SAINT JOHN NAMES FOUND INSCRIBED ON SOUTH AFRICAN ROCK

Memento of Boer War Told of in Letter To The Times-Star—This Is Paardeburg Day and Local Veterans Observe Anniversary

TODAY is Paardeburg Day, the anniversary of the surrender of General Cronje in South Africa, Feb. 27, 1900. Canadian veterans of the South African war are celebrating it throughout Canada. In this connection, a communication of much local interest has reached The Times-Star. It is from R. Broom, Douglas, South Africa, and is dated Dec. 19, 1925. He writes:

"A few days ago I was up to the top of the kopje that lies behind Belmont station and found there a number of inscriptions on the rocks that will doubtless have interest for some of your readers. The inscriptions are as fresh as the day they were scratched. Manifestly some companies of the Canadian troops were stationed there in the Boer war. Probably most are still alive, but if any have failed to return, the inscriptions will be of interest to their relatives. The names are: "W. H. Swinyard, R.C.A., Quebec, Canada; "S. H. Woods; "W. Hunter, Saint John, N. B.; "G. Downey, E. Co.; "W. Cooper, Saint John, N. B.; "C. J. Dodley, Halifax; "C. R. Morrison, D. Co.; "J. Dammor. There are doubtless others scattered over the kopje. Many are of English troops. Those I send are all I noticed of Canadians."

CELEBRATION HERE. Locally, Paardeburg Day will be commemorated with a get-together in the Armory at 7.30 o'clock when several of the veterans of the first contingent who were quartered for some time at Belmont station remembered their quiet well in addition to the others named. Included in the list of Saint John men who were stationed at Belmont were: E. W. Coombs, W. W. Donohoe, Fred Withers, who was killed in South Africa, Samuel Withers, Major W. A. Weeks, Ambrose Pecky, Jack Williams, Walter Irvine, John Welch, Policeman McMillaney, H. Chisholm and probably others.

PLAYLET ATTRACTS 1,800 TO THEATRE

Children Get Health Advice in Imperial Theatre Entertainment Medium

Eighteen hundred boys and girls packed the Imperial Theatre this forenoon and enjoyed a unique playlet which purported to tell the advantages of milk as a food beverage for juveniles. There were moving picture stories impressive of the same idea, and for over an hour the youngsters were unspectacularly instructed in a matter of vital importance under the guise of entertainment.

The little show with the big crowd was under the auspices of the local Red Cross. Miss Frances Stetson and Miss H. G. Campbell, assisted by Miss Leblanc, had general supervision. Mrs. Harold G. Taylor, of Queen street, tutored the children in the playlet, the Imperial Theatre staff, under the direction of Frank Fitzgerald, stage manager, and Wilmet Chase and George Egan, projectionists, assisted materially. The theatre was donated, and Mr. Golding was thanked for the generous act.

The Imperial was set in the atmosphere of a kitchen and the players personified utensils used for coffee, tea, milk, candy, salt, pepper, etc., an old kitchen grandfather clock acting as judge of a clever argument that arose over the value of the respective food drinks. Those in the playlet were Violet Dyer, Ruth Lewis, Frederick Taylor, Harold Smith, Katherine Earle, Georgiana Earle, Jean Southern, Rita Godwin, Edna Souter, John Collins, Mildred Corbett, Winifred Lake, Marie Taylor, Audrey Mitchell, George Lake, Noble Coleman, Walter March, Margaret Earle, Roberta Jones, Ruth Ellis, and Helen Lewis.

Mrs. Taylor was highly complimented for the efficient manner in which she trained the children at short notice. The staging was also a matter for congratulation.

The rum took place yesterday afternoon about 9 o'clock when four customs officers located 9 cases of alleged brands of whiskeys and 44 ten gallon kegs of rum and alcohol. The liquor was brought to Poole's bonded warehouse. The wet goods seized were valued at more than $4,000.
