

October 24th, 1924.

Principal J. C. Irvine,
The University,
St. Andrews, Scotland.

My dear Irvine:-

Thank you very much for sending me the course of Railway Lectures now given in Scotland. I hope we may be able to establish with our railways a similar liaison.

Things are going very well at the University, our attendance being about the same as last year, while I think our staff is a little stronger. Some of the new men promise to be real sources of strength.

The weather continues to be truly delightful. We have had but one wet day since you left, and as you know there is no more pleasant time of the year in Canada than the Autumn. I never saw our trees more beautiful.

The family are all well, Marjorie having the time of her life. They join me in love to you and Mrs. Irvine.

Yours faithfully,