INFANT DAUGHTERS.
Oh, ye, my beautiful nest of snow-white doves, What wealth could price your guileless loves, My earthly cherubim, my precious pearls, My pretty flock of loving little girls, My stores of happiness with least alloy, My treasures of hope and trembling joy, You toothless darling, nestled soft and warm On a young, yearning mother's cradling arm:
The soft angelic smiles of natural grace, Twisting with love that other little face:
And the sweet budding of this sinless mind In winning ways, that round my heart-strings Dear winning ways, dear nameless, winning ways, That lead me joyous to my God in prayer.
MARTIN F. TUPPER.

Benares, the Holy City of the Hindus.
The scene of my labours for eleven years Benares, an ancient, populous, and highly revered city on the banks of the Ganges, in Northern India. It is one of the most idolatrous cities on the face of the earth. You have all heard of the Hindus as a superstitious and idolatrous people, and as Benares is their most sacred city—as it is to them what Jerusalem is to the Jews, Mecca to the Mohammedans, and Rome to the Catholics, —you can easily suppose how rampant and bold idolatry is there. It is a very ancient city, as appears from the reference to it in the sacred books of the people, which are attested by remains in the neighborhood of the present site. It is a large city, containing probably a population of 300,000 residents, while the district contains 500,000 more.
It is a highly revered city, as it is built for security and honor; not on this world of trials, but the people say, on the point of Sin's trident. So sacred is it in their estimation, that all dying here go to heaven, irrespective of the nation to whom they belong, of the character they possess, or the course they have pursued. This opinion was spread from Cape Comorin in the South to the Himalayas Mountains in the North. I can from personal observation attest the fact, so far as the inhabitants of the mountains are concerned. I have performed in the Sacred City a hundred fold merit attached to them, and hence every part of India sends its pilgrims in numbers to its shrines. The temples are numerous. We are told by a competent witness, who had made particular inquiry, that there are ninety public temples of great resort; while the number of shrines, great and small, public and private, amounts to nearly 5,000. Where so rich a harvest is to be reaped from the devotion of the people, which never fails to take the course of liberality to the sacred class, the Brahmins are found in abundance, and their influence is very great. It is reckoned that there are 80,000 individuals. Many of these are directly dependent for support on the offerings of the people, and all derive honour from the attachment shown to the religion in which their order occupies so prominent a place. These bare facts will enable you to realize the peculiar position of Christian missionaries in the city in which I have labored. That Christian missionaries can live and labor there ought to call forth our grateful acknowledgment to the Head of the Church. No Protestant missionary is allowed to labor at Rome—no Christian missionary can raise his voice for his Master on the streets of Mecca; and yet we are allowed, on the streets of Benares, among its crowded and superstitious inhabitants, to testify of Jesus and salvation through his blood.—Rev. J. Kennedy's Speech at the late Anniversary of the London Missionary Society.

Artisan Wives.
A group of little boys and girls were seated around the fire, on the night just past, just to one of their number, who was reading aloud. In the book which engaged their attention, something was said about an Artesian well situated in France. The book did not describe these wells, but merely alluded to the fact that there was one in this place. The little folks soon after that the "May with the Magnet," and begged he would tell them something about the Artesian well. He did so; and as his description may not be uninteresting to other children, we shall give it, as nearly as we can, in his own words.
In many parts of the world, and in some where water is very scarce, men dig a hole in the earth, which is bored very deep into the earth, where it is acted upon by powerful pressure from beneath, and forced all the way up to the surface, through a pipe which is placed in the hole. Sometimes in this force, the water from thirty feet into the air.
These wells derive their name from the district of Artois, or the ancient Artesium, where they are abundant. The quantity of water obtained in this way in Artois, is often sufficient to turn the wheels of the mills.
At Tours, in Europe, the water flows to these wells, not only so much force, that a cannon-ball, placed in the pipe, is violently thrown up into the air. The water, coming from a great depth, as it does, is always warmer than that obtained from common wells; so that, in some places, it has been used to warm buildings. It is believed by scientific men, that water may be made to flow in the deserts of Africa, by means of the Artesian well. What an illustration of the goodness of God there is in this thing. Some philosophers would tell us that this manner of obtaining water is accounted for by a natural law—the law of hydrostatic pressure. Very well. But who would that law? Who controls the operations of nature in such a way that the barren wilderness may yield the thirsty traveller refreshing springs of water?

THE LONDON PEACE CONGRESS.—Already this subject is exciting deep interest in the provinces, as well as in the Metropolis. Public meetings are announced in several of the large towns, and in a great number of others arrangements are making for similar meetings as early as possible. In one important particular this Congress will be distinguished above all that have gone before it, and that is, in the breadth of popular representation which it will present, as meeting bodies, extensively ramified, are preparing to appoint their delegates, who never before have evinced a direct interest in the question of universal peace.
As an illustration of this it may be stated that in a cathedral city, measures are in course of adoption for the appointment of representatives—from a public meeting of the city, from each of the religious denominations, from the Mechanics' Institute, from the Sunday-school Union, and from the Auxiliary Society of the place.

These different bodies will be present by their representatives in that august assembly, & yield their influence in making the approaching Congress worthy of the place and people in whose midst it will assemble. In various districts of the metropolis plans are forming to provide for London a delegation, which in point of numbers and station shall do it honour; and a number of influential gentlemen have signified to the Committee their wish to be put in nomination. On the Continent, measures equally energetic have been adopted, and the circular of invitation which has been widely spread, is awakening a considerable number of deputies are already on their way, and more are expected to follow in early vessels. The prospects of the Congress are full of encouragement, and should prompt to immediate decision all who intend to witness or take part in this great gathering of the nations.

MARTYRDOMS IN MADAGASCAR.—We de-plained to state, that the communications which had been previously received by the London Missionary Society, and to which a reference so affecting was made in the recent Report, have received additional confirmation in a letter addressed to Dr. Steene, from one of the Malagasy Refugees, now residing at Maunila, one of the islands of Johanna, which not only confirms what has gone before, but even presents additional facts of the most afflicting character. Four of the nobles, who were Christians, have been burned to death, and fourteen killed, by being thrown down a fearful precipice! Some in the army have been degraded; others have been imprisoned for life; others have been fined sums of money.
It would appear that the number increases as the persecution waxes more furious. In a single locality an assemblage of two thousand Christians was discovered by a chief constable, who, with his attendants, seemed filled with amazement at the spectacle of such numbers.
They were assembled in a remote place, where they had erected a house of prayer. Thus it seems certain that, as usual, the more they are persecuted the more they grow, and that immately all the oppressions, cruelty, and bloodshed, will only redound to the furtherance of the Gospel.

How to Cook Potatoes.—A correspondent of a London paper writes as follows:— I feel most grateful for the insertion of a new mode of cooking old potatoes. After the 1st of April potatoes ought to be peeled at night for the 1 or 2 o'clock dinner, and for late dinners any time before 9 o'clock the same day. I have repeated this experiment many times, and the improvement in the quality of the potatoes is very great. It is well known that, owing to the inherent nature of the potato, it will grow in the tuber very spongy and with much of the water extracted out of it. By peeling and steeping them in cold spring water for 10 or 12 hours, the pores and cells become filled, however limp the tuber may be, and in the process of boiling this fresh water is again discharged, taking with it all the poison as well as partly removing the dark spots which all potatoes at this time of the year have.
I tried them steamed in salt and water, but the salt turned them dark. I have also steamed cut ones, which in 12 hours became firm, and like steaming seeds, they would vegetate directly. Water will, however, not penetrate through the tough skin of a whole potato so easily."

Liquor in Bath.—The following vote passed the Board of Aldermen on Wednesday evening last:—That the Mayor be instructed to give notice to dealers that the "act for the suppression of drinking houses and tipping shops," will be enforced, and that twelve days are allowed to persons having intoxicating liquors to dispose of their stock by sending it out of the State, where it can be sold without violation of law.
Five hundred and fourteen petitioners pledge themselves to aid and sustain the authorities in the execution of the law; one hundred and forty-three of the number are ladies.—Zion's Advocate.

THE WIFE.
To a fond and confiding girl, few hours in life are so full of buoyancy and hope, of kindness and affection, as those of courtship; and few, if any, are so important to her future welfare and happiness. In her lover she too often sees all that is worthy and respectable in man; the ardor of her affection lights upon the most offensive traits in his character, and overlooks all minor failings.
Whatever she may have collected in poetry is brought in aid of her imagination; and her affection persuades her that in her lover she has found a perfect representative of the ideal pictures.
In dreams of confidence in the prudence of her choice, and delightful anticipations of succeeding years of affection and happiness, she is led to the altar; and how often, alas! does one short year bring home to her aching bosom the sad reality and falsity of her empty hopes, of all mutual love, tender assiduity and lasting affection. Yesterday, the lover was all attention, and love marked every action; to-day, the husband is cold, distant and neglectful, preferring the company of the worthless and dissipated to that of her who but a few days since he flattered himself was dearer to him than all the world beside.
I can hardly picture to myself a situation more truly heart-rending and deplorable than that of a female who has found every want anticipated, and every reasonable wish gratified, under the parental roof, with the warm confidence of youth, to repose on the bosom of affection, but finding her confidence betrayed, her affection slighted, and herself, with a helpless offspring, left to struggle with unkindness, poverty and want. Such, alas! is too often the case in this world of uncertainty, where we find mixed with the kindest blessings of our heavenly Father, evils which almost stag-ger our strongest faith.
In my boyish days, when every thing was bright and sunny, and pleasure sported in beautiful perspective before me, I sometimes wandered to a neighboring farm-house, to pass an idle hour with its lovely and innocent inmates, who were as cheerful and thoughtless as myself. Among these beautiful girls was one more advanced in age than the rest, whose modest and blossoming beauty was the admiration of all. Elizabeth, as she was called, had wandered by some path over my head since I saw her sporting on the green, and yet, at this distant day I cannot recollect her sylvan form, her sprightly manner, and her affectionate smile, without a thrill of delight.
Elizabeth's hand had been often solicited by her equals, and even by those whose fortunes were much superior to her own, but none were able to win her heart. About her twentieth year, she met a friend's, a young gentleman who had just come to reside in the neighborhood. His figure was elegant, features regular, and his whole appearance such, as at the first sight, was calculated to excite the affections of a young, inexperienced, and susceptible girl. He was flippant, bold, and even boisterous; which, to one little acquainted with the world, might indicate a great degree of spirit; but it was in fact nothing but the ebullition of an irritable and petulant temper. To this man Eliza became most passionately attached. He offered her his hand, and it was accepted, in opposition to the advice and entreaties of her parents.

It was about this time that the parental roof, and new scenes and increasing cares almost obliterated the lovely Eliza from my recollection.
During one of the inclement nights of our New England winters, I was called to an obscure part of the city, to visit professionally a poor helpless wretch who was pining with disease produced by intemperance. As I sat by the bed of the sufferer, I heard in an adjoining room, the voice of a female, pleading with great earnestness with one who appeared to be the employer of her husband. "For heaven's sake," said she, "do keep back every shilling you can of his earnings, not a shilling that enters his pocket ever finds its way here.
The tipping shop and tavern take all; it is hard, and perhaps wrong to speak of one's husband thus. The time was when I did not believe it possible; but what am I to do—where am I to seek sustenance, food, clothing and fuel, for these my freezing children?"
"But, my dear sir," she continued, "I am almost suffocating here, 'tis this is but a small part of what I suffer. O! I could sustain my self under all poverty and want; I could live with him cheerfully and affectionately under all vicissitudes of fortune, if I could only receive the love and kindness which is a wife's due."

I inquired the name of her who had so strongly excited my sympathy; in a moment the beautiful Eliza flitted before my mind—she, who at twenty was so beautiful, so affectionate, and so happy. I arose with an indistinct feeling, and should meet something which my youthful mind would not contemplate with such delight. I entered the room, but what did I see! The shadow of her who early dawn was the promise of earthly bliss. Would to God it had never been my lot to have thus encountered her, who, in youth, had left such a magic and undying spell on my mind.

A New and Efficient Remedy for Coughs, Common Colds, Cold in the Head, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, and all Diseases of the Lungs, and Bronchial Affections.
This wonderful curative power of Cod Liver Oil, in all cases of COUGHS, COLDS, and CONSUMP-TION, have been clearly demonstrated by the experience of the most distinguished physicians of Europe and America, during the last two or three years. It has been used in all parts of this country with great success, by the advice of our most eminent physicians. Dr. Williams, an eminent English Physician, asserts, that during the course of consumption, where the Cod Liver Oil was used, the patient recovered, and the disease was cured.
The proprietor has succeeded in so combining the oil with other valuable ingredients, that it is now made into a palatable and agreeable form, and is all the medicinal virtues of Pure Cod Liver Oil, without its offensive and repulsive taste, and without the inconvenience of its being administered to the most delicate without inconvenience. No pleasant taste, that it may be administered to an infant without difficulty.

CURE OF A DESPERATE CASE OF ERYSIPELAS.
Copy of a Letter from Mr. Joseph Giddon, Junr, Esq., Farmer, East Kent, near Spilth, Lincolnshire, 8th April, 1846.
TO PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY.
Sir,—I have the gratification to announce to you a most wonderful cure wrought upon myself, by the use of your Ointment and other FILES; I can't say I was able to more without the use of crutches. I consulted a very eminent Physician, besides other Medical men, but to no purpose. At last I tried your Ointment and Pills, and in a few days I was enabled to walk, and when, strange to say, it less than two weeks swelling and inflammation subsided to such a degree that I was enabled to pursue my daily avocation with the utter surprise and amazement of those who were acquainted with my case, seeing that I was cured so quickly. I and my family are well known here, as my father holds his farm under the Rev. J. Spence, Rector of our Parish.

FOR THE HAIR.
If you wish a rich, luxuriant head of Hair, free from dandruff and scurf, do not fail to procure the genuine Balm of Wheat, in a short time by the use of the genuine Hair Lotion. Hundreds of our first citizens throughout this country have used this Lotion with complete success. I am enabled to cure the most aggravated cases of Casts, Never buy it unless you find the name of Carrington on the wrapper, proprietors of the genuine article, or you are cheated with a counterfeit.
EXPECTORANT PINK SYRUP.
Have You a Cough?—Do not neglect it.—Thousandfold more profitably than the usual cough medicine, common cold. Rev. Dr. Bartolomew's Expectant Pink Syrup will positively give relief and save you from that most distressing disease, Pulmonary Consumption, which sweeps in its ravages the grave thousands of the young, the old, the lovely and the good.

SICK HEAD-ACHE REMEDY.
Who will not suffer with a distressing complaint, when a remedy is at hand that will not fail to cure you? This remedy will effectually relieve any attack of Head-ache, either nervous or bilious. It has cured cases of twenty years standing.
