WHERE "WILDCAT" FERNS FITS

FROM T. S. ANDREWS

Milwaukee, Oct. 8.—Mr. "Wildcat" Ferns, the Kansas City cyclone, has as good a claim to the welter weight title as any of the 142 pounders about the country, and it seems too bad that he and Ray Bronson, the Indianapolis welter weight, can not be brought together in a long fight to settle the question, that we may have a recognized champion in the class. It has been in dispute so long that it would be a relief to the followers of boxing to have the matter settled. Ferns, who is piloted by Jimmy Hurst, a clever little fellow of Kansas City, met Billy Walters, the Chicago sailor claimant to the title, at Kenosha the other night and gave him a sure enough beating. Walters was game and fought back all through the contest, but he appeared overtrained and just a bit overmatched. Ferns certainly carried the goods that night and there is no reason why he should not get into a real title match. Mike Gibbons is too heavy for the welter class, being unable to scale 154 ringside, or 142 at 3 o'clock on the day of the fight. Therefore Bronson and Ferns appear as two of the best contenders, and if they could be brought together the winner would well claim the championship and defend it. He would also have a chance to fight a real international battle for a world's title, as the British champion Johnny Summers, is anxious for just such a match.

Young Saylor, the Indianapolis light weight, who was off form last year because of lack of training, is to get a chance at one of the real top liners. Saylor has been matched by his manager, Ray Bronson, to meet Freddy Welsh, the British champion, in a 12-round contest at Winnipeg some time in October, the date having been held over until the club can arrange with Welsh and his manager, Harry Pollock. Saylor has met all the good boys of his weight in the east and middle west and gave great promise two years ago, but, like Joe Mandot, the southern champion, he neglected proper training and took too many chances, with the result that instead of advancing he retrogaded. He has gone through a severe course of training with Bronson at the latter's own gymnasium in the Indiana city and feels sure he can now take the measure of most of the 188-pounders. He has been offered a match with Charlie White of Chicago, providing he holds Welsh even, and that is his aim, as the promoters at Indianapolis want him for the big match with the Chicago lad, who has been coming so fast of late.

ROD AND GUN

The October number of Rod and Gun in Canada published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ont., has some features of special interest to readers in this province. The cover cut this month is worthy of special comment, depicting as it does "A Madonna of the Marshes," a cow moose and her calf, photographed in their natural habitat. "Moose, the Swamp Hog of the Canadian Forest" is the leading article, being a study of moose in Henry Braithwaite's country in Central New Brunswick, with photographs of live moose in their natural environment.

"When Fortune Smiled in Mooseland" is the story of a big game hunt in Northern Ontario and is brimful of interest to every sportsman. "The Game Trails of Canada" by S. E. Sangster is a resume of the variety and character of game to be found in the different Canadian provinces and includes an estimate of the approximate outlay involved in a big game hunt, for a non-resident, in each of these provinces. Other stories there are of out-door interest and the regular departments are well maintained. Under Alpine Club of Canada appears the story of the "Cathedral Camp" held this summer in the Canadian Rockies and under The Trap department there is a special write up of the 13th Annual Tournament of the Dominion of Canada Trap Shoting Association.

GUARDING THE PRINCESS FROM SOCIETY GIRLS IN LOW CUT DRESSES

London, Oct. 9—Queen Mary's strict views about dress have caused Mrs. Marshall a fashionable teacher of dancing, to lose a royal pupil.

The queen visited the school and objected strongly to the low-cut afternoon frocks worn by Princess Mary's fellow-pupils, daughters of the smartest and wealthiest people in society.

Mrs. Marshall told the queen that the girls dressed as their parents wished. The queen replied that the Princess would not join the class.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing

MATHEWSON WINS GAME FOR GIANTS

New York Evens up by Defeating Philadelphia — No Score Until Tenth—Result 3—0

Philadelphia, Oct. 8—Christy Mathewson, master manipulator of the baseball, led the New York Giants to victory at Shibe Park today when he shut out the Philadelphia Athletics in a ten inning battle by a 3 to 0 score in the second game of the world's series.

Hero of a decade of league and world's championship play, the famous veteran rose to the highest pinnacle of his diamond career by putting up an exhibition of all-around play that wrung volleys of applause from the 20,000 Athletics' supporters who were massed in the stands and bleachers expecting to witness a second triumph for the standard bearers of the American League.

Box score experts will point to their figures to prove that eleven other Giants were instrumental in winning the second contest of the series, but the Philadelphia fans who filed sadly out of the park spoke only of Mathewson.

Mathewson Won the Game.

For a trifle over two hours and twenty minutes the man, whose requiem was sung by thousands of fans after the final game against the Boston Red Sox in the world's series of 1912, turned the hard hitting Athletics back without a semblance of a break. Then when he saw that his teammates could not wrest victory from Plank he took his bat and drove in the run that won the game. Spurred on by his example the other Giants added two more to clinch the contest, but they were not needed.

Mathewson was the master to the end, Oldring, Collins and Baker being unable to drive the ball outside the diamond in the tenth and final inning, although 20,000 adherents pleaded for a hit that might start a winning rally.

As a result of Mathewson's prowess the Giants went back to New York tonight on even terms with the Athletics and the struggle will be renewed at the Polo grounds tomorrow, if the weather man so wills, with the two teams in comparatively the same position they were before they crossed bats for the 1913 title.

A Fine Exhibition.

Regardless of the disappointment over the outcome of the game as viewed from a Philadelphia standpoint, not a single one of the thousands of spectators who witnessed the play regretted the hours spent in stands or bleachers. As an exhibition of high class baseball and sensational play the game was all that an ideal world's championship contest should be in fiction or reality.

For nine innings the rival clubs battled without advantage, brilliant ficiding and thrilling coups shutting out runs that appeared assured.

In the tenth with the shades of darkness settling over the park the hero of the game terminated the contest just as the dramatist would have staged the final scene. The Athletics had a chance to win in the ninth and many thought poor generalship on the bench and coaching lines threw away the one opportunity that the fortunes of baseball cast their way.

Plank Weakened.

Both Mathewson and Plank had twirled a game that was little short of wonderful up to this point and Plank was beginning to falter under the strain. Their team mates, too, were atremble with the responsibilities that each inning was heaping on their shoulders.

With the Athletics at bat in the last half of the ninth and but a solitary run needed to close the contest Strunk opened with a single past second. Barry bunted toward Larry Boyle, who run in and scooped the ball up, whirlled, and threw wildly past Wiltse at first in an attempt to catch the Athletics 'short-stop. The ball sailed clear to the right field grandstand, while Strunk and Barry rushed around the bases. Strunk was held at third when he had ample time to score. It was the Athletics' lone chance, for Wiltse and Mathewson cut down three Athletics in a row immediately after by a brilliant exhibition of infielding and then came the Giants' rush victory.

Larry McLean, who substituted for Meyers, when the Indian split his finger in practice, singled to right field in the tenth inning. Grant ran for him and reached second on Wiltse's sacrifice. Mathewson then clinched the game with his clean smash to centre, on which Grant scored.

Right here the Athletics cracked. Herzog hit to Collins, who threw to Barry to catch Mathewson at second. Apparently Barry was unable to see the ball, except to doge it as it flashed by on the way to left field. Mathewson and Herzog goined an additional base on the misplay. Plank hit Doyle, filling the bases. Fletcher followed with a bounder over Baker's head, scoring Mathewson and Herzog and the Giants had two more runs than were needed, as it ultimately proved, to win the game.

Mathewson's the Steadier.

Aside from the brilliancy of Mathewson, the two teams were evenly matched. Plank was not quite as steady as his rival in the box, giving two bases on balls, and hitting one batter, to Mathewson's solitary pass. The Giants secured seven hits off Plank, to the Athletics' eight from Matty, who struck out five batters to Plank's six. New York had eight men left on bases to Philadelphia's ten. Fletcher, McLean and Mathewson secured two hits each, a total of six out of the seven reacrded by the Giants. Baker was the only Athletic player to get to Mathewson for more than one hit, the home run batsman being credited with two.

Had it not been for Mathewson's remarkable exhibition in the box and at bat, George Wiltse would have been hailed as the star of the game. As it was his play was such that it brought him congratulations from both players and fans. Substituted for Snodgrass, first as runner, and then at first base in the third inning, he played a game that equalled anything that Merkle, the Giants' regular, has shown this season. As if to test his courage and stamina, ball after ball was flashed his way during the next seven innings. Not an error or a flaw marked his work, and the climax came in the ninth when he cut two Athletics down at the plate and took Mathewson's throw at first for the third out.

The memorable tenth inning saw victory go to the Giants. McLean opened it with a single to right centre. Grant wa sordered to run for McLean and went down to second on Wiltse's sacrifice hit, Plank putting the ball on Wiltse as he ran toward first base. Mathewson then came to time and won his own game on a single to centre field on which Grant came home. Grant, thinking the play at the plate would be close, slid in, but he made the home base easily. Herzog shot a grounder at Collins and the latter threw the ball to Barry to force Matty. Barry appeared to lose sight of the ball, and it went over his head as Mathewson reached second and he kept on to third as the ball rolled to centre field, Herzog reaching second. Plank hit Doyle with a pitched ball and the bases were full. Fletcher caught one of Plank's fast inshoots on the end of his bat and drove it down the third base line. The ball took an unexpected bounce and shot far over Baker's head for a single on which Mathewson and Herzog crossed the plate. Burns struck out for the third time and Shafer flied to Murphy.

Mathewson held Philadelphia safe in the latter's half of the inning. Oldring went out, Herzog to Wiltse. Collins struck out and Doyle picked up Baker's grounder and tossed him out at first.

The paid attendance at today's game was 20,568. Total receipts amounted to $49,640, of which the national commission received $4,964. Each club's share was said to be $7,446, and the players received $87,230.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES DISAPPEAR

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After a Few Doses of Croxone

If you are bothered with backache—or rheumatism, have disagreeable, annoying bladder or urinary disorders to contend with—or suffer with any other of the many miseries that come from weak kidneys, here is a guaranteed remedy you can depend upon.

It is a positive fact that Croxone promptly overcomes such diseases.

It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up kidneys and makes them filter and sift out the poisonous waste matter from the blood. It neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder.

More than a few doses of Croxone are seldom required to relieve even the obstinate, long standing cases.

You will find Croxone entirely different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time.

LOCH LOMOND FAIR A REUNION OF OLD FRIENDS AND FOES

Social and Political Features of Yesterday's Gathering--Exhibits Were Good Also

More in the nature of a re-union of old political friends and foes was the Simonds and Loch Lomond Agricultural Society's annual fair held at Loch Lomond agricultural hall yesterday. While not so large as in the old days in point of attendance the exhibits were conceded to be uniformly good. Three government experts, A. Downing, E. J. Young and M. W. Eveleigh, were present and assisted in the judging. They reported very favorably on the quality of the cattle.

First to arrive yesterday was W. A. Quinton, and by virtue of his claim to be the oldest member of the society alive he assumed the role of master of ceremonies, with J. K. Storey, J. P., chief jester. Dinner at the Ben Lomond house at noon, with 250 people sitting down, was made the occasion for many short speeches.

Among others present were Recorder J. B. M. Baxter, J. M. Donovan, Sr., J. M. Donovan, Jr., Percy W. Thomson, Warden Carson, M. P. P., H. Dickson, M. P. P., J. P. Lynch, W. L. Welch, W. J. Alexander, George Waring, Harry Smith, Charles Jackson, James V. Russel, Edward L. Rising, R. F. Resster and others.
