Her many friends will be glad to hear that there is still hopes of her recovery, at first considered doubtful.

DREW HIS REVOLVER

James Barrett, formerly a soldier at Wolseley Barracks, was arrested last evening at Central avenue and Richmond street. A man named Francis, who is a detective in the employ of the street railway company, accused Barrett, of throwing a stone at a street car. Francis struck Barrett a heavy blow on the head with his billy. A small crowd gathered, and Francis, drawing his revolver, backed onto the car, and came down town for assistance. He reported to Chief of Police Williams that there was a mob protecting Barrett. P. C. Egleton returned with Francis and arrested Barrett without any difficulty. Barrett, who was still suffering from the blow on the head, denied having thrown the stone.

McEVROY—JAMIESON.

Hamilton Herald: In St. Mary's Cathedral, at six o'clock this morning, H. N. McEvoy, the well-known landscape painter, was married to Mrs. W. J. Jamieson, who has for some years managed a restaurant on James street north. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Mahoney. Very few friends were present. It is Mrs. McEvoy.

Mr. McEvoy resided in London about twelve years ago.

THEODORE A. HEINTZMAN

Sketch of the Late Manufacturer's Successful Career.

Theodore A. Heintzman, the great piano manufacturer, who died yesterday at Toronto Junction (as announced in last evening's Advertiser), left a family of six children, one of whom is Mrs. Archibald Loughrey, of 312 Hyman street, city. Mr. Loughrey is employed as a checker on the C. P. R. here. The other surviving children are: Mr. Herman Heintzman, Mr. William Heintzman and Mr. George Heintzman, all three members of the firm; Mrs. A. P. Beiler, of Tyndall avenue, Parkdale, and Mrs. Charles Schwenker, of Law street, Toronto Junction.

Mr. Heintzman was born at Berlin, Prussia, on May 19, 1817. At an early age he was apprenticed to a piano-maker and underwent a most thorough training in the art. At the age of 24 Mr. Heintzman completed his first piano, which was then pronounced by musical authorities of note an instrument of unusual merit.

In 1850 he came to America, and shortly afterwards went to Toronto and located a small factory in York street. In 1866 the factory was removed to 117-119 King street west, where the show-rooms of the firm are now located. Nine years ago the firm built a large factory in Toronto Junction, and removed there, where the factory became the principal industry of the suburban town. For the past five years the management of the business has been entirely in the hands of Mr. Heintzman's sons.

Mr. Heintzman was one of the most popular business men in the neighborhood of Toronto. He held the respect of every employee in his big factory by his uniformly kind treatment of them, and among his business and social acquaintances he was held in the highest regard. Mr. Heintzman was a leading member of the German Club, and was one of the leaders of the German section of the city. His beautiful residence at Toronto Junction was the scene of many social gatherings of the Germans of Toronto.

Obituary

MARY ANN EDDY.

The death of Mrs. Mary Ann Eddy, widow of the late Daniel Eddy, of Toronto, occurred on Sunday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. S. S. Haight, in Hamilton. Mrs. Eddy was in her 89th year. She was born at St. Catharines, Ont., and had spent most of her life at Brantford and at Guelph. In the latter city her father built the first dwelling. The building is still preserved, and is used as the C. P. R. depot. Mrs. Eddy was a well known philanthropist, and was well known throughout Brantford and surrounding country, and was noted for her activity, both physically and mentally, up to the time of her death. She was a patient, earnest Christian woman, and a devoted mother. Her death was due to a heart attack. Mrs. Eddy was a widow for some years. Two sons, W. D. of this city, and J. N. of Toronto, formerly of Eddy Bros., here, and three daughters, Mrs. Edmunds, of Wallaceburg, Mrs. Wallace Haviland, of Oakland, and Mrs. S. S. Haight, of Hamilton, survive. One brother, Thomas Matthews, of Jackson, and one sister, Mrs. E. Matthews, living near Brantford, and a large number of grandchildren are left. Among the latter are the following: Londoners, Lorenzo D. E. Leslie and Frank W. Leslie, of Toronto; Thomas Partridge, Mrs. F. H. Bogue, and Miss Maud Harp.

The funeral was held yesterday at Oakland Cemetery, near Brantford.

JAMES J. FOLEY.

Numerous friends in Kingston and Montreal, as well as in this city, will be pained by the news of the sudden death of James J. Foley, eldest son of Mr. Michael Foley, No. 221 George street. The young man had apparently been in good health until about a week ago, when he showed signs of illness, developing into what appeared to be paralysis, which terminated in his death yesterday. Young Foley was at one time a messenger in the C. P. R. telegraph office, but lately had been with the John Marshall Company. He was a bright, promising youth, not yet 18 years of age, and deservedly popular with all who knew him. The funeral takes place at 9 a.m. tomorrow from his father's residence to St. Peter's Cathedral.

Thomas M. Marshall died Monday morning at the residence of his mother, Mrs. W. Leitch, Cunningham avenue, Tilsonburg, in his 35th year. Up to recently he had been engaged in the shoe casket works in London. The funeral will take place from his mother's residence to Greenwood cemetery.

TROLLEY CAR STRIKES LORRY

Car Came Out Second Best in the Smash.

Four Barrels of Sugar Spilled Over the Pavement—Lorry Driver Blames the Non-Union Men in Charge.

Trolley car 98, running at a high rate of speed, crashed into a C. P. R. lorry this morning at about 8:30 o'clock on Richmond street, opposite St. Peter's Cathedral. The lorry was loaded with sugar consigned to A. M. Smith & Co. Four of the barrels were broken, and their contents spilled over the pavement. One of the heavy steel springs at the back of the lorry was broken. The front of the car was crushed in and the motor broken. It was towed into the barn. Non-Union Conductor G. T. Smith was in charge of the car. Albert Archer, the driver of the lorry, says he was coming south on Richmond street, and there was a union 'bus just ahead of him. The 'bus and the lorry both turned to the right to get out of the way of car 98, which was coming behind them. The 'bus got crowded against a telegraph pole, and there was not room for the lorry to get clear of the track. The car came right on without stopping, resulting in the smash. Archer says the motorman did not even sound his gong, and should have stopped the car. The latter says he reversed the motor and tried to stop the car.

LONDONERS AT INDIANAPOLIS

Praise for the Popular Baritone, Mr. H. R. McDonald—Close of the Epworth League Convention.

Rev. Joseph Edge and Mr. H. Ruthven McDonald returned yesterday from Indianapolis, where they have been attending the International Epworth League convention. Their visit to the "City of Homes" was most delightful. Thirty thousand delegates were present. Sunday morning Rev. Mr. Edge preached in the Hall Street Presbyterian Church, and Mr. McDonald sang. An effort was made to induce Mr. McDonald to remain. Saturday evening he sang in Tomlinson Hall before an audience of ten thousand people, and, referring to this occasion, the Indianapolis Journal of Sunday, July 23, says: "Dr. Livingstone's address was supplemented by a temperance song by Mr. H. R. McDonald, of London, Ont. His method of singing made his song a veritable revival sermon. He was cheered until he sang the last verse again. The audience was wild with delight, and would have heard him again, but he would not continue."

AN ALIBI NOT PROVEN

Frank Cahill Will Be Tried for Assaulting and Robbing Thomas Dart—Preliminary Examination.

The preliminary examination of Frank Cahill on the charge of assaulting and robbing Thomas Dart on Adelaide street north on the night of July 15, was concluded before Squires Smyth and Gorwell, of London township, yesterday afternoon. The witness was committed for trial. In an effort to establish an alibi, Cahill called a number of witnesses, among them being John McDonald, Angus McDonald, Alfred Hills and "Tip" Warwick. They claimed that, with the exception of a few minutes, Cahill was with them continuously until 11 p.m. on the night of July 15, when he left to go to work at Wade's tile kiln, and that during his brief absence it would be impossible for him to go to the place where the robbery occurred and return to the hotel. Some of the witnesses also said they heard Dart complain at the hotel that he had lost his money. Dart denied this. He alleges that Cahill assaulted and robbed him at 10:30, shortly after he left the hotel to go home.

LOST IDENTITY

Every Fit-Reform Suit has the maker's brand and price sewn in the left breast pocket.

If that brand and price should happen to get CUT, LOST, STRAYED or STOLEN, then the garment ceases to be Fit-Reform, and may be sold at any old price.

We have about two dozen suits which lost their identity last night, and some of them appear in our window today looking for an owner. Most of these unhappy suits are made of Scotch tweed from Scotland and a few are of the best Canadian stock.

Some of this nameless lot are in slender and stout shapes in medium sizes, and some are in normal shapes, large and small sizes.

A few are in pronounced Scotch effects, which win favor every time with Londoners.

There is not a suit in the lot worth less than $22 made to order, nor less than $15 judged by Fit-Reform standards.

Every one of these garments bears our full and unequivocal guarantee and comes under our "money-back-if-dissatisfied" clause.

Our tailors make such alterations in the fit as you request, free of charge, and as cheerfully as if you were paying us the value of the garments instead of the vanishing price.

We have a few pairs of trousers which are equally unfortunate in having lost their labels.

Now who will own these daring exceptions to Fit-Reform?

Take a look in our window.

SIR WILLIAM CROOKES

The English Scientist and the Deeds That Made Him Famous.

Sir William Crookes, the English Scientist, whose success in producing something akin to an absolute vacuum in the course of his experiments in radiometry years ago, that rendered the incandescent electric light a possibility, is almost as alert and active at sixty-seven as he was at forty. He began his scientific study when only a boy, the then renowned chemist, Dr. Hofmann, being his instructor.

The young man's earliest investigations were along photographic lines, but his first noteworthy achievement was the discovery of a new metal, thallium, which he found in 1861 when only twenty-nine. This led, in 1862, to membership in the celebrated Royal Society, and placed his name on the roll of successful scientists. A little later Crookes devoted much attention to the spectroscopy, and still later to rare earths. His eclipse observations, his experiments with disinfectants and his study of the radiometer followed. The radiometer is a glass tube containing a delicately balanced spindle, to which are attached four arms terminating in disks. The tube being virtually exhausted of air, the arms and spindle are made to revolve under the action of light.

An ordinary incandescent electric light bulb might be used in radiometric experiments by disconnecting it from the wires and substituting the spindle and arms for the carbon filament. The vacuum used in the Geissler tubes, used in producing the Roentgen ray, is possible only through Crookes' method of exhausting the tube of air.

Soon after his work with the radiometer Crookes became interested in electrical illumination, and his house in Kensington park gardens was the first to be lighted with incandescent lamps in all London. Prof. Crookes laid the wires for these lamps himself in 1887, and they gave forth practically the same quality of light as Edison's lamps. The vacuum in the bulbs was produced exactly as he had produced it in his radiometer, and the carbon filaments used were made by dissolving cathodes in a strong solution of ammonium copper sulphate, drying the solution into sheets and then dissolving out the copper. The hornlike residue served the desired purpose admirably. At last accounts the Crookes filaments, produced in an entirely different way from Edison's, were still doing good service, but the Crookes electric lamps have never come into general use. There were two reasons for their failure—first, the financial weakness of the company formed to exploit them, and, second, the action of the courts in passing adversely upon the patents.

Sir William Crookes has spent much of his life in the class room as an instructor, has written voluminously on widely diverse scientific subjects and has long been an editor of technical periodicals. Some years ago he made prolonged investigations into certain so-called spiritualistic phenomena, produced in the presence of Anna Eva Fay and other mediums. He seems to have accepted spiritualistic theories with some degree of seriousness, and only last year he published a paper declaring his belief in thought transference. It was he who gave the name "odic force," to the power supposed to be developed at "table tipping" seances.

HOW IT LOOKED.

[Puck.]

Ethel—What foolish things a young man will do when he is in love. Edith (breathlessly)—Oh, Ethel! Has she proposed?

Here's a Little Nut to Crack.

Just a grain of corn! The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It removes the corn layer by layer, without any pain whatever. It never fails either. Try it.
