cars loaded during that time totalled 2.113, or an average of 352 per day.

These figures indicate a falling-off in both the marketing and loading this year compared with the same period last year which, according to information received the department, can be attributed entirely to weather conditions. Low temperature ad intermittent snowstorms in both Saskatchewan and Alberta during the past week, interfered to some extent with both the marketing and loading. There also appears to be a tendency on the part of the farmers to hold their grain. From September 1 up to and including March 9, the company shipped to Vancouver 7.226 cars of grain or 10.694,480 bushels. During the same period last year 2,669 cars were shipped or approximately 8,778,304 bushels.
