Sir Eric Geddes' Statement.

The satement of Sir Eric Geddes hat "the submarine is held" is a most cheering message. It is childish to attempt to minimize the serious character of the destruction to the Allied shipping caused by German submarines. We have been told very little regarding the extent of this damage, but taking even the authorized figires of the Associated Press that the derman claim of 9,000,000 tons is more than 50 per cent too great, it still neans that the quantity of food that otherwise would have been available for Great Britain and other allied ntries in Europe has been seriousdecreased. The First Lord of the admiralty rightly gives warning that ber of ships must be increase ed if full advantage is to be taken of the success achieved thus far.
