CANADA SHOULD NOT PARTICIPATE The United States claims a paramount position in North America. In virtue of the Monroe doctrine it asserts the right to prevent any European power from increasing its territory on this continent. It was in virtue of the Monroe doctrine that the United States interfered in the Venezuelan controversy and insisted upon Great Britain withdrawing its claims to the Guianas with that state. Concurrently with its pretensions under the Monroe doctrine the United States makes no secret of its aspiration to see the whole of North America under the authority of the United States and its stripes. The United States is now celebrating the ejection of Spain from North America. Another European power kicked off the continent—that is the motto of the Devoy celebration. That the United States is working on the idea that it will finally secure possession of North America, there is no doubt in the world. It looks upon the outcome as only a question of time. Against this presumption Canada of course has taken and will continue to take a very determined stand. We are sorry the Mother Country has not been as assertive in its policy in North America as it ought to have been. Latterly, however, Great Britain is manifesting greater interest in her American possessions. Her Imperial position renders it absolutely necessary that she should retain and extend her influence in North America. The duty of holding up British interests in North America rests principally with Canada. The United States is not likely to assert its existence on this continent is a doctrine that is firmly implanted in the minds of Canadians. Nothing arouses Canadian patriotism more than an attack upon our country, and the United States is perpetrating a crime against the United States in its celebration of United States supremacy in America. Canada can not participate in that celebration without, to some degree, admitting that supremacy and without tacitly inspiring the States to go on with the Pan-Americanizing of the continent. Canada will have enough to do to maintain her present status. It is any country's business to defend its own territory, but it is not the business of the United States to interfere with the Americans in their celebration of United States supremacy in America.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE. Toronto is very liberally supplied with schools, colleges and universities. We have schools covering nearly every department of education, both theoretical and practical. One educational institution, however, which exists in some centers Toronto as yet does not possess. We refer to a school for teaching domestic science. Such a school is an one of the necessities of the Law School, the Technical School or almost any other educational institution in the city. There is a proper scientific way of preparing food, of ventilating and furnishing houses, and there is a slowly, unscientific method of performing these services. Between the two there is all the difference in the world. Domestic science is a science, and it is very properly understood and practiced by those in charge of our households. The science of cooking is almost a liberal education in itself, but how many women are there who have studied the question from an economic or gastronomic standpoint? Sanitation in the household is a subject upon which books might be written without exhausting the subject. Very few housewives, however, are furnished with a view to securing the highest degree of health for their inmates. It is said that the taking of a bath in the morning is a habit of the most healthy people. How many workmen are aware of the fact? The house is the place where we spend the bigger part of our time. No kind of education is more desirable than that which comes from the management of the household as much to do with our health and happiness as any other factor in life. We do not expect that a college of domestic science will be established in Toronto, but the household, and it will help to ameliorate present conditions. If such a school can elevate domestic service to a higher level of respectability, it will be a very proper and a better class of girls. It will have ample justification for its existence.

A proposition, the details of which have been made public, is on foot to establish a college of domestic science in Toronto. If the college is launched under proper auspices we do not see why it should not prove a great success. Toronto is a large city to draw from, but a college of this kind would have pupils from all parts of the country. The World heartily endorses the proposition so far as it has been made public and trusts that it will be successfully carried out.

Sissiboo Pulp and Paper Co. The Sissiboo Company has quickly made of it an attractive industrial undertaking, and sufficient capital has already been obtained to ensure the dotation of the enterprise. In the possession of an inexhaustible supply of raw material, and a property situated practically on the seaboard, this affording a very facility for prompt shipment of the manufactured pulp, the Sissiboo Company has a decided advantage over the majority of manufacturers of pulp and paper, and with ordinary good management the success of the company in realizing all that is set forth in their prospectus would seem to be assured. The ever-increasing demand for pulp and paper, both of which now enter into the composition of so many articles of daily use, promises a market for the mill at a little over an hour and was not the market price of the article is so encouraging to the mill, that, resorting to the recent sale of Crown lands in New Brunswick, a St. John paper says that the Sissiboo Company has been able to buy the pulp, and that the result of this will be a considerable saving to the mill. The Sissiboo Company, however, is not content with the timber and the mill will be converted into the more valuable pulp. The original promoters of this enterprise, we are told, have been able to buy the pulp, and that the result of this will be a considerable saving to the mill. The Sissiboo Company, however, is not content with the timber and the mill will be converted into the more valuable pulp.

A Combination in Magic. In these days of combinations in trade, combinations in theatrical entertainments may be expected, and under the title of "The Great Triple Alliance," Mr. A. J. Small presents at the Toronto Opera House this week one of these combinations of rival attractions. In addition to the combination of entertainment forces, Mr. Small's next attraction will be a somewhat unique spectacle, in that it will consist of the appearance on the stage of three magicians, who have hitherto traveled with their own companies, as independent stars. Each of them has made a name for himself in some particular branch of necromancy, and it is said that in Serravallo, Le Roy, Imro Fox and Frederick Powell, the three stars of the coming attraction, the highest art in the magic workers of Great Britain, France and America is represented. For the greatest drawing cards as a musician in Europe. He has been before the public of Europe since 1888 when he made his first appearance as a sleight-of-hand performer at the Casino in London. He has since that time made an immediate success of his magic, and he followed this up by the invention of a number of startling stage tricks, among them "The Vanishing Elephant," which sustained his reputation and, when, in 1877, he produced "The Flying Visit," the greatest illusion of the time at the Alhambra Theatre in London, his fame as a magician was made. Imro Fox is said to have made a name for himself in some particular branch of necromancy, and it is said that in Serravallo, Le Roy, Imro Fox and Frederick Powell, the three stars of the coming attraction, the highest art in the magic workers of Great Britain, France and America is represented.

Buffalo, Sept. 24.—Indication point to a strike of lake marine engineers, and the complete tie up of the big lake boats.
