BOAT UPSETS NEAR SYDNEY

Survivors Unconscious When Picked by Rescuers

SYDNEY, N. S., June 14.—While boating at Dominion, this evening, Aleno Marsh, aged about 38, was accidentally drowned in Lunenburg Bay. Deceased with two other men, Lauchlin Kennedy and Martin Campbell, went out on a fishing trip and had been out but a few minutes when the boat was seen to capsize. Assistance was at once sent to them and the men were found clinging to the overturned boat. Kennedy and Campbell were unconscious when rescued and Marsh was nowhere to be found. They were hauled into a boat and the craft which capsized upon being overturned was found to contain the remains of Marsh. Kennedy and Campbell will recover. Marsh leaves a wife and five children.

GATHERING WAS MOST SUCCESSFUL YET HELD

The fifth annual convention of the 7th district of United Baptists, which was held at Grand Harbor, Grand Manan, was brought to a close Saturday evening after the most successful session in the history of the district. Last Friday at 2.30 p. m. the convention opened with devotional exercises, the Rev. E. Y. Buchanan of St. George being in the chair. Five ministers and fifteen lay delegates were present, representing twenty-two of the twenty-six churches in the district, also Rev. Dr. DeWolfe of Acadia Seminary and Rev. W. V. Higgins, the field secretary of the foreign mission board. Routine business such as appointing committees, etc., took up the entire afternoon session.

Friday evening's session was devoted to temperance, a general discussion on the subject and addresses by Rev. C. Sterling of Oak Bay and John Webber, summing up the important facts of the discussion.

Saturday evening the officers for the year were elected and reported as follows: Chairman, Rev. A. F. Brown, Grand Harbor; vice chairman, Rev. F. E. Bishop, Fairville; sec. treas., Rev. M. S. Fletcher, West St. John; executive, Rev. F. E. Bishop, D. C. Clark, H. Coby Smith and Hunter Parsons.

The evening session was under the auspices of the U. B. W. M. U. with Mrs. A. C. Smith of St. John West in the chair. Reports from the different aid societies were read and adopted and officers elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Mrs. A. F. Brown, Grand Harbor; sec. treas., Mrs. M. S. Fletcher, West St. John; executive, Rev. F. E. Bishop, D. C. Clark, H. Coby Smith and Hunter Parsons.

The district passed the resolution, heartily endorsing the movement toward such an amalgamation.

Mr. Bishop was followed by Rev. W. V. Higgins, who spoke on certain fundamental principles of the missionary movement.

The unanimous opinion of the delegates was that this annual meeting was the best so far held, special mention being made of the kindness and attention of the manager, captain and officers of the S. S. Aurora, in carrying the delegates to the place of meeting, also the hospitality of the friends at Grand Harbor, who entertained most royally.

FOREIGN GOLD TEMPTS O'BRIEN, BEATEN BOXER

Stanley Ketchel's Victim Has Not Lost His Capacity to Get Money

WILL REST UNTIL FALL

(Philadelphia, North American.) Even in defeat Jack O'Brien is still a good money maker. The shrewd Philadelphia has erased his delectable defeat at the hands of Ketchel here Wednesday night of the calendar and begins a new campaign to make in the dollar.

O'Brien has several offers to fight before clubs in France and England, and it is quite probable that Europe will be the battleground when he returns to the ring again.

It is hardly possible that O'Brien will do any more boxing, as he has been in constant training for several months and needs a long rest in order that his system may be built up. O'Brien has profited handsomely in the last few months, his "New York and Philadelphia" bouts with Ketchel and his local engagement with Johnson netting him more than $12,000.

O'Brien did not seem to take it much to heart that he was knocked out for the first time in his career when he appeared on the streets yesterday. The only manner he had to show as a result of his terrific mill with Ketchel on Wednesday night was a slight cut on the right eye.

Jack asserted that Ketchel was the hardest puncher that he had ever met in his life, and that he had an even chance of whipping Johnson. "Johnson will have to do better," declared O'Brien, "when he meets Stanley than he did with me."

His stomach wallops are the worst ever, and Johnson could never stand long "I don't want to take any credit from Ketchel, but I wished that McCreath before him."

Guigan had let me continue. Still, I am not sure that I could have stayed on my feet to the limit, and I guess that Jack did the best thing possible under the circumstances.

"I didn't have my old speed and steam Wednesday night. I was down too fine from twelve weeks of constant training. I was also compelled to take off some weight the night before the bout in order to scale below the 160 mark at Wednesday noon, but that's my own fault, and I can't excuse my defeat for that."

"But don't count me out of the boxing game. I have already numerous offers to fight in France and England. And I guess I won't go through that bunch of Brits! I am through with fancy fighting, and hereafter will stand up and swap punches."

Each fighter's share for the bout was $3,108.75.

Dr. H. H. Roller, the former University of Pennsylvania athlete, who is now a professional wrestler and fighter, said yesterday that he would like to meet Ketchel. Dr. Roller saw the fight, and said afterwards that he thought he could whip either man.

"Ketchel used good judgment in fighting O'Brien," asserted Dr. Roller, "and my line of battle would have been in the ring. I believe that I can whip either man. I have as strong a punch as Ketchel's and I am a much heavier man, weighing 220 pounds when in condition."

Dr. Roller said he would finish some business affairs in Seattle and come to Philadelphia to stay, making it his city the centre of his athletic campaign. He will abandon wrestling and devote all of his time to fighting. O'Brien said that he was willing to meet the physician with the punch, and the match

CO-RESPONDENT DEAD, DIVORCE IS GRANTED

Montclair, N. J., June 14.—Mrs. Louise Fentzlauff has been granted a divorce from Otto E. Fentzlauff, a wealthy business man, who is said to have deserted his wife and gone to live with Mrs. Mary Phillips. The love affairs of Fentzlauff and Mrs. Phillips kept things stirred up in Montclair for many months, some pupils even going so far as to set off a bomb under the Phillips home.

Mrs. Phillips died soon after the attempt to blow up the Charles street house, and installed Mrs. Phillips in the Charles street house as his housekeeper.

The neighbors of Mrs. Fentzlauff, who is highly respected, determined to make it warm for Fentzlauff and Mrs. Phillips. Finding that ridicule, gibes and the breaking of windows in the house did no good, a bomb was mysteriously placed under the house, which exploded and destroyed the house.

The occupants, however, were uninjured.

Fentzlauff was then notified that if he did not return to his wife, and send the Phillips woman away within forty-eight hours both of them would be killed and feathered. He defied his accusers and threatened to shoot any one attempting to interfere with him.

The programme of tarring and feathering would undoubtedly have been carried out had not some fearful bloodshed, notified the police, who placed the pair under arrest.

Fentzlauff was fined $1000 and sentenced to six months in the penitentiary.

Strong influence saved Fentzlauff from imprisonment and payment of the fine and his promise to give up the Phillips woman he escaped imprisonment. The woman was also released on her promise to leave the state.

May be held at one of the local clubs in the fall.

Stanley Ketchel and Willis Britt, his manager, left for New York yesterday. He had a long night's sleep and didn't show a mark when he appeared in the corridors of the Bingham.

"My first fight with O'Brien," said Ketchel, "proved that the Philadelphia couldn't hit. I waited too long to mix it up with him in New York, but in the night Wednesday night I went after him from the first bell, and knew that he would never stand before me for long. I am now going to start work for my bout with Johnson, and I am sure that I will win the heavyweight championship as well as my present title."

After the case for the plaintiff rested, Lelancy Nicol, for the husband, made the usual motion that the suit be dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to make out a case.

"There have been no evidence of cruelty," he argued. "One of the allegations in that the plaintiff was surrounded by spies. Nothing has been adduced to prove it. Then there is the Hawley incident. Nothing in that bears out the charge of cruelty."

Referring to the abandonment charge, he said that Howard Gould left his wife in July, 1906, but offered to return on perfectly reasonable terms, one of which was that she should abstain from intoxicating liquors. Mrs. Gould, he continued, refused.

During the foregoing argument Mrs. Gould became faint, left the court room and did not return. Then her counsel, Clarence Shearn, began argument against the motion of the defense to dismiss.

"It is cruelty," he affirmed, "for a husband, without justification, to accuse his wife of being a bad character or to entertain against her, without cause, reflections against her honor."

"What kind of a conspiracy was Mr. Nicol engaged in," he asked, "when he got habitues of a saloon to work in the purpose of proving Mrs. Gould a woman of bad reputation? That was the same of cruelty. Howard Gould's attempt to have his wife pledge herself not to drink in itself constitutes cruelty."

It was this clause in the argument the husband asked his wife to sign before he would consent to live with her again that Mrs. Gould most strenuously objected to.

"What," she exclaimed earlier in the

HOWARD GOULD'S LAWYERS SCORE SLIGHT VICTORY

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 14.—Abandonment will be the sole issue upon which the suit for separation brought by Katherine Clemmons Gould against her husband, Howard Gould, third son of the late Jay Gould, will be decided.

This ruling was made late today in the supreme court by Justice Dowling, who is hearing the case, after counsel for Mrs. Gould had rested the case for the plaintiff.

This ruling sweeps away several phases of the case, notably cruelty and non-support, and is a partial victory for Howard Gould. As to the charge of abandonment, the court held that this, too, might not stand unless the plaintiff were able to show that she and Gould's attentions for a reconciliation with his wife were unreasonable. This phase of the case will be argued tomorrow.

Developments in the case today were perhaps the most interesting in the trial so far. George Gould, a brother of the defendant, testified and Mrs. Gould was excused from the stand after three days of searching cross-examination.

After the case for the plaintiff rested, Lelancy Nicol, for the husband, made the usual motion that the suit be dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to make out a case.

"There have been no evidence of cruelty," he argued. "One of the allegations in that the plaintiff was surrounded by spies. Nothing has been adduced to prove it. Then there is the Hawley incident. Nothing in that bears out the charge of cruelty."

Referring to the abandonment charge, he said that Howard Gould left his wife in July, 1906, but offered to return on perfectly reasonable terms, one of which was that she should abstain from intoxicating liquors. Mrs. Gould, he continued, refused.

During the foregoing argument Mrs. Gould became faint, left the court room and did not return. Then her counsel, Clarence Shearn, began argument against the motion of the defense to dismiss.

"It is cruelty," he affirmed, "for a husband, without justification, to accuse his wife of being a bad character or to entertain against her, without cause, reflections against her honor."

"What kind of a conspiracy was Mr. Nicol engaged in," he asked, "when he got habitues of a saloon to work in the purpose of proving Mrs. Gould a woman of bad reputation? That was the same of cruelty. Howard Gould's attempt to have his wife pledge herself not to drink in itself constitutes cruelty."

It was this clause in the argument the husband asked his wife to sign before he would consent to live with her again that Mrs. Gould most strenuously objected to.

"What," she exclaimed earlier in the day during cross-examination, "have me sign myself a drunkard? Never!"

Inasmuch as the abandonment charge only is to be considered tomorrow, there will be no further mention of Buffalo Bill, "Big" Hawley, the former convict, or Ed. Sholes, the reputed gambler. But it still leaves the question of Mrs. Gould's alleged indulgence in intoxicants.

Whatever bearing the events of the day will have on the ultimate decision in the case, honors were about even in the verbal battle between the cross-examiner and Mrs. Gould. Both sprung surprises. The lawyers most pertinent and apparently embarrassing thrust was the exhibition of a faded old-fashioned photograph of a young woman sitting on a white horse, with the white canvas of a circus tent in the background. Mrs. Gould turned a dull red when it was shown, but she would not identify the photograph as one of herself, nor would she swear that it was not. She thought it was "hardly fit enough for me."

This picture was introduced to show if possible Mrs. Gould's former association with Buffalo Bill's show. She had denied on the stand that she was in any way connected with the Wild West, though she had admitted that she travelled at times with Col. W. F. Cody and daughter and that he was her manager.

In retaliation for the picture incident Mrs. Gould made one cutting retort to her inquisitor. Mr. Nicol had been asking the witness about her gowns, how many she wore, how often wore them and what became of them. They were given away, Mrs. Gould testified. "One of them," she said, "was given to your own sister, who is on the stage. I have aided many poor girls to get stage engagements by equipping them with my discarded gowns."

"Did it become her?" was Mr. Nicol's only rejoinder.

As was the case Friday, most of today was taken up in questioning Mrs. Gould concerning her lavish expenditures. How many frocks to wear a day, how long it took to dress, and the declaration that it was "very bad taste" to wear a gown twice were among the interesting fashion hints in the testimony. The name of Dustin Farnum, the actor, was again brought in and George Gould testified how he instituted an investigation of an alleged marriage of the plaintiff before she became his brother's wife.

Canada may make a financial offer to the Imperial government, to be expended in naval defense in such a way as may be decided by the Imperial Defense Conference. Mr. Balfour's speech encouraged the Canadians to believe it possible to come to an agreement with the Imperial government on lines that are autonomous, the local navy working in harmony with the admiralty. It is added that the admiralty is now less inclined to oppose the formation of local navies than was the case. The onens are favorable, therefore, for an agreement between the Dominion government and the admiralty on the lines of their present proposals.

CANADA MAY MAKE A FINANCIAL OFFER

LONDON, June 13.—It is stated here that the Canadian government is contemplating a "very generous financial offer to the Imperial government," to be expended in naval defense in such a way as may be decided by the Imperial Defense Conference. Mr. Balfour's speech encouraged the Canadians to believe it possible to come to an agreement with the Imperial government on lines that are autonomous, the local navy working in harmony with the admiralty.
