Reciprocity Issue Is Being Revived (Bangor Commercial).

The Canadian reciprocity issue, which agitated the farmers of the Northwest and New England ten years ago, is being revived in Congress and repeal of all laws permitting free trade between the two countries is urged. The fight is in connection with the tariff on wheat. Following rumors that Canada had reversed its attitude through an order in council and was prepared to ship wheat into the United States, Mr. Young made an investigation. The order in council became effective as to wheat April 17, 1919, and as to potatoes November 7, 1919. The only thing in the way has been the food administration, which has the power to prevent transportation.

The Young bill is to repeal not only the provisions in paragraphs 681 and 644 of the Underwood law, which made the order in council, under issue, but to repeal also the entire Reciprocity Law.

"My proposal," Mr. Young explained, "is that while we are plugging the hole made by the Underwood law, to plug every other hole. I noticed some time ago that people were going from the northwest to seek changes in the tariff at Ottawa, and I wrote to learn what was going on. I found that Canada already had provided for the exportation of wheat products into the United States, acting under the reciprocal provisions of the Underwood law, yet Canada could have acted under the reciprocity law."

"According to the information received, both wheat and potatoes have been on the free list for a long time. The country has not awakened to it, because the food administration has had control and could prohibit the importation of foodstuffs, which was necessary."

"At the end of this crop year, June 30, 1920, we will go out from under the price fixing business as to wheat. Then these provisions of the Underwood law and the order in council will become an important factor in establishing the market prices of a free and open market."

Mr. Young will restore a high wall on potatoes and wheat and their products—cents a bushel on wheat, forty-five cents a barrel on flour, and 25 per cent ad valorem on Irish potatoes.
