The Contest in Bonavista.

The eyes of the people of the whole country have been focussed on the Bonavista election contest for some considerable time. It was recognized that the contest in this district would show up more clearly than in any other district the political strength of the F. P. U. At the last election, Bonavista put in the candidates of the People's Party by record majorities. Ever since 1889 when Mr. Samuel Blandford was the only liberal elected, no liberal had been elected for this district, and the Tory candidates have always been returned by large majorities. But the majorities of 1909 exceeded all of them. Mr. Blandford's majority being 2506, Mr. Winsor's 2481, and Mr. Morrison's 2434. Mr. Coaker and his colleagues faced a situation, which appeared from these figures to be well nigh hopeless. Indeed, so strong were the expectations of the People's Party in Bonavista, that the charge was made that Mr. Coaker was being sacrificed by his transfer from Fogo to Bonavista, and it was also asserted that the transfer was a device of Sir Robert Bond's to rid himself of Mr. Coaker. At the time we pointed out that the charge was false, and that Mr. Coaker's candidature in Bonavista was absolutely voluntary. Mr. Coaker had volunteered to face the great odds, which the figures of the last elections made to loom so large. Mr. Coaker knew the political situation had changed in that district, and that the Union was the strong force there and not the People's Party. He had the quiet confidence which comes from a full knowledge of a situation which was favourable, and he was willing to make the contest in Bonavista Bay, the touchstone of the reality of the strength of the F. P. U. and to take that election as a vote of confidence in himself as President of the Union. His faith in Bonavista has not been misplaced, and his confidence in the outcome has not been mistaken. Indeed the outcome has exceeded his expectations. Anyone present at the great meeting at Bonavista on the night before polling could not help realizing that a great change had come over Bonavista, and that Mr. Coaker and his colleagues were justified in their expectation of a great victory. We have said that the result exceeded the expectations of Mr. Coaker and that is so. It has exceeded his most sanguine expectation. It would have been a great victory to have won by a narrow majority, for that meant turning a majority exceeding 2400 into a minority. But Mr. Coaker expected to do more than this. On the night before polling, he told us he expected to win with a majority of 1500. He has done more and so have his colleagues. Mr. Coaker's majority over Mr. Blandford is 1849. Mr. R. G. Winsor's majority over Mr. W. C. Winsor is 1795. Mr. Abbott's majority over Mr. Morrison is 1871. We congratulate them on their great achievement.

MENDELSSOHN died 1847, aged 26. German musical composer who appeared in public as a pianist before his twelfth year and composed the "Midsummer Night's Dream" overture when only seventeen. Unlike Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann and others, he never sounded the depths of human emotion, but seemed to regard music chiefly as a means of solace and pure enjoyment.

GEORGE PEABODY died 1869, aged 74. American philanthropist, who settled in London as a Banker in 1837. His benefactions amounted to nearly two and a half million pounds sterling.

There are, while human miseries abound, a thousand ways to waste superfluous wealth.

Messrs. Morine and Summers, on the instruction of Mr. W. F. Coaker, issued a writ against the Daily News yesterday afternoon for libel. The Plaintiff claims $10,000 damages for the publication of a statement which conveys the meaning that he has participated in and encouraged the introduction and circulation into and throughout this Colony by the organization of which he is President, of blasphemous and anti-Christian literature, and especially of certain Seditious newspapers called the Mence and Cotton's Weekly.

Now that the cold weather comes apace, users of Tooth Pastes are likely to be annoyed by the fact that their dentifrices in tubes become hard and chippy after a cold night, rendering them difficult to press out of the tube, and difficult to use after they have been squeezed on to the tooth brush. If you are in that unpleasant position, remember that Sawdent Tooth Paste never gets dry or hard, but is always, summer or winter, of the right consistency. This a great advantage in winter time, in addition to its other qualities, and makes Sawdent easily first among dental pastes. And if you use it with the Sawdent you get the very best results. Sawdent Tooth Paste costs 25 cents a tube; the Sawdent Tooth Brush 35c. each.

AND THE HERALD'S MALICIOUS STATEMENT.

Editor Evening Herald.
Dear Sir,—We are enclosing a copy of a letter we are sending the Evening Herald, requesting the editor to publish it and thus try to make up in a small way for his malicious attack on our poor afflicted brother. While thanking you for your fair treatment of the unfortunate affair, we would ask you to give the letter space in your reliable sheet.

We are, Dear Sir,

Yours etc.,

Harbor Grace,

Nov. 3, 1913.

Editor Evening Herald.

Dear Sir,—Now that the heat of the political contest is over, we, the brothers of the unfortunate young man, James Hare, who being mentally unbalanced, attempted to take the life of our dear Bishop, on Oct. 19th, would ask you to take back that malicious statement published in your paper of the 22nd, as follows:

"People from Harbor Grace say 'that since his return the man has been proclaiming the most socialist doctrines and conducting himself in such a manner as to indicate that he is of the incendiary class who in the guise of 'anarchism, socialism and nihilism,' are preaching destruction to law and order and the overthrow of 'all constituted authority.'"

Now, Mr. Editor, we, as well as his poor old mother, his sister and other brothers, feel this an uncalled for attack on an insane man, and one that might go a long way to prejudice a jury or a court against him. We would therefore ask you to

on that matter, and also ask you to be good enough to allow us space in your paper to flatly contradict any such statement. Our poor brother has been noticed by us to have been afflicted mentally for over four years. We were working with him in Sydney at that time and had considerable trouble to keep him from getting low-spirited, and if we could have done so we would have liked to be always near him to cheer and brighten him up as much as possible. We returned from Bell Island on Saturday, the 18th day of October, and on that night the elder brother (Patrick Hare) met James for the first time for one and a half years, and he was told that he (James) had to give up work in Sydney as he could not stand the strain. Patrick said:

"Never mind, I will try and get a job for you with us on the Island." He then said: "It's no use, I can't work or I can't go on the street; when I do people are following me, pointing and staring at me and spitting in my face; policemen and all do this." This, Mr. Editor, was enough to show that the poor fellow was insane, and we determined to take him to a doctor for examination, but before we had time to do so the awful affair of Sunday morning, October 19th, took place.

It was hard on us to find newspapers using the poor fellow's affliction for political purposes and claiming him to be an anarchist, &c.; and it is doubtful if his aged mother will ever get over the shock she received. Shame on you, Mr. Editor, to try and use this poor fellow's affliction as a stepping stone for your political friends.

We will thank you on behalf of the family if you will give this letter a place in your paper at your earliest convenience.

We are, dear sir,

Yours, &c.,

PATRICK HARE.
