

The Anglican Advance Towards Rome.

His Eminence Cardinal Vaughan, Archbishop of Westminster, has arrived in Rome. The coming of the Cardinal has been looked forward to with much interest, as the special information he is expected to furnish the Pope regarding the condition of the Anglicans, and their tendencies towards the Catholic Church and communion with the Holy See, is expected to have remarkable results in the course of time. It has been categorically asserted here—and the statement is one that may take one's breath away—that no less than 10,000 persons are converted from Anglicanism to Catholicity every year in the district of London. This does indeed seem a startling number, and many persons here, who are acquainted with England, describe it a gross exaggeration. What is more probable than actual conversion is the increasing tendency towards the Church which has manifested itself in the Anglican body, and the expression of which is so conspicuous in the claims they put forward for recognition as a branch of the Catholic Church. It is expected that the Pope will issue an Encyclical calling upon them to unite with the one centre of unity, and that he will indicate the means by which they may be admitted to union. This determination is the outcome of the many letters addressed to him by Anglicans requesting information regarding the condition on which they would be accepted by Rome. The Pope considers that the time is almost ready to make a kindly and paternal appeal to the many good souls who are living outside the pale of unity; and he is hopeful of success, seeing how well his recent appeal to the Oriental schismatics has been received.

The Pope suspended audiences for a couple of days in consequence of a slight cold which he had taken. Yesterday the giving of audiences was renewed. The retirement of the past days was on the advice of his physician, Professor Lapponi. In his state of health and at his years every precaution is advisable. Professor Lapponi will, it is announced, treat of the cures which take place at Lourdes, and will consider them from the point of view of a physician. To him as to others has come the conviction that these are miraculous.—Pilot.
