TRUE WITNESS AND CATHOLIC CHRONICLE.—NOV. 17, 1876.

THE LATE VICAR GENERAL HAY.

The intelligence of the death of this distinguished prelate will cause the most profound regret en henever he was known either personally or by reputation. For more than a year the deceased has been suffering most accutely from neuralgia which though sudden, was not unexpected.

He was sufficiently strong to say Mass in his church at St. Andrew's yesterday morning, and during the day he did not complain of being unusually ill, but about nine o'clock last night he complained of a severe pain in the back. His atdoing so he said "God have mercy upon my soul" and immediately became unconscious, and died at about half-past ten.

It is impossible, just as we are going to press, to say in this issue all that might be written about this great and good man. For over forty five years he was connected with the parish of St. Andrews, and during all that period he endeared himself not only to those of his own persuasion but to all Protestants. Strenuous and diligent of the advocacy of the tenets of the Roman Catholic Church -yet tolerant of the views and beliefs of Protestants he never said or did aught to excite any bitter religious fends. To the poor of all denominations he was a generous benefactor. His hospitality was equal to his kindness of heart, and many times to serve his friends or to relieve strangers he submitted to much personal incon-

" But in his duty prompt, at every call, He watch'd and wept, he prayed and felt for all."

At the bedside of the sick or dying his presence was comforting, and many an erring man he rescued from a wayward course and enabled him to meet his Maker with "that peace which passeth all understanding." In the words of Goldsmith

"Beside the bed where parting life was laid, And sorrow, guilt and pain by turns dismay'd.
The reverend champion stood, at his control, Despair and anguish fled the struggling soul; Comfort came down the trembling wretch to raise And his last faltering accents whisper'd praise. At church with meek and unaffected grace, His looks adorn'd the venerable place; Truth from his lips prevail'd with double sway. And fools, who came to scoff, remained to pray, The service past around the pious man With ready zeal each honest rustic ran ; E'en children follow'd with endearing will And plucked his gown, to share the good man's smile. Hs ready smile the parent's warmth express'd, Their welfare pleased him, and their cares dis-

To them his heart, his love, his griefs, were given, But all his serious thoughts had rest in heaven.

His death leaves a blank patent to all familiar with the parish of St. Andrews over which he wielded a moral and religious influence such as no other man can attain, and many an individual will mourn for a long time the death of this noblest christian and kindest of friends.

The remains of this distinguished prelate were consigned to their last restion place on Tuesday morning. From Friday to Tuesday morning the body-clothed in canonical vestments-lay in state in the sitting room which the deceased had always occupied, and were viewed by hundreds who came to take a farewell look at the face which had so often shed comfort and happiness in many a houeshold. The room was entirely draped with black cloth, and was lighted by several wax tapers. Extensive preparations were made in the church for the funeral ceremonies. The several altars, all the chandeliers, the gallery and the pillars were covered with black cloth which gave a sombre sadness to the edifice, and impressed everyone with the awfulness of the end which we must all come to- The immense concourse of people and array of clergymen on Tuesday morning was a splendid testimony of the esteem and regard which was entertained for the deceased by all parties.

The funeral and church service is admirably described in a letter signed "An Observer" which we

Sia,—Being among those who were in attendance at the large funeral of the late Very Reverend George A. Hay, Vicar-General of the Diocese of Kingston, permit me to give a short sketch of the imposing ceremony of that sad occasion, and a synopsis of a portion of the sermon preached by the Very Reverend Vicar-General Farrelly of Belleville,

Although the day turned out unfavorable, being cloudy and wet, when I arrived at St. Andrews, which was an hour before the commencement of the service, a great multitude of people were there from the United Counties, including some from a distance, and many leading Protestants, to pay their last tribute of respect to the great lamented dead. The church was draped in black suitable to the oc-

At about a quarter of an hour before the time appointed for the Requiem Mass, His Grace, Archbishop Williams, of Boston, arrived accompanied by an attendant priest, which pleased all to see that a person in the exalted position of the Archbishop, at a great inconvenience to himself would come all the way from Boston at such short notice to do honor to the remains of the late Parish Priest of St. Andrews. I do not know the exact number or the names of the clergy present but I believe their number was about twenty-five including, besides the Archbishop and Vicar-General Farrelly the following reverend gentlemen :- Fathers Dowd, Hogan, and Leclair of Montreal, Fathers McDonald of Lochiel, O'Connor of Alexandria, Masterson of St. Raphaels Gauthier of Williamstown, Murray of Cornwall, Duffus of Finch, Meade of Morrisburgh, Murray of Kemptville, Corbet and Williams of Kingston, Twomey of Centerville, Walsh of Hogansburgh, Marcoux of St. Regis, Chisholm of Perth, Sprat of Wolf Island, McCarthy of Brockville, Fox of St. Andrews, Clune of Smith's Falls, and many others whose names I did not ascertain. It was a matter of general regret that His Lordship, the Bishop of Kingston, was unable to be present through a severe attack of illness. His Lordship, Bishop Healy of Portland, I am creditably informed would have been present only that the day of the funeral was the anniversary of the death of His Lordship's predecessor.

Among the laity present I noticed A. F. McDon-ald, Esq., M. P., J. G. Snetsinger, Esq., M. P. P. for Cornwall, A. J. Grant, Esq., M. P. P. for Glengarry, Messrs. Woodward and Brooks, contractors of the Cornwall Canal, D. B. McLennan, Q. C., Sheriff Mc-Intyre, P. E. Adams and William Mack of Corn-

At about ten o'clock the remains of the deceased enclosed in a metalic casket, preceded by His Grace the Archbishop and Clergy in their clerical robes, were borne by pall bearers, composed of members of the parish, and taken into the sanctuary of the church. While the coffin was thus removed the solemn chant of the clergy, used on such a rare occasion, amidst the mournful tolling of the bells of the two churches, could be heard swelling in the air as they neared.

Shortly after the remains were taken to the sanctuary, that favorite friend of the deceased, the venerable Father Dowd, assisted by Father Cauthier as deacon and Father Leclair as sub-deacon commenced the celebration of the Requiem Mass. The choir, assisted by peals of the organ, sang during the cere-mony, and the earnest and dignified manner of the celebrant and an occasion so mournful could not do otherwise than excite those present to pious considerations.

Line and the second of the sec

At the conclusion of the Mass the Very Reverend Vicar-General Farrelly ascended the pulpit to pro- you. nounce the funeral oration. He spoke with great carnestness, feeling, and judgment. (I regret I cannot from memory give a full synopsis of his sermon). He called to the recollection of all that a great man, a good and uncompromising priest, a been sunering most character bis heart, so that his death, gentleman and a scholar—a priest, according to the order of Melchisedec and the heart of Jesus Christ, had gone to his long home; that although he was dead he lived in his works, and he particularly referred to the monument he left behind him in the St. Andrew's Church; that he was an example to complained of a severe pain in the back. His attempt to the mail and particularly to young priests in the tendants at once applied some relief, and while life he led on earth, and that he would be interceding for his parisbioners in heaven. He stated that another link that connected the present with the early settlement of the church in Ontario had gone in the very Reverend Dr. Hay; that for over forty in Ontario. He alluded to the founding of the diocese of Upper Canada (now Ontario) by that great man the Right Reverend Bishop McDonell when he had only two priests to work with him in his vast diocese, and connected with fhe name of the last named prelate, the Reverend William P. McDonell, the Reverend William Fraser the predecessor of Doctor Hay, the late Vicar-General Angus Mc-Donell and the now only one living among them, the Very Reverend John McDonald, late of St. Raphaels. He touched upon the hardships Bishop McDonell and the reverend geatlemen endured in the early settlement of the church in Ontario, and particularly remarked that the late great deceased always stood high in the estimation of his bishops; that on difficult questions he was always consulted by the several Bishops who presided over the diocese during his long priesthood, and that they showed their appreciation of him in successively raising him to high dignities in the diocese. He also drew their attention to the fact how much he was esteemed all over when the highest dignitary of the church in the diocese of Boston, Archbishop Williams, would come at such great inconvenience to himself so far to pay the last tribute of respect to the remains of the good Dr. Hay. He also told them that only at the strict direction of his physician, the Right Reverend Dr. O'Brien, their Bishop, was absent through illness.

After the sermon was over the last that remained of the late venerable pastor of St. Andrew's was deposited amid many a tear with the remains of his predecessor in the vault built for that purpose under the altar of the blessed Virgin.

TO INTENDING EMIGRANTS.

A short time ago Mr. Henry Dennis was induced, by the glowing accounts given by pamphlets and land agents of the country in South-western Missouri, to sell his farm in Ops adjoining the town of Lindsay, and go in search of land for settlement in the country in whose praise he had heard so much. Though he went predisposed in its favour, he had returned thoroughly disgusted. His mode of procedure shows him to be a shrewd, sensible, and practical man, and his description of Missouri can therefore be relied on as correct. years the deceased was connected with the church | He did not take his family but went alone to spy out the land. He did not, on his arrival there throw himself into the hands of the resident land agents, to be driven behind a spanking team to get glimpses of the country, while his ears were filled with lying tales concerning it; but he chose to travel on foot, examine the soil for himself, and learn the experience of the farmers from their own lips. The country is a high table land, all rock, the water, according to the agents books, being very clear," because there is no soil to sully its purity. It cannot, however, be got by digging, and many who have sunk wells, have been forced to abandon the "dry holes" and return to the hill-side springs for their supply. The timber consists exclusively of scrub oak, a mere shrub, the top of which can be almost reached by an average-sized man. In a day's ride along the Iron Mountain Railway Mr. Dennis declares he "could not see the makings of a farm." The settlers themselves declare that they cannot raise ten bushels to the acre, the general average being five or six bushels. The barley and oats raised would not sell at all in Canada, and corn is the only crop that can he raised He only found two farmers who expressed themselves satisfied, and one of these a few years ago had good cheese factories in Ops and Mariposa, and could then drive about in his carrriage, while now he has to be satisfied with a "prairie schooner." The grasshoppers have laid their eggs there very thickly, and in consequence the settlers have just finished sowing their wheat, to save it from being devoured. Some think the frost will kill all the "hoppers," but those of great experience declare that a crop of the hungry creatures will be hatched out in the spring sufficient to cat the country up. Besides these drawbacks fevers abound, and ague is a guest in every household. There are no educational or religious advantages and the effect is seen in the aspect and manner of the people. Mr. Dennis attended a "spree" at which were gathered a great number of prairie residents, put he declares half-a-dozen young folks here would have made more fun in a few minutes than the whole crowd of dispirited and dejected country sidesettlers could dream of. He saw numbers of Canadians who would return if they could, but have invested their all, they must make the best, or worst, of it. Mr. Dennis asserts that he could now, with the expenditure of less money than it would take to settle in Missouri, go and locate a Government grant in Muskoka, and, without putting a hand to it himself, get it cleared and ready for cultivation, with the certainty of having land fit to live on and work instead of going to a place where physical, mental and moral starproaches of the Legislative buildings. About vation is the sure fate of the unfortunate who three o'clock the usual salute from the Citadel an-nounced the arrival of His Excellency the Admin-it is healthier, and better in every way that can settles. He says our country may be colder, but be imagined.

THE CANADA PACIFIC RAILWAY LINE.—The Canada Pacific Railway Locations, just completed for a distance of several hundred miles west from Thunder Bay, are very favourable with light grades and curves, and can be (with the exception of 90 miles) built at a comparatively moderate cost; and as easily built as any division on the Northern Pacific was. The one hundred and odd miles recently let to Messrs. Purcell & Ryan is being prosecuted with vigour, and unless delayed by a tunnel (the only one east of the Bocky Mountains) will be complet ed long before the date fixed by their contract. The remaining 300 miles to Red River can be built in 18 months. From Red River to the Rocky Mountrins can be constructed at the rate of 250 miles per annum. The line has been so located as to touch the deep navigable waters of the following deep rivers and lakes, viz :- Lake of the Woods, Winnipeg, Lake des Milles Lacs, Wabagan, Red River, Lake Manitoba, Winnepegoosis, and the Saskachewan River etc, etc. Thus opening a way to a river and lake shore line of over 4,000 miles in length, which will be available for settlement time to time as the line proceeds. Much of the shores are the most desirable lands for settlement in the Dominion, being in many instances prairie and timber land mixed in the most desirable proportions. The coast lines in the interior are equal in extent to those of the St. Lawrence and the great lakes .- Thunder Bay Sentinel.

BENEDICTION OF A BELL .- A large number of people assembled at Hawkesbury Village, on Sunday last, to witness the christening of a bell that is to be put up in the tower of the Roman Catholic Church, lately erected in that place. The bell weighs 500 pounds, and was purchased by the inhabitants of the village. The following gentlemen were present: His Lordship Bishop Dubamel, who had been kindly invited by Fatner Routhier, accompani-ed by his Secretary, Rev D F Foley, Rev. A. Brunet, late P. P of L'Orignal, Rev. J. Champagne, of the Gatineau, Joseph Duhamel, nephew of the Bishop. High Mass was sung by Father Brunet, accompanied by Father Routhier, and Father Foley; Father Champagne officiating at the organ.
After the sermon, which was delivered by the Bishop, in French and English the Benediction took place. The bell was presented by Rev.
Antoine Brunet, Mrs. Matilde Lawior, Dr. Harkin, M. P., Elizabeth McDonald, Felix Harbic, I melie LeCour, Simon LaBrosse, Helene Garrett, Denis Doyle, Elizabeth Dunn, John Kelly, Julia Lawlor, Jean Bte. Lacroix, Flora Gerard, John Murphy, Mrs. Hoey, who gave the bell the name of "Marie Joseph Alphonse." The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and a very large number of people were unable to find even standing room. The collection being taken up, (which amounted to nearly $200 00.) the assembly broke up, when Mrs. Lawlor etertained the Rev. Gentlemen and a large number of friends to dinner.—L'Orignal News.

THE CENTRAL PRISON CHARGES .- TORONTO, NOVEMber 12.—The Telegram last night published the full

it claims is indisputable. The most of them are directed against Stedman, the chief guard, though minor charges affect the warden, Captain Prince. The first case it mentions is that of James Hickey, a convict from Kingston; while being conducted to the dungeon, a place of solitary confinement, since abolished on account of its damp atmosphere and defective ventilation, he was beaten and kicked by Stedman for resisting the attempts of the guard to make him walk faster than his shackles would permit him. The second case is that of a young man named Dillon, who, on discovering himself after having been secreted in a flue for several days, was struck by Stedman a heavy blow over the eye with a heavy walking stick, which felled him to the floor. He was afterwards placed in the dark cell with his feet shackled and his hands tied to a ring bolt in the wall, which kept him in a standing posture, so that sleep was impossible. He was then set breaking stones, though the wound over his eye had developed into a dangerous kind of erysipelas, stopping up his eye and causing a painful swelling of the head, arms and shoulders. He fell down unconscious at his work and after a time was allowed medical attention, the doctor remarking that any further delay would have proved fatal to him. A lunatic named Lewis was beaten over the back by Stedman with a key a foot and a half long and one and a half pounds in weight, for making an outcry. The blow was so heavy that the key was bent. This cruelty failing to stop the madman's cries, he was gagged. Subsequently he was removed to the London Asylum the wounds on his back being at that time plainly visible. Another convict named John O'Shaughnessy, for using some offensive language was chained up in a standing posture for five days and nights, his toes at the time being powerless from having been frozen before his entrance into prison. His only respite was for a few minutes three times a day in order to receive a meagre allowance of bread and water. When he was finally released from this position his wrists and ankles were terribly swollen and he was unable to walk. Among other allegations are that the prisoners were compelled to work at stone-breaking while suffering from typhoid fever, which raged in the prison a few months ago. There are a number of other charges of cruelty to prisoners against Stedman. Capt. Prince, the Warden, is charged with having been frequently seen drunk by the guards and prisoners, and with using prison labor for private purposes. Complaints are also made of the impure food served up to the prisoners. The publication of these charges has caused a good deal of excitement in the
