onslaught of the Germans on the allied left wing in the west.

Making loans and supplying munitions to nearly all her partners in the war. Pursuing a financial policy in southeastern Europe likely to promote the cause of the nationalities.

Putting into the field more than ten times as many men as she ever promised. Guarding her own soil and people against an invasion, which, it came—and it is believed to be far from impossible—doubtless would be the most surprising ever known. With how many men? Well, with enough. To hear some people talk, one would suppose that upon Britain was laid the duty of defending every land but her own.

A girl baby was brought to a Seattle clergyman to be baptized. He asked the name of the baby. "Dinah M.," the father responded. "But what does the M. stand for?" asked the minister.

"Well, I don't know yet. It depends upon how she turns out." "Why, I do not understand you," said the minister.

"Oh, if she turns out nice and sweet I shall call her Dinah May. But if she has a fiery temper and bombastic disposition like mine, I shall call her Dinah Micht."

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $20.00. Cured him with $20.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $50.00. Profit by Adjustment $30.00. MOHRER BROTHERS, Hotel Ketter, St. Phillips, Que.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from any harmful drugs. Try it. Post & Sons, Toronto, Ont.

Resent Insult to Allies.

French and British soldiers are made drunk before going into action, according to the New York Times' report of Miss Jane Addams' address at a welcome home meeting in Carnegie Hall, Friday evening, July 9th. To quote the exact words printed by the Times, Miss Addams said: "An Get many they have a regular formula for it. In England they use rum and that is the reason why the British soldiers are so brave."

Other words, before the terrible bayonet charges they speak of with dread the men must be 'doped' before they will start."

Richard Harding Davis, the war correspondent who was with the Allies' soldiers early in the war, repeats the statements attributed to Miss Addams. He regards her remarks as an insult. He says:

In this war the French or English soldier who has been killed in a day one charge gave his life to protect his home and country. For his supreme exit he had prepared himself by months of discipline. Through the winter in the trenches he has endured shells, disease, snow and ice. For months he had been separated from his wife, children and friends—all those he most loved. When the order to charge came it was for them he gave his life, that against those who destroyed Belgium they might preserve their homes, might live to enjoy peace.

Miss Addams denies him the credit of his stern life. She strips him of honor and courage. She tells his children: "Your father did not die for France, or for you; he died because he was drunk."

In my opinion since the war began, no statement has been so unworthy or so untrue and ridiculous. The coarseness it shows for the memory of the dead is appalling; the credulity and ignorance it displays are inconceivable. It is so to believe her, the Canadians at Ypres, the Australians in the Dardanelles, the English and the French on the Aisne made no such supreme sacrifice; but were killed in a drunken brawl.

Miss Addams desires peace by any representative. I have seen more of this war and other wars than Miss Addams and I know all war to be wicked, wasteful and unintelligent, and where Miss Addams can furnish one argument in favor of peace I will furnish a hundred. But against this insult, flung by a complacent and self-satisfied woman and men who have their lives for men, I protest. And I believe that with me and all those women and men who respect courage and honor."

New York City with honorable discharge from French military service before Verdun, brands as false and ridiculous the assertions made by Miss Addams. He says:

"Alcohol is scarce in the French army today, and has been for months, ever since the ban was put by the government upon its sale, as it is on board any warship in the United States Navy. The troops of France are not permitted to have any intoxicants in the trenches, and so far as we can learn, alcoholic liquors are absolutely prohibited on the German firing line as well.

"If Miss Addams had obtained her information from an officer at all acquainted with the facts she would have learned that to obtain absolute France is to-day an impossibility. The fact is that any one discovered supplying intoxicants to the troops, whether on or off duty will be severely punished.

"Aside from the fact that no true soldier of France or Great Britain would deign to indulge in intoxicants while on duty, it is absurd to believe that alcoholic stimulants would be issued to them by their officers at any time. The soldier daily receives a small ration of light wine with his meals, but that can by no means be classified as an intoxicant. The wine issued to the troops is a gift from wine growers in France. The British soldiers do not get even that."

"We learned from German prisoners that the regulations against intoxicants in the German army are just as rigorous as in the French army, so that Miss Addams' information was wrong and unfair on both sides.

Keep Children Well During Hot Weather

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours' illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Grates are extra durable. Coal grate is duplex. Wood grate is the most modern type.

The Vigil.

England! where the sacred flame Burns before the inmost shrine, Where the lips that love thy name Consecrate their hopes and thine, Where the banners of thy dead Weave their shadows overhead, Watch beside thine arms tonight, Pray that God defend the Right.

Think that when tomorrow comes War shall claim command of all. Thou must hear the trumpet's call. Now, before thy silence break, Commune with the voice of truth; England! on thy knees tonight Pray that God defend the Right.

Single hearted, unafraid, Hither all thy heroes come, On this altar's steps were laid Gordon's life and Orlan's fame, England! if thy will be yet By their great example set, Here, beside thine arms tonight Pray that God defend the Right.

So shall thou when morning comes Rise to conquer or to fall, Joyful hear the rolling drums, Joyful hear the trumpet's call. Then let memory tell thy heart: England! what thou wert, thou art! Gird thee with thine ancient might, Forth and God defend the Right!

There have been many admirable reforms in prison discipline. "Yes," replied Dustin Stax. "From what I hear a prison is such a cool, quiet place that it would be rather nice if a man could have a sentence arranged to permit him to spend the week end there."

"The trouble is," said Wilkins as he talked the matter over with his counsel that in the excitement of the moment I admitted that I had been going too fast and wasn't paying any attention to the road just before the collision. I'm afraid that admission will prove costly."

"Don't worry about that," said his lawyer, "I'll bring seven witnesses to testify that they wouldn't believe you under oath."

"There have been many admirable varieties of jam are those made from plum, apricot, gooseberry and currant, but a mixture of plum and apple stand at the head of the list.

Jam should not be considered as a dainty but as an article of food.

"It heals like magic," is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eruptions, salt rheum, barbed itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.
