WASTING PUBLIC TIME.

The manner in which the time of the House of Commons has been wasted during the present session of parliament has reflected a great deal of discredit upon the opposition. There is no doubt that the opposition is weaker than when the session began, because of their spiteful demeanor and their disregard of the publie interest as shown by their conduct in the House of Commons, and their great abuse of the motion to adjourn, which has become on the part of the opposition a means of obstruction. By the misuse of this motion any member of the House has it in his power to waste a great deal of the time of the House of Commons in a discussion which yields no result and which only serves to show the bad spirit of the House. Not long ago we had Sir Hibbert Tupper making a five hours' the government show a proper appreciathat occurred between the collector of new income than their opponents raised speech in regard to some little difficulty ship which was cleared from there last charged that the Liberals, who had pledgyear. CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

This is a house that is so widely known for the unvarying excellence of its Children's garments that parents almost always turn here to supply the needs of the men-to-be.

Anxiety; as to quality, fit and finish, never arise with parents in this store, and the only thing that bothers them is to choose from this universally attractive stock---it's immense, and each suit is as pretty, good and desirable as its fellow. There's such a multiplicity of good things as is not to be encountered elsewhere.
