

"GEOBINA'S" REASONS.

A NEW AND FASCINATING CONTINUED STORY.

BY HENRY JAMES.

transmitted to them by the man of business who looked after the little property in America, and the kindly functionary, taking advantage of the pretext (Capt. Benyon happened to come into the company as he was starting, intending to wait upon the ladies) to bring together "two parties" who, as he said, ought to appreciate each other, proposed to his fellow-officer in the service of the United States that he should go with him as a witness of the little ceremony. He might, of course, take his clerk, but the captain would do better, and he represented to Benyon that the Miss Theories (singular name, wasn't it?) suffered—how was it?—from a lack of society; also that that was very very sick, that they were real pleasant and extraordinarily refined, and that the sight of a comparison, literally draped, as it were, in the national banner, would cheer them up more than most anything else, and give them a sense of protection. They had talked to the coast about Benyon's ship, which they could see from their windows in the distance at its anchorage. They were the only American ladies at Naples—the only residents, at least, and the captain wouldn't be doing the polite thing unless he went to pay them his respects. Benyon felt a little how little it was in his line to call upon strange women; he was not in the habit of hunting up female acquaintances, or of looking out for the soft emotions which the only possible issue was a rather reason for this abstention, and he seldom relaxed it; but the consul appealed to him on rather strong grounds, and he suffered himself to be persuaded. He was far from regretting, during the first weeks at least, an act which was distinctly inconsistent with his great rule—that of never exposing himself to the chance of seriously caring for an unmarried woman. He had been obliged to make this rule, and had adhered to it with some success. He was fond of women, but he was forced to restrict himself to superficial sentiments. There was no use tumbling into situations from which the only possible issue was a rather reason for this abstention, and he seldom relaxed it; but the consul appealed to him on rather strong grounds, and he suffered himself to be persuaded.

The last time he called before the arrival of the expected brother he found Miss Theory alone, and sitting up, for a wonder, at her window. Kate had driven into Naples to give orders at the hotel for the reception of the travelers, who required accommodations more spacious than the villa at Posilippo (where the two sisters had the best rooms) could offer them; and the sick girl had taken advantage of her absence and of the pretext offered by a day of delicious warmth to transfer herself, for the first time in six months, to an arm chair. She was practicing, as she said, for the long carriage journey to the north, where, in a quiet corner they knew of, on the Lago Maggiore, her summer was to be spent. Raymond Benyon remarked to her that she had evidently turned the corner and was going to get well, and this gave her a chance to say various things that were on her mind, poor Mildred Theory, so eager and restless, and yet so resigned and patient as she was; with a clear, quick spirit, in the most perfect health, even reaching forward, to the end of its tense little chain, from her wasted and suffering body; and, in the course of the perfect summer afternoon, as she sat there, exhilarated by the success of her effort to get up, and by her comfortable opportunity, she took her friendly visitor into the confidence of most of her anxieties. She told him, very promptly and positively, that she was not going to get well at all, that she had probably made up her mind to give up the idea, and that he would oblige her very much by not forcing her to waste any more breath to contradict him on that point. Of course she couldn't talk much; therefore, she wished to say to him only things that he would not hear from any one else. Such, for instance, was her present secret—Kate's and her—she said that her feeling so much that they should be like Percival's wife, who was not from Boston, but from New York. Naturally, that by itself would be nothing, but from what they had heard of her set—this subject had been explored by their correspondents—they were rather nervous, not more so than the fact of not being in the least reassured by the fact that the young lady would bring Percival a fortune. The fortune was a matter of course, but she had heard that she had heard about Agnes' circle—that the stamp of money was on all their thoughts and doings. They were very rich, and they were very young, and evidently had very little in common with the two Miss Theories, who, moreover, if the truth must be told (and this was a great secret), did not care much for the letters their sister-in-law had hitherto addressed them. She had been at a French boarding-school in New York, and yet (this was the great secret of all she wrote to them that she had performed a part of the journey through France in a diligence). Of course, Miss Mildred was sure she would know in a moment whether Agnes would like them. She could never have told him all this if her sister had been there, and Capt. Benyon must promise never to tell Kate, Benyon she had chattered. Kate thought always that they must hide everything, and that even if Agnes should be a dreadful disappointment they must never let any one guess it. And yet Kate was just the one who would suffer in the coming years after she herself had gone. Their brother had been everything to them, but now it would all be different. Of course it was not to be expected that the two sisters had remained a bachelor for their sake; she only wished he had waited until she was dead and Kate was married. One of them was the other; Kate might never marry—much as she wished she would. She was quite morbidly unselfish, and didn't think it was right to have anything of her own—even a husband. Miss Mildred talked a good while about Kate, and it never occurred to her that she might have had none of the trouble of wondering why this poor, sick, worried lady was trying to push her sister down under a stone. Their peculiar situation made everything natural, and the tone she took with him now seemed only what their pleasant relations for the last three months led up to. Moreover, he had an excellent reason for not being bored; the fact—namely, that after all, with regard to her, she was the best thing that had happened to him to keep back more than she uttered. She didn't tell him the great thing—she had nothing to say as to what that charming girl thought of Raymond Benyon. The effect of their interview, indeed, was to make him shrink from knowing, and he felt that the right thing for him would be to get back into his boat, where he was waiting at the garden steps, before Kate Theory should return from Naples. It came over him, as he sat there, that he was far too interested in knowing what this young lady thought of him. She might think what she pleased; it could make no difference to him. The best opinion in the world—if it looked out at him from her tender eyes—would not make "hobby" if her loveliness is as apparent by daylight as at the hops. Perfect beauty is never the attendant of disease; above all, of those diseases peculiar to women, and which find a ready care in Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

The number of sheep in the United States is 51,000,000. That is about a sheep apiece for us; but we were obliged to import during the past year over 78,000,000 pounds of wool in order to supply the demand for home use and what has been manufactured stuff; we are able to sell to outsiders.

A Golden Opinion.
—Mrs. Wm. Allan of Acton declares that Hagar's Yellow Oil is the best household remedy in the world for colds, croup, sore throat, burns, scalds and other painful complaints. Her opinion is well founded.

Put him down as friendly—"How do you feel regarding the christian religion?" asked an interviewer of a rich but very cautious man. "Well—er—" he hesitated, not knowing what to be said in response. "You can—er—put me down as friendly, I think."

—Thomas Robinson, Farham Centre, P.O., writes: "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for the last ten years, and have tried many remedies without any relief. I got a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, and used it for some instant relief, and since then have had no attack. I would recommend it to all."

It is whispered that the desire of a tria-luncheon has been dished up on the fashionable parlor until it has looked like a china shop for many a year, to be banished, and the cold, frigid severity which characterized the drawing room of long ago will be the proper caper. Superabundant window decorations are being given up, and the sickly and sickly in children is caused by worms. Mother Gray's Worm Expeller gives relief by removing the cause. Try it and make the improvement in your child.

"You may talk as much as you please," remarked the Frisco man; "but let me tell you that I consider your arguments as not given you so much as a thought." "I don't give you so much as a thought," he replied; "the response; 'I wouldn't have you bankrupt yourself on my account.'"

—A. M. Hamilton, Warwick, writes: "For weeks I was troubled with a swollen ankle, which was very painful and annoying. Mr. May's Electric Oil for Rheumatism cured me. I was able to get up and about again. I would recommend it to all who are afflicted with this complaint. It is an article of great value. Beware of Electric Oil. Beware of cheap imitations of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil."

Rating a small piece of soap at stated intervals is recommended by a Berlin physician as a better remedy for dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulency, and other ailments of the stomach and bowels.

—Mrs. George Simpson, Toronto, says: "I have suffered severely from rheumatism, and was unable to get out of bed for many weeks. I was recommended to try Holloway's Corn Cure. After applying it for a few days I was enabled to get up, and since then have had no pain whatever, and no inconvenience in using it. I can heartily recommend it to all suffering from corns."

"Will you help me press some leaves?" the maiden asked her lover. "If you will fashion them into your beautiful hair, I can do," he answered. "That is a popular method of preserving autumn leaves."

There are cheap panaceas for various human ailments continually cropping up. Nurshup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Lycopodium Cure are no exception. Unlike them, the article is derived from the purest sources, and is prepared with the utmost chemical skill, and is a genuine remedy and not a palliative for biliousness, constipation, kidney troubles, impurity of the blood, and female complaints.

It is a great comfort to the Massachusetts people that the skeleton of a mastodon has been found near Shrewsbury. This new discovery quite throws the bones of the mastodon in the shade. It is hoped that the massive country now finds an appreciation in the fact that the bones of the mastodon are still to be seen in the West. Mr. C. W. Winslow, Toronto, writes: "Northrop's Lycopodium Cure is a valuable medicine to all who are troubled with biliousness, constipation, kidney troubles, impurity of the blood, and female complaints. It is a genuine remedy and not a palliative for biliousness, constipation, kidney troubles, impurity of the blood, and female complaints."

An Englishman, writing to the London Times, says: "I had heard much of American newspapers, but I must say that I have been disappointed. The Boston Herald is one of the largest dailies of this country, and is given up to chicken advertisements. The American seem to be well over a certain breed of rooster."

—West Toronto Junction is within a few minutes of the Union station by the train of either the Ontario and Northern, Grand Trunk or the Northern. Real estate in the neighborhood has steadily risen in value and promise. Some of the best lots in West Toronto are to be had from George Clarke, 295 Yonge street.

Good For All.
—For all diseases of the blood, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for all ailments, it is purely vegetable, can do no harm, and is always beneficial.

The man who runs the skating rink is beginning to turn up his nose at the aristocratic plumber and the affluent ice dealer.

THE COMBAULT'S CAUSTIC BALSAM!
It is undoubtedly the most valuable and reliable Veterinary Remedy ever discovered. It has superseded the Actual Caustery or hot iron; produces more than four times the effect of a blister; takes the place of all liniments, and is the safest application ever used, as it is impossible to produce a scar or bluish with it. It is a powerful, active, reliable and safe remedy that can be manipulated at will for severe or mild cases. Thousands of this country testify to its many wonderful cures and its great practical value. It is also the most economical remedy in use, as one tablespoonful of Combault's Balsam will produce more actual results than a whole bottle of any liniment or spavin cure mixture ever made. Price $1.50. Sold by druggists, or by W. W. Williams & Co., Sole Importers and Proprietors, 21 Front Street West, Toronto. Beware of cheap imitations. Without their own signature on the label.
