Mofie would tell the constables nothing. He had been shot and that was all the information he would divulge. The occupants of the house to which he staggered could give the officers no clue. They had heard groaning outside the house at 2 o'clock in the morning, and on going down found Mofie on the doorstep.

Scouting around outside the house, the officers found tracks made by a person walking in stocking feet. They followed the tracks across the field to the summer cottage owned by Walter Flanders on the river front in Sandwich East Township. Here Koyanna threatened to shoot when they demanded admittance.

Attendants Who Went Overseas Declare That When They Returned They Were Given Poorer Jobs:

Inhuman treatment of a returned solan ex-attendant at the Ontario Hospital began to cross-examine. Lawder adwas charged by Harry Lawder during the process of the investigation of affairs at the institution this morning. This man, who was said to be a foreigner had beaten a patient until he was unconscious, it was charged by Lawder and four other returned soldiers employed as attendants. They complained to the superintedent of this and complained of conditions generally. They were dismissed from the employ the cross-examination of the witness began.

E. T. Essery, who was appearing for one of the witnesses, inquired as to the food. He thought that Lawder had in authority to jut water in the soup to make it be sufficient for all. He should have served the soup in smaller quantities, but in its original state, instead of thinning it. While Lawder reported to MacDougall, Essery said that he was derelict in his duty when he id do not take the matter up with Beamlish, the chef. He had falled in his duty to the public.

As to Foods.

He was pressed very closely on the matter of foods, and was made to admit that he didn't know just how much food each patient was to receive, and that there were no deit sheets or service to have issued to them. The plaintiff admitted that if the department of prisons and charities did set the amount each person was to receive he did not know whether it was delivered to them. It might have been continued on page three.

Jared Vining, counsel for the laun dier patient on the port of Slumcuski, dress and the chief attendant, next mitted to him that he had on one or two occasions taken a few boxes of berries from the place in the berry season, but only because he took his supper at home instead of at the institútion.

He was asked if he ever put strawberries under a bush and came and got them at night. He acknowledged that he did, but said that he gave them to the patients in the wards.

"Is that all you have taken?" was asked.

They were dismissed from the employ of the institution.

Attendant May was in charge of "B" hall before going overseas, but when he returned was given a poorer job in a back hall, he claimed.

Attendant Munnery, who was supervising the hospital before he joined the navy, was employed as an attendant on his return.

Attendant Kite, Lawder charged, had been employed as a farmer previous to the war, but when he was discharged from the army was given a job as attendant in the north building. He was unable to get an increase in salary, so quit.

Lawder declared that Dr. Robinson only inspected the patients' diningroom once every two and a half or three months, and at those times listened to complaints of patients.

Cross-Examination.

"Is that all you have taken?" was asked.

Lawder replied in the affirmative.

Pald for Plums.

He was asked if he took any plums. Lawder said that he had not, and that any plums that he had not, and that any plums that he had not, and that any plums that he had received were delivered to his house by an employee of the hospital and that he paid this man for them.

When asked if he took any plums.
