Messrs, Casgrain, Berderon and other leading lawyers on both sides admitted that there were enough, if not too many judges in Quebec, but the ministers claimed that the federal parliament could not interfere with provincial jurisdiction as to the judicial districts. Sir Hibbert Tupper maintained that the federal parliament had some responsibility in the premises and a perfect right to decline to provide salaries for judicial position that should not be established. In the evening the house got into committee on the judges bill. It contains a clause providing that "no person shall hold or retain the office of a county court judge after he has completed the seventyfifth year of his age." Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper opposed this clause in so far as it applied to judges now on the bench, claiming that it was vicious legislation and a breach of faith to change the terms of the contract made with them. He moved that the age limit apply only to judges to be hereafter appointed. This amendment was lost by a voteof 44 to 28 on a straight party division. The bill was reported. The house then went into committee on Hon. Mr. Mulock's civil service superannuation bill. Mr. Mulock was loudly applauded by the opposition when he announced that in deference to their appeal he had deris block, Victoria Row. termined to accept the view that the bill should not apply to officers now in the service unless they elect to go under the new system. He proposed now to amend the bill by providing that all John A. Furness, in the 19th year of his civil servants now in the public employ | age. shall, if they choose, remain under the other amendment provides that interest other amendment provides that interest will be paid by the government at four per cent. on deductions under this act, May his soul rest in peace.

Mr. McMullin moved that the rate be three per cent. instead of four. He had some difficulty in getting a seconder. At length Rogers, patron, seconded the amendment, which was lost by a vote of 5 to 2.

Bear Silent Witness to the Ravages of Kidney Disease.

An alarming fact-but statistics sho that in post mortem examintions as to death from all causes, that in over 90 per cent. of such cases kidney disease is present. This almost incredible statement is borne out by years of comparison by most eminent medical men. A warning to hu-manity that the percentage of those not cursed by kidney taint is very small.
