

then suddenly it was realized that there was a buck to be made and we became involved in the small car market. I suggest that the automotive industry should be made to toe the line. There is no reason why they should change the design of cars every year.

In my small farm operation we operate old tractors. How classy they look is not important. What is important is how effective they are. I think many people are interested in automobiles simply for conveyance. There are others who are interested in them for other reasons, and when they trade in a car which they thought was a good one, they find they take quite a loss. In such cases they ask for more money from their employers. I think we are perhaps part of a stupid society that will not shift from its old patterns. Why are we tied to the automotive industry. Why are we locked into it?

I think we should reverse our way of thinking and not be as class conscious as we are. We should not feel that we must change our car every year. If there are to be style changes, I suggest they should be made every second year or, better still, every five years. We thought we had an unlimited amount of energy then suddenly we became energy conscious. I think we could do something about inflation, but we would hit those who are big, those in the automotive industry. I cannot fight the whole automotive industry by myself, but I am suggesting that someone in the department could look into this matter and draft legislation making it mandatory to wear safety belts in automobiles. There are ways in which the government could act so as to make automobile manufacturers build smaller cars.

Mr. Speaker, I thank you and the House for the courtesy of allowing me time to take part in the debate.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Turner (London East)): Is the House ready for the question?

Some hon. Members: Question.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Turner (London East)): Is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the said motion?

Some hon. Members: Agreed.

Some hon. Members: No.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Turner (London East)): All those in favour of the motion will please say yea.

Some hon. Members: Yea.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Turner (London East)): All those opposed will please say nay.

Some hon. Members: Nay.

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Turner (London East)): In my opinion the yeas have it.

And more than five members having risen:

The Acting Speaker (Mr. Turner (London East)): Call in the members.

The House divided on the motion (Mr. Macdonald (Rose-dale)) which was agreed to on the following division:
