SHE IS STILL WELL. Recovery Was Only Temporary-

Many People Thought That Mrs. Reany's A Pleasant Disappointment-She is Better Than Ever.

SHELBURNE, Aug. 27 .- When Mrs. Reany's letter appeared in a local paper here some time ago, giving a history of her long illness and final cure of kidney disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills, many readers thought her improvement was only temporary. All such have been most successfully contradicted, as a letter lately received here from Mrs. Reany states that she has all along been gaining in general health, since her kidneys were restored to a sound state, and that for many years she has not enjoyed such good health and spirits. Mrs. Reany, therefore, still pins her faith to Dodd's Kidney Pills and recommends them as rongly as ever to afflicted members of Conan Doyle's new story, "The Sign of Four," is the latest work issued by Longmans, Greeni& Co., New York and London. Like all Conan Doyle's novels, it is a wellwritten story, replete with adventure, and is sure to have many readers in this country. It is sold in cheap form.

An essay by Emily Bronte, never yet published has been found among the papers of the Heger family in Brussels. It will soon be presented to the public in a magazine. It is, in all probability, a school exercise, preserved, in consideration of its youthful eleverness, by Emily's teacher, M. Heger, otherwise "M. Paul Emanuel."

Littell's for the week commencing Aug. 25, contains "The Poetry of Robert Bridges," by Edward Dowden; "Chamois Hunting Above the Snow Line," by Hugh Stutfield; "Gogol, the Father of Russian Realism," by Arthur Tilley, and "Competitive Examinations in China," by T. L. Bullock. Boston: Littell & Co.

The amount of light that Harper's Weekly was able to throw upon the remote and little-known country of Corea, the instant that public attention was directed to it, may be taken as an indication of the almost boundless resources of the paper, and its capacity to deal promptly and comprehensively with every occurrence of interest to the public.

The Ladies' Home Journal for September is an excellent number of this always interesting and valuable publication.

"A Comedy of Counterplots," by Edgar Fawcett, is the introductory story of a very attractive little volume, the second of the Outing Library, issued by the Outing Publishing Company. The volume is well illustrated, and contains in addition to Mr. $400 as a balance outstanding against the Fawcett's story: "Pastelle," "A Medley of the Midway Plaisance," "A Very Strange Case," "The Flagelante's Sin," "The Ghost at Wite Bear." New York: Outing Pub. lishing Company.

"Captain Molly," by Mary A. Dennison, is the principal attraction of Lippincott's costs. for September. Laura A. Smith contributes

"It is not every son that can remember his mother's 21st birthday," is the quaint remark of the Marquis of Dufferin in a sketch of his mother, Helen, Lady Dufferin, prefixed to a collection of "Songs, Poems and Verses," by Lady Dufferin, recently published in London. Such, however, was Lord Dufferin's experience, and he celebrated the occasion by nearly poisoning himself with laburnum seeds. Lady Dufferin was a granddaughter of Richard Brinsley Sheridan and sister of the famous Mrs. Norton (Mr. Meredith's "Diana"). Her chief claim to literary remembrance is the famous song, "I'm Sitting on the Stile, Mary," one of those songs which have so taken hold of the British popular heart that their authorship has become rather national than individual. An Irish ballad, no less touching in its simple appeal, is 'Katev's Letter":

"Och, girls, did you ever hear, I wrote my love a letter.

And altho' he cannot read.

I thought 'twas all the better. For why should he be puzzled With spellin' in the matter, When the manin' was so plain

I loved him faithfully, And he knows it—oh, he knows it— Without one word from me.

Perhaps Lady Dutterin strikes her deepest notes in the tender occasional poems to her son, and present editor. The love between them seems to have been exceptionally beautiful, and, indeed, as Lady Dufferin was married at a very early age, there was considerable less disparity in years between mother and son than is xxx

Readers of the September Scribner (New York) will turn at once to Ulpiano Checa's spirited and startlingly realistic picture, 'An Unlucky Meeting," two runaway horses racing with a locomotive, and to Mr. Hamerton's account of the painter. Mr. Marion Crawford with his pen and Mr. Reinhart with his pencil seasonably depict Bar Harbor; Mr. Lumholtz has an interesting description of the Tarahumaris of the Sierra Madre, profusely illustrated from photographs, and the patchwork quilt has its construction analyzed and its history told, and is raised into the domain of art in Mrs. Bergen's "Tapestry of the New World." Mrs. J. T. Field's selection of autographs and pictures, and Octave Thanet's "The People of the Cities," are fully illustrated. The fiction of this number comprises the first half of a two-part story by Thomas Nelson Page, a Spanish-American yarn by H. L. Webb, and a dialect story by G. Fay, while Mr. Cable's serial, "John March," continues.

The September number of Harper's Magazine (New York) has at least four articles which readers will read with avidity and talk about afterward. "Some Records of the Ice Age About New York," by T. Mitchell Prudden, has rare charm as a piece of local history of the most ancient sort. Julian Ralph's paper on West Virginia life, "Where Time Has Slumbered," has the value and grace of this author's best work. John W. Chadwick, of course, writes of Bryant in "The Origin of a Great Poem." Affred Parsons has a delightful paper on "Early Summer in Japan," and Caspar W. Whitney has another on "Riding to Hounds in England."

No Tax Robbery !

We must have taxes. This seems to be the penalty we pay for our civilization, and I am not a demagogue to come here and say to you, you must not have taxes; but I stand here to say that the Government has no more right to take out of my pocket a dollar more than is needed for the economical administration of the affairs of the country than the robber has to empty my pocket on the highway. -[Hon. No Doubt About It.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27. - Police Inspector McLaughlin was asked today about a dispatch from Columbus, O., which states that Mother Mandelbaum, the old-time notorious "fence," whose death was reported from Hamilton, Ont., several months ago. was supposed to be still alive, and that the casket shipped to New York which was said to have contained her body was filled with stones. The inspector said it was a ridiculous yarn. He knows for a positive fact that Mother Mandlebaum is dead, and that it was her body that was brought here from Hamilton.

The Turtle Came Back.

LOCKPORT, Aug. 27. - Twenty years ago Daniel Wynkoop caught a turtle in Mud Creek, a little stream two miles south of this city, and after catting his name on its back, with "1874" attached, put it back in the water. The other afternoon Wynkoop tried his luck at fishing in the same creek. Of a sudden he thought he must have hooked a shark, but after a hard pull finally landed the biggest turtle he ever saw. On looking it over he was astonished to find on its shell, very legible, the handiwork he executed when a boy.

For nearly 50 years this wonderful remedy has proved itself the best, quickest, safest and surest antidote for pain in the world. THE TRUE RELIEF

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is safe, reliable and effectual because of the stimulating action which it exerts over the nerves and vital powers of the body, adding tone to the one and inciting to renewed and increased vigor the slumbering vitality of the physical structure, and through this healthful stimulation and increased action the cause of the PAIN is driven away and a natural condition restored. It is thus that the READY RELIEF is so admirably adapted for the CURE OF PAIN and without the risk of injury which is sure to result from the use of many of the so-called pain remedies of the day. RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is safe, re-

In using medicines to stop pain we should avoid such as inflict injury on the system.
Opium, Morphine, Ether, Cocaine and Chloral stop pain by destroying the sense of perception, when the patient loses the power of feeling.
This is the most destructive practice: it masks the syptoms, shuts up, and instead offremoving trouble, breaks down the stomach, liver and bowels, and if continued for a length of time bowels, and, if continued for a length of time, kills the nerves and produces local or general paralysis.

There is no necessity for using these uncertain agents when a positive remedy like RAD-WAY'S READY RELIEF will stop the most excruciating pain quicker, without entailing the least difficulty in either infant or adult. A CURE FOR ALL
