Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO YOU USE THIS LEXICON?

Yesterday I spoke of "translating" as one of the habits of mind which everyone ought to have. As the word might not carry its meaning to everyone I offered to explain it to-day.

By translating I mean getting the other fellow's point of view by rendering his like, his dislike, his antipathy, his extravagance, his economy into terms of your like, your dislike, your antipathy, your extravagance, your economy.

The Touch of Velvet Makes Her Crawl.

For instance, I have a friend who cannot bear the touch of certain materials. Especially after her hands have been in the water or after she has been bathing, the touch of such materials as silk or velvet makes her crawl. Now that is absolutely inconceivable to me as far as having the same sensation goes. The only way I can understand it is to translate it. I must say to myself, "Those things give her the same nerve discomfort as I get from hearing certain noises such as a pipe being scraped out, the squeak of a steel knife on a tin surface when someone in the kitchen is scraping a dish, etc."

That is, I couldn't get her point of view if I touched velvet and silk with newly washed hands all day, but I can get it at once if I remember the way my spine crawls at offending noises.

Bundles "A Confounded Nuisance." Here's another. A man I know (maybe you know his double) simply hates to carry a bundle, even the smallest. Though he loves to take pictures he will never carry any but the tiniest camera on a walk with him because the larger sizes are "such a confounded nuisance." His wife often finds this hate of any bundle a great annoyance. "I used to always be fussing about it," she said, "and then I remembered that while I don't mind carrying bundles, June 10/11

I simply hate to do one up. The thought of having to get together the right size paper and strings and get an odd shaped bundle done up and tied up and addressed fairly puts a cloud on my day. But he doesn't mind that at all. So I decided that was the way he must feel about carrying bundles and that made it all clear."

The Bright Lexicon of Matrimony. No husband or wife ought to be without the lexicon which helps one to translate another's feelings and points of view into the language of one's own feelings and points of view.

Think of the number of irritable criticisms, impatient bits of fault-finding and resultant quarrels that would be avoided if one had stopped to translate.

Translation reversed also helps one to understand one's self. One sees some act of another person in a new light. Can it be that similar acts of one's own look that way to other people? Can it be that they are justified in looking at them that way?

Of course, one does not always feel in the mood to use this lexicon even when one has it. One often feels more like hurling it to Jericho. But if one remembers one is also hurling some of one's chance for happiness, it may help to stay the impulse.

WALT MASON

When I was young my soul was tired, my heart was sore and hot; for I was nearly always fired from every job I got. I suffered many a grievous shock before I learned to see that one o'clock is one o'clock, and three o'clock is three o'clock is three o'clock. I'd loom up late for work each day, and thought that fact no crime; but when I went to draw my pay, I always was on time. The boss would say, "At half past two, do this or t'other chore;" and I'd reflect, "That stunt will do as well at half past four." So I was always being fired, as you will understand; no sooner was I nicely hired than I was neatly canned. It took me long to realize that promptness is a thing that all the merchant princes prize, and all wise poets sing. It took me long to grasp the truth that heedlessness of time is fatal to aspiring youth who'd reach a goal sublime. I'd waste the golden hours in talk, and seldom kept a date; if I was due at six o'clock, I'd make my bow at eight. Then I resolved to mend my ways, these facts were realized; and I lined up with happy jays whose services are prized.

Household Notes.

Scratching matches on wood-work leaves marks. Remove these with a cut lemon.

The lighter the pan used to bake bread in a gas oven, the lighter the bread will be.

Do not make large quantities of jelly at once. Smaller quantities bring better results.

The wax or oil polish which is good for woodwork is good, also, for leather doors.

Hot weather is always tolerable if your nerves are properly fed and aired and rested.

Lay a thick slice of onion on a roast of beef while cooking. This improves the flavor.

A wheel tra- is a great saving of time and strength in hot weather or any other weather.

If food drinks are taken frequently in hot weather, remember that they should be sipped slowly.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

The Newfoundland Scotch cured herring situation continues to be influenced by the lack of interest on the part of the buyers, and prices therefore are weak. The trade has looked for an improvement in the demand, but in view of the attitude of the retail trade and the extremely high prices being asked to consumers, there has been a slackening of business among distributors. Those who hold stocks of fancy Newfoundland Scotch cured herring of the fall catch have noted some small improvement, but the trade generally refrains from pressing offers. The stock of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring now held here is not large, but in view of the condition of the market, merchants are not inclined to take on stocks at this time. Winter herring are not in demand, and fall stocks, quoted at from $18 to $24 per barrel are selling only in a hand-to-mouth way. The domestic business in this trade has fallen off to some extent also, and the holders look for little improvement, unless, perchance, there is a dearth in the supply of foreign herring in which the trade appears to be interested. The spring pack in Newfoundland was a failure so that stocks of this grade cannot be expected here except in very small quantities.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette June 21st.

DAN MCGANN DECLARES HIMSELF

Said Dan McGann to a foreign man who worked at the self-same bench.

"Let me tell you this," and for emphasis, he flourished a Stilson wrench.

"Don't talk to me of the bourgeoisie, don't open your mouth to speak of your socialists or your anarchists, don't mention the bolsheviks. For I've had enough of this foreign stuff. I'm sick as a man can be."

Of the speech of hate, and I'm tellin' you straight that this is the land for me!"

"If you want to brag, just take that flag, an' boast of its field o' blue. An' praise the dead an' the blood they shed for the peace o' the likes o' you."

I'll hear no more," and he waved once more, his wrench in a forceful way.

"O' the cunning creed o' some Russian breed, I stand for the U.S.A.!"

I'm done with your fads, and your wild-eyed lads, don't flourish your rag o' red.

Where I can see or at night there'll be tall candles around your bed."

"So tip your hat to a flag like that! Thank God for its stripes an' stars!"

Thank God you're here where the roads are clear, away from your kings and czars.

I can't just say what I feel to-day, for I'm not a talkin' man. But first and last, I am standin' fast for all that's American.

So don't you speak of the bolsheviks, it's sick of that stuff I am. One God, one flag is the creed I brag! I'm boostin' for Uncle Sam."

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Dear Sirs,—This fall I got thrown on a fence and hurt my chest very bad, so I could not work and it hurt me to breathe. I tried all kinds of Liniments and they did me no good.

One bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, warmed on a pan and applied on my breast, cured me completely.
