and steamship subventions increased from $534,916 to $1,227,560, a proof of how easy it is to manipulate the old railer against subsidies and bounties, Sir Richard Cartwright. Some of the grants are for services between places ordinary people do not know to exist, and some are for helping a favored line of ships to compete against independent lines run with-even guess what return the country got for the buge addition to the cost of the militis, which, without taking note of the cost of new arms or munitions, or armories or drill sheds, rose from $1,136,713 to $4,294,124 year. The buge increase in the cos of public works from $1,299,768 to $7,484,715 is evidence of gross waste and disregard for everything that pertains to business sense and responsibility. The great part of the money was dispensed as bribes to localities it was sought to influence in favor of the Government; on buildings that were not needed, and on other works that yield no return to the public on the outlay they repre sent. The same thing is true, in pensions, or railway and canal administration and of superannuation

A Leaf From the Record

The newest reply of friends of the Laurier Government to the criticisms of its extravegance is the set ing up of a claim that the tens of millions it is yearly spending above what should be the ressenable cost of the administrative services are being "invested." Ta idea can hardly be celled a happy one. People who make investments look for a return on them. The public accounts do not show any in the case of the "investments" of the Laurier Government. The "investments" it has made, where any have been made, are not remunerative and most of them will never be remunerative. The great increase in the expenditure, the increase that has made the taxation burdensome at a time of commercial duliness, is in the regular everyday services, in connection with matters largely under control of ministers. It is not practical to make a comparison item by item for last year, nor even for 1906-7 and for the year before rine and the declaration of the Royal the present Government came into Commission which investigated it. power. The "year" 1906-7 was a that it was run without a conscience, short one of pine months only, due will be found part of the cause of its to the change in closing the fiscal cost going up from less than half a twelve months from June 30 million to over two and a balf mil-March 31. The increases have saled the expenditure in twelve years to well up to three times what they were in Scott's Emulsion strengthens enfeebled 1905 6. Neither the population, nor the wealth of the country has increased in any such proportion nor has the country received salae for the vast additional ou lay. The figures for 1907-8 not being available, and those for 1906-7 cov. ering only nine months, as stated above, a comparison of a full year of Justice was no better administered in 1906 than in 1896 though the expense was $400,000 greater. Though the cost of the Department of Agriculture was nepectors of this and that and nothing was created, there has appeared no return commensurate with the charged that the Government was outlay, and in butter and cheese. which was advertised as the special tinental rock prices for removing care of the aggregation, there has of ate years been a decrease of exorpts if not of production; and this also is the case in regard to cattle. The cost of civit government went up $500,000 a year, or by more than a third; but what return the country has received no one can say, There are more men around the departments and new blocks of chices have been built or rented to accommodate them; but what they do for the additional money they cost is an unknown quantity. The expense of the Department of Fisheries more han doubled, and this though a decision of the Judicial Committee of he Privy Council bes reduced the jurisdiction and powers of the federal authorities. The expense of the mmigration service all but quadupled, though the people who cost o much to bring out ere pow going home sgain at the rate of from 500 week up. The ou lay on queranthe was multiplied almost seven imes, for what useful purpose cannot be imagined. The yearly cost of caring for the Indians was increased by $390,000 That of legislation went up $400,000 a year, for no visible resson save that the men who were recklessly spending so much on other things must have thought it would be well to spend some more on themselves.
