The MIC MAC REMEDY A SPECIFIC FOR SMALL-POX.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR MAJOR LANE. A HOPELESS CASE OF SMALL-POX CURED BY THE MIC-MAC REMEDY.

To Major Ino. Lane. GREENFIELD, Mass. DEAR SIR,—I telegraphed for a puckage of your Small-Pox Remedy on last Monday, which I received the following day. I would have instantly responded and forwarded the money, but thought I would wait the result of its trial. I prepared the medicine myself so as to render everything secure; and I am proud to be able to state that it produced almost instantaneous relief. It was a milignant case of Small-Pox—in fact, there was no hope of recovery expressed on any side; but by the application of your famous Remedy it easily yielded. Enclosed I send you a five dollar bill. Please acknowledge. GREENFIELD, Mass. To Major Jno. Lanc. five dollar bill. Please acknowledge. Your truly, Rev. W. A. HENNEBERRY.

Price, $5 per package. Sent to any part of the Dominion, post paid, on receipt of price—a liberal discount to Clergy-men, Physicians and Charitable institutions.

THE REMEDIES OF J. EMERY. CODERRE, M.D.

The business that in connection with prepared prescriptions approaches more closely to a manufacturing pursuit, and, therefore, though denounced by the schools as irregular, is for our purposes the most regular in the manufacture of medical preparations. The individuals and firms engaged in this business are both enterprising themselves and the promoters of enterprise in others. When we consider that the preparations in many instances are beneficial, and, as respects almost all, entirely harmless, the manufacture would seem to be entitled to a larger share of respectful consideration than it has hitherto received. The remedies of the established firms have much weighty testimony in favor of their excellence, and the popularity and consequent saleability of a few are truly remarkable, with special reference to the following Remedies:—

Remedies:-Dr. Coderre's Expectorating Syrup. For the last thirty years the Expectorant Syrup has been known and used with never-failing re-sults, for Coughs, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Affections

Dr. Coderre's Infants' Syrap Can be given with impunity to infants in cases of Colles, Diarrhose, Dysentery, Painful Dentition, Inability to Sleep, Coughs, Colds, &c., and is now regarded as the standard remedy for the phoyo.

Dr. Coderre's Tonic Elixir

Is specially adapted for women requiring the use of tonics and alterant agents. Its use can be continued without any inconvenience, in complaints such as Chlorosis, or Green Sickness; Leucorrhea, or Whites; Dysmenorrhea, or difficult course; Anaemia, or thinness of the blood; General debility, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Serofula, Ringworm and other Diseases of the Skin, &c., &c. Pure medical preparations are as necessary as skilled physicians,—they are the armies provided by nature and science to overcome the insidious legions of death, and if these armies are demoralized by unskilful arrangement, lack of prudence or vigilance they become a dangerous host, agents of destruction of which the less we have the better. These truths are obvious, yet they cannot be too strongly or too often impressed upon the public mind.

A RELIC OF ST. ANDREW.

It may not be uninteresting to some of our Scotch readers, now that the annual celebration of their patron saint is again at hand, to know that a relic of the saint has recently come into the possession of a high dignitary of the Roman Catholic Church of Scotland. After the elevation of the present Archbishop of St. Andrew's (and Edinburgh) to that ancient see, His Grace made application to the Bishop of Amalfi, Italy, in whose cathedral are kept the remains of St. Andrew, for a relic of the saint, in order to its preservation in the cathedral church in Edinburgh. The Bishop of Amalfi at once acceded to the request, and on receiving the relic, the Archbishop had it encased in a beautiful reliquary, which is hardly less interesting than the relic itself. The body of the reliquary, which is of solid gold and of curious antique workmanship, was bought and presented to His Grace (then the Bishop of Abila, in partibus) by the Marquis of Bute, before his becoming a Catholic. It was for some time, but, on account of the body being six-sided, inconveniently, used as a ciborium. The addition of a crystal can and a golden head-piece has now transformed the reliquary into an exceedingly elegant piece of church furniture. It is, we understand, the intention of His Grace to inaugurate the re ceipt of the relic upon the approaching feast of St. Andrew.

GERMAN INFIDELITY.

"How is it," asks the London Universe that infidelity is spreading so fast in Germany among all those who do not belong to the fold of the Catholic Church? The Echo der Gegenwart, a Catholic journal published at Aix-la-Chapelle, traces this deplorable state of things to the spirit exhibited in the German universities, in which atheism is taught quite openly. Our contemporary says: Thanks to the German universities, it has come to this, that a conviction has generally gained ground in Germany as though the action. kingdom of heaven, to use Heine's phrase, were intended only "for angels and sparrows, while man ought to cling feverishly to the enjoyment of the good things of this world, being the only real good to be found.'

"A Socialist orator some little time ago said at Berlin that every man of but the least education was an atheist, that science had killed Christianity, and that Christ was a myth like all religion. The German emperor, on the contrary, hold that religion ought to be preserved for the people.' The conclusion is that those who wish for religion in Germany will henceforth find it nowhere except in the Catholic Church.

A SAD CASE.

TORONTO, November 21 .- A sad case of cruelty and neglect has just been revealed in a suit for alimony in the Court of Chancery. It seems that an accountant in a law office named Richardson, married, in April, 1877, the daughter of Rev. Mr. Gibbs, a Methodist minister. Immediately after the honeymoon he gave himself up to violent fits of passion, during which he would beat and kick his wife in a most unmerciful and cruel manner. Two or three times she left him, but each time was persuaded to return. In January last, when she was enceinte, the brute kicked her in a most brutal manner, and she lay in hysterics all night. After the child was born, he, one night when it was pouring rain, took the poor little thing under his arm, and carried it round some time in this manner, followed by his wretched wife. At length, unable to bear such treatment any longer, she lett the man for good. He then accused her of infidelity and all sorts of improprieties, and wrote her a letter to that effect, which was produced in Court, when the defendant had to acknowledge it was all untrue. The Court made an order compelling defendant to pay plaintiff $150 a year out of a salary of $3 which is all he earns. The child remains in the custody of the mother.

Mr. Edison's electric light invention employs a platinum coil, which is raised to incandescence by its resistance to the passage of a current of electricity through it. The idea has been experimented on very extensively for the last quarter of a century, but the peculiarity of Mr. Edison's invention is a device to prevent the wire fusing, and this, it is claimed, has been accomplished by so applying a small bar that it will expand the instant the wire reaches the fusing point and intercept the flow of the current through the wire sufficient to prevent fusing. NATURALIST'S PORTFOLIO.

A New Use For Seals .- There exists an animal which might be trained to render us service, that is the seal, which is slaughtered so mercilessly for the sake of its oil and skin. Intelligent and affectionate, it possesses all the qualities suitable for a domestic state. The director of the Museum at Dijon had so skilfully tamed one some years ago, that though by nature amphibious, primitive habits were changed, and it rarely went into the water, placing itself during the winter close to its master in the warm corner of the fireside, stretched on the wood-ashes. It pains were taken to teach the seal, it might become to the fisherman what the dog is to the hunter. Nor need we despair of such a result, for the Chinese train the remota or sucking fish to catch turtles, and the heron and cormorant to capture fishes. The coasts of England would be fit places for the education of the seal. The value of such help may be imagined when we think of the great soliitude of the sea-so many times larger than the space covered by land, where man has noally, and can only count upon those who dread him. What an interest for him in the very elementitself to have a friend and companion who would follow him in his fishing expeditions. There are not wanting conclusive results which have been obtained in individual cases; and if the same care were extended to the race, we may say that the seal is an ally ready prepared by Nature.

A Cave Containing Millions of Leather-Winged Bats.—A curious story of a "but-cave" in South-western Texas appears in the Boston Home Fournal, "from the pen of a gentleman who has recently visited the place." This cave, which is of unknown extent, is entered by a mouth some thirty or forty feet wide, by twelve or affect helph, and the interior walls, of a hard bluish ilmestone, are perfectly dry. No crystallizations of any kind were discovered by the explorer, but the interior was "perfectly alive with uncounted millions of leather-winged bats. Hanging to the walls and ceilings were everywhere knots of these creatures, like bees that had settled, while the air seemed literally alive and yoal with the incessant hum of myriads in ceaseless and apparently objectless flight." Every evening, we are further told, the bats come forth to seek food. "First," says the harrator, came a small detachment of a thousand or two, and after an interval of some minutes, the flight commenced by millions and billions. For two and a half hours the bat stream was incessant, filling the mouth of the cave completely, and on our way to camp we could see the undininished stream of animal file still flowing, and looking in the distance not unlike long fines of black smoke from the chlumey of a sea steamer." At the first blush, a bat cave like this does not seem a very desirable thing for a man to have on his "home lot." But the shrewd Texan preprietor was found to be twenty-five feet deep in a deposit smelling so strongly of animonia that for thwith a sample was despatched to the marrest analyst, who pronounced it to compare favorably with the guano of Pern. Here was a find, indeed, hasmuch as the known parts of the cave are estimated to contain $0.00 tons. When our contemporary's correspondent left, the proprietor was busily sinking a shaff down to the main chamber, and receiving the congrudistress in England. In the cotton districts —The total population of Queensland, Australia, last year, was 203,081 of whom 124,924 were males. Queensland, covers an area as large as Europe, less Russia, Germany, Austria, and Scandinavia. The immigration to it has been mainly at the cost of its Government. The present Governor is brother to Lord Chancellor Cairns. He resides at Brisbane, the capital, and has a salary of $20,000 a year, with furnished house and allowances worth about $2,500 more.

—On the occasion of a recent festival in Valencia, Spain, a buil, which had been tormented all day by displays of red cloths, pricks of iron instruments, and knife cuts, was covered with spirits of turpentine at night and set on fire. He was tied by the horns

THE HABITS OF AUTHORS.

Many anecdotes are recorded of the habits of authors and their periods of composition. Thus Buffon always wrote in full dress in a room the only furniture of which was a desk and chair. Sheridan wrote his comedies at night surrounded by wax lights, and refreshing himself with toasted muffins. Tom Moore wrote his songs in bed of a morning. Sir Walter Scott sat down to his work with the punctuality of a man of business; and so on. To such as these may be added the account given in his letters of the habits of Balzac, who was accustomed to dine at six, then go to sleep until one in the morning-at which time he rose, and wrote all night till noon, breakfasted, took a walk, and returned, to go through the same routine, working eighteen hours out of the twenty-four-and sustaining those literary habits for twenty years.

GREAT CITIES OF THE WORLD .- The population of the great cities of the world is a matter of perennial interest. According to latest official estimates in each city, or the latest census, where these are not attainable, they range as follows:-London, of course, heads the list with its 3,533,484; Paris comes next, with 1,851,792, by the census of 1872; then Pekin, with 1,500,000, and Canton, with 1,300,000; next comes New York, with 1.069,-362, and closes the list of those having more 1,000,000 inhabitants. Of those having less than 1,000,000 and more than 500,000, Berlin comes first with 994,343; then Philadelphia, with 850,856; next next Tokio, Japan, the Yeddo of the old geographies, with 809,000; Vienna, 690, 548; St Petersburg, 669,741; Bombay, 644,405; Kioto, Japan, 560,000; Glasgow, 555,933; Ozaka, Japan, 530,000; Brooklyn, 527,830; Liverpool, 527,083. St. Louis claims 500,000, and if allowed her own estimate, heads the list of those ranging downward from 500,000 to 250,000. Then follow, Naples, with 457,407; Chicago, with 440,000; Calcutta, 429,535; Nankin, 400,000; Madras, 397,552; Hamburg, 393,588; Birmingham, 377,346; Manchester, 359,213; Baltimore, 355,000; Boston, 354,765; Shanghai, 320,000; Dublin, 314,666; Buda-Pesth, 314,401; Amsterdam, 302,266; San Francisco, 300,000; Leeds. 298,189; Rome, 282,214; Sheffield, 282,130; Cincinnatti, 280,000; Breslau, 259,345; Melbourne, 250,678; Havana, 250,000. Thus it will be seen that there are 39 cities each having 250,000 inhabitants, or more, supposing none to have been omitted, and an aggregate of about 24,000,000.

-The Government of Guatemala invites immigration, and grants assistance, both in mony and lands, to settlers; but requires that such immigrants shall renounce their nationality and all rights as foreigners before leaving the mother country. After a year's residence and good conduct in Guatemala, the Government will give them a certificate of citizenship.

-The California Constitutional Convention has adopted a section providing that three-fourths of a jury may render a verdict in all cases except felony. In cases of felony a jury must be unanimous in order to secure conviction or acquittal. It is not probable that this innovation will meet with the approval of the people of California.
