After the grand jury had been sworn in Judge Forbes said there was nothing before them. The business for which they were summoned had been disposed of under the speedy trials act. He therefore dismissed the jury.
If needed they would be summoned by notice in the morning papers. In the course of a week something might arise that would make their presence necessary.

A VIOLET TEA.

The violet tea which the Young Women's Guild of Trinity church are giving this afternoon will be a great success. As the name implies the decorations are violets—violets everywhere. With here and there banks of ferns and wild cherry blossoms. The candy table is heavily laden with violets, ferns and candy of course. Those in charge are Miss L. Patton, Miss B. Robertson and Miss Munro, while Miss Gills and Miss L. R. Robinson have charge of the violet and fern table.

The following young ladies are in the tea room: Miss G. Robertson, Miss Hayes, Miss Chalmers, Miss Ingersham, Miss Jarvis, Miss Schofield, Miss Wright, Miss Bruce, Miss Tingay, Miss Brennan, Miss Beckwith. The ice cream table is under the supervision of:
Miss G. Scamell, Miss L. Patton, Miss Simpson, Miss Hoyt, Miss Northrup, Miss Leeds, Miss Jordan, Miss Dodge, Miss Currie, Miss Flewelling, Miss Taylor, Miss Broad and Miss Elin.
Payne.

Dainty little tables in plenty are scattered about the room, each with a pretty vase of violets upon it. The menu cards are delicately tinted mauve, having a cluster of purple violets attached to one corner.

The young ladies whose efforts the pretty effect is due deserve much credit for the distaste displayed and the success of the tea, even though the weather is adverse cannot but be assured.

THE LATE MISS BRADLEY.

The funeral of the late Laura Bradley Bradley, which took place this forenoon, was very largely attended.
The body was taken from her late home, 126 Main street, at a quarter past nine to St. Peter's church, where regular mass was celebrated by Father Scully. During the service Miss Julia McCarthy sang Angela Ever Bright and Fair, with a pathos which moved many to tears.

After the service in the church the body was taken to the new Catholic burying ground, where interment was made.

The casket was literally imbedded in flowers, sent by Miss Bradley's numerous friends. Among the pieces was a large basket of roses from the I. C. R.
Fullman conductors; a beautiful cross from Miss Bradley's friends in the employ of Manchester, Robertson & Allison; a very pretty star of pink roses from the members of the Will-wood club; a magnificent basket of pink roses from T. J. Morgan, and a pillow of cream roses and calla lilies, sent by R. J. Ritchie.

A TRAGEDY.

Ellis Goodline is dead. The tragedy of a life is played out. A voice that in childhood rang clear in happy innucences amid the green fields will be heard no more. It had vibrated to every human emotion, had caught the wailing notes of an infant pain, and so fell into silence. A heart that throbb-ed with life and hope had learned the age-long lesson of human weakness and its punishment—and then the curtain fell. Peace! Let her sleep. She abides in the measureless pity of God.
Somewhere a man who has laughed at the vows he made to two women, and one his wife. Hard he may be, and dull; but he remembers. In the darkness a dead face; in the silence the cry of a little child.

LOTS OF SORROW.

Officer White Makes a Haul—Barney Undergoing Repairs—An Assault—Naughty Words.

Barney Devine went to see Maxson last night and was so overcome by the incidents of the play between the acts that in the words of the police he "lost his mind." Subsequent to his removal from the Opera House, Barney dodged several times, but at last became such a nuisance and caused such a disturbance on the streets that it was considered advisable to give him shelter for the night. He, however, was not for the night. He, however, was not by any means anxious for such shelter, and objected to walking the streets in such company as that of Officer White, Mild persuasion, however, at last prevailed, and Barney, with his head tied up in a handkerchief—a dirty one by the way—mournfully appeared in No. 3. His efforts to keep down the curbstone were the cause of the accident which threatens to accomplish the destruction of his natural good looks, but Barney declares that the skin left his face in company with a club which happened to pass that way.

"What do you say to being drunk?"

"Guilty."

"What about taking the name of God in vain?"

"I don't know nothing about it."

"What do you say in regard to resisting?"

"Oh let White come on. Don't bother me. He'll tell you all about it."

Officer White explained how he had resisted and stated that the damage to the prisoner's face was caused by him striking the pavement. He resisted arrest.

"It's enough to make anyone kick when they get hit like that."

"Berrymann says he is not hurt."

Devine did not wish to call any witnesses. He was remanded.

Samuel Cunningham had a warrant issued against some man for assault.
He had been told that the man was and upon that information, an arrest was made. The circumstances surrounding the affair are these. Cunningham was walking on King street and passed two men who immediately said some naughty things about him. He turned round, and at that instant got a "smash on the jaw." He at once ran for a policeman, not waiting to have a look at his assailants. A man by the name of Kelly told him who it was that struck him, and he accordingly gave information. This morning Cunningham was unable to identify any person in court as the man who caused the trouble, but stuck to his statement that Kelly said the name was Hennesey.

"Who is this Kelly?"

"Mr. Kelly?"

"What Kelly?"

"Jimmy Kelly?"

"It may be a compliment to Jimmy Kelly, but I would like some further particulars. Who is he?"

"Mr. Jimmy Kelly," with emphasis on the mister.

"What does he do?"

"Well, he has some position somewhere, but I don't know what it is and he used to do something else."

"But you have sworn that this man Hennessey is the one who struck you, and now you say he did not do it."

"Well, I didn't mean to swear to what wasn't true, but I will send for Jim Kelly."

The case was adjourned until tomorrow, pending the appearance of James Kelly, who has some position.

The magistrate stated that up to the present only twenty-six dog licenses have been taken out, while at this time last year over nine hundred had been issued. All parties owning dogs who have not taken out licenses are warned to do so, as proceedings will be taken shortly against such, and instead of the one dollar which a license costs, will be liable to a fine of four dollars and costs. The police have been instructed to be on the look-out.

Bernard Clark was arrested upon complaint of his wife on a charge of assault and non-support. A short time ago Clark was before the court on a similar charge, but was allowed to go upon promising that he would drink no more and would be kind to his family. He kept sober for at least two days, and then failed to furnish any food or money. His wife was compelled to take a boarder to keep the house going, and Clark went home last Saturday and endeavored to eat the food intended for the boarder. His wife objected to this, and he caught her by the throat and ran her into the kitchen.
On the charge of assault he was fined twenty dollars or two months, and remanded on the other and more serious charge of non support.

RIGHT ARM TAKEN OFF.

Thomas Conway, a brakeman on the C. P. R. line, last evening, ran over by a train near Fredericton Junction and his right arm cut off. He was passing from one car to another, when he fell down between the wheels sent over his right arm. He was made as comfortable as possible, and was brought down to the city about midnight, and immediately taken to the hospital, where today he is resting easily. Mr. Conway belongs to Mes-quite Cove, in Lancaster, and is married. Some time ago an accident deprived him of two fingers of his right hand.

THREE FUNERALS TOMORROW.

Tomorrow will witness three funerals to St. John the Baptist church.
Broad street. That of the late Ella Goodline will take place at 9.30 a. m., when regular high mass will be sung.
The prayers for the dead will be read over the remains of the late Miss Whelan at 2.30. The service over the remains of the late Andrew Fauley will take place at 3 p. m. This will be the largest number of funerals occurring in one day in the history of the church.
In fact, the mortality role has been very high in St. John the Baptist parish during the past twelve months.
There have been five deaths during the last ten days.

CHAMBERS.

The matter of the application for an injunction to restrain the city from using the stone crusher on Mt. Pleasant, was today postponed until Thursday, to give the parties interested a chance to effect a settlement.
